That Cold Room

PERFECTION OIL HEATER

on the side of the house where winter blasts strike hardest always has a lower temperature than the rest of the house. There are times when it is necessary to raise the temperature up for a long period. That can be done by the regular method of heating without great trouble and without heating the rest of the house. The only reliable method of heating such a room alone by other means is to use a which can be kept at full or low heat for a short or long time. Four quarts of oil will give a glowing heat for nine hours, without smoke or smell.

An indicator always shows the amount of oil in the font. Filler-cap does not screw on; but is put in like a cork in a bottle, and is attached by a chain and cannot get lost.

An automatic-looking flame spreader prevents the wick from being turned high enough to smoke, and is easy to remove and drop back so that it can be cleaned in an instant.

The burner body or gallery cannot become wedged, and can be unscrewed in an instant for reworking. Finished in Japan or nickel, strong, durable, well-made, built for service, and yet light and ornamental. Has a cool handle.

A STORY OF CHAMBERLAIN

In his book "An Olive Branch in Ireland," William O'Brien tells of the reception Captain Shaw-Taylor received from Mr. Chamberlain "when that most daring of interviewers succeeded in obtaining audience of the minister of the colonies before the land conference (1902) had yet met." FAMOUS GEMS OF PROSE

MIGHTIEST OF THE MIGHTY MEN

By Theodore Roosevelt

From an address, as president of the United States, at the birthplace of Abraham Lincoln, February 12, 1909.

YET perhaps the most wonderful thing of all, and from the standpoint of the America of today and of the future, the most vitally important was the extraordinary way in which Lincoln could fight valiantly against what he deemed wrong, and yet present undiminished his love and respect for the brother from whom he differed. In the hour of a triumph that would have turned any weaker man's head, in the heat of a struggle which spurred many a good man to dreadful vindictiveness, he said truthfully that so long as he had been in his office he had never willingly planted a thorn in any man's bosom, and besought his supporters to study the incidents of the trial through which they were passing as philosophy from which to learn wisdom and not as wrongs to be avenged, and with the solemn exhortation that as the strife was over, all should reunite in a common effort to save their common country.

He lived in days that were great and terrible, when brother fought against brother for what each sincerely deemed to be the right. In a contest so grim the strong men who alone can carry it through are rarely able to do justice to the deep convictions of those with whom they grapple in mortal strife. At such times men see through a glass darkly; to only the rarest and loftiest spirits is vouchsafed that clear vision which gradually comes to all, even to the lesser, as the struggle fades into distance, and wounds are forgotten, and peace creeps back to the hearts that were hurt. But to Lincoln was given this supreme vision. He did not hate the man from whom he differed. Weakness was as foreign as wickedness to his strong, gentle nature; but his courage was of a quality so high that it needed no bolstering of dark passions. He saw clearly that the same high qualities, the same courage, and willingness for sacrifice, and devotion to the right as it was given them to see the right, belonged both to the men of the North and to the men of the South. As the years roll by, and as all of us, wherever we dwell, grow to feel an equal pride in the valor and self-devotion, alike of the men who wore the blue and the men who wore the gray, so this whole nation will grow to feel a peculiar sense of pride in the mightiest of the mighty men who mastered the present, the lover of his country and of all mankind; the man whose blood was shed for the union of his people and for the freedom of a race—Abraham Lincoln.

FROM HOTEL

MAID TO WIFE

OF MILLIONAIRE

Miss Minnie Egan Becomes

Bride of Thos. T. Eckert Jr.

GOTHAM GOSSIP

(Times New York Letter.)

New York, Nov. 25.—From the humble position of a chambermaid in the Waldorf Astoria to be the fiancee of a millionaire, has been an interesting transition for Miss Minnie Egan, who is engaged to marry Thomas T. Eckert Jr., son of General Thomas T. Eckert, Assistant Secretary of War under Lincoln, and for many years president of the Western Union Telegraph Co.

For some years Miss Egan has been acting as housekeeper for the Eckerts at the home of the late General at Long Branch, in the famous telegrapher's eldest son, who is to inherit $2,000,000 of his father's estate.

James Glendonin Eckert, the second son of the general, who is contesting the will on the ground of undue influence on the part of his brother, the octogenarian against him. The former Waldorf maid is well remembered by old patrons of the hotel as a bright, cheerful, modest, industrious worker there. The prospect of her sharing in the millions of General Eckert has excited much interest among those who recall her in the old days.

Good Coachman; Poor Husband

If all that is chronicled about James Crompton, he is a true, he was a howling success as a coachman, but a wretched failure as a husband. Every living did not agree with him and his wife says he undertook to spank her a week ago in the best of a suburban home at Pleasant Valley. She had him arrested and sent to jail for fifty-nine days. Counsel for the coachman appealed from the verdict of the court and had his sentence cut down to seven days.

Crompton, who is twenty-six years old, and the junior of his wife by a good many years, worked for his spouse and her former husband, Geo. W. Wickesham, coachman, some years ago. Gale was a member of the law firm of Strong & Cudwaller, and an associate of Henry W. Taft, brother of the president, and George W. Wickesham, present attorney general of the United States. His wife fell in love with the coachman and secured a divorce from Gale at Reno in order to marry Crompton. After their marriage the bride established her liveried lover on a handsome country estate and introduced him to a life of luxury. Nothing was too good for him.

Of late his wife says he has been kicking over the traces of domestic restraint and hitting up a swift pace. When he preceded to spank her she determined to get rid of him. On his discharge from jail her attorneys secured release from him of his interest in real estate she deeded him in the heyday of their conjugal bliss. He has gone back to work in his old home on Staten Island.

No World's Fair

New York's business interests have officially and forever spiced the proposition to hold a world's fair here in 1913 in commemoration of the 500th anniversary of the founding of the city. The adverse report of the committee appointed last spring by Mayor Gaynor was not unexpected, since the commercial community has never regarded a big international show as a good thing for Gotham, believing that the transitory advantages gained by it would not compensate the city for the reaction that invariably follows an exhibition of the character contemplated by its sponsors. Aside from his business aspects, the committee which has had the question under advisement, feels that New York should not seek to detract from the exposition to be held in San Francisco two years later in honor of the opening of the Panama Canal. In addition, the committee finds that there is considerable doubt in the minds of historians respecting the actual date of the foundation of the city and its members feel it would be an anachronism to commemorate an event of its nature in the year suggested when the weight of authority seems to indicate that it would not be the correct anniversary. The sentiment of the committee being overwhelming against the suggestion that the city should attempt to hold a world's fair in 1913, the committee will probably stay there.

Members of the "400" had difficulty in representing a man this week when news from Paris reached here describing how Count Boni de Castellane had "touched" several of the "400" in the city.

On the strength of his reported engagement to Anne Morgan, the sole unmarried daughter of J. P. Morgan, the "400" were somewhat excited, more so than anything else has been very much on his upper lip.

What Anne Morgan's former spouse, for so long his cousin, the Prince de Sagan, now the Marquis de Tallard, and who was the subject of the report for a long time of winning the "favor of the money lent."

With the possible exception of Helen Gould, no heiress in New York has been more sought after than Miss Morgan, and none has shewn herself more willing to be able to the unprincipled horde of "royal" and "noble" fortune hunters that has besieged her in the every quarter of the city.

What Anne Morgan would have as much chance of enthroning herself on her hearthstone as he would have of rehabilitating himself in the eyes of the "400" family, who loathe him. She is not the soft, glib, inexperienced young woman Anne Gould was when she was first brought to the notice of the "400" and she would not be caught in the same net.

Chinatown Slavery

One of the surprising things disclosed in the police census of Chinatown was the large number of white girls found living in the dens of the Mongolians. In the dark and gloomy rooms, where the girls are kept, the police found a large number of the girls from ten to fifteen years of age were being kept in the most degrading conditions of the quarter came to the part of their day when they found a thirteen-year-old girl in the company of an up-looking yellow skin.

The girl was brought from Scranton, Pa., by her sister Mrs. Tom Lee, who is married to a Chinaman of that name, and had been delivered to a Chinese merchant as a means to Doyer street, much as a chattel would be turned over to its owner. The woman and her husband were sent to prison for a year and the child turned over to the children's society.

Rockefeller's Pastor

It would be interesting to note—if it were possible to discern and collate them—the feelings of John D. Rockefeller on Sunday last as he sat with downcast eyes in the Fifth Avenue Church of which he is a member and heard the Rev. Dr. Aled, the pastor, lay down the golden rule that mankind shall not live alone by stocks and bonds. Since the death of the spiritual administration of the Oil King's church, Dr. Aled, who was brought over from Liverpool for the purpose, has not shown himself as suppliant to the whims and caprices of John D. as many believed he would at the time he came here. As his reference to stocks and bonds fell on the hushed congregation all eyes instinctively turned toward the seat of the richest man in the city, who was visibly embarrassed.

"The world needs the Church's perennial reminder of spiritual realities unseen but eternal," said the clergyman. "It needs to be told again and yet again that men shall not live by stocks and bonds alone, but by faith, hope and love."

"The world has need of the churches yet. The city has need of us, and the nation. No one among you, not the one of most commanding genius or greatest veracity of spirit can hope to escape hours of dejection, discouragement and depression."

A GOOD EXCUSE

"To the dumkard anything is an excuse for a drink."

The speaker Dr. H. Clay Winter, Cleveland's specialist in dipsomania, smiled and resumed:

"I found one of my worst patients in a rathskeller one Saturday night. Nine saucers were stacked before him and pointing to the saucers sternly I said: 'What? Nine large beers already, my dear Jobbins, think of your ten children.'"

"Thanks for the reminder, doc," the dumkard answered. "Here, waiter, bring me one more beer."

SIR WILFRID IS TO

SPEAK IN HOUSE

ON MONDAY NEXT

Vote to be Taken Then on Amendments By Monk and Borden—Conservative Leader Gets a Raking

Ottawa, Nov. 25.—The house closed a short sitting today as a preparation for Monday, when Sir Wilfrid Laurier will speak, and the vote will be taken on the naval amendments of Mr. Monk and Mr. Borden.

Liberal speakers insistently declare that there is no difference between the two, but that one emanates from the Conservative camp and one from Conservative headquarters.

Mr. Fowke, Liberal, of South Ontario, said that while the government had shown its loyalty to the British crown by undertaking the construction of a navy, the Conservative government had shown its loyalty with words and a resolution against the navy.

Colonel Sam Hughes said the elections in Quebec for the last 100 years had generally turned on pettyfoggery of Great Britain.

Dr. Clark, Liberal, of Red Deer, said the government's naval policy had been endorsed by both political parties in Britain. Mr. Borden's amendment was a great triumph for Mr. Monk. Last session Mr. Monk was in solitary confinement in the Conservative camp, but now he had broken down all the compartments and captured the entire omnibus. He had even invaded the driver's seat, and though he had been deposed, Mr. Fowke and apparently contemplated putting Mr. Boursassa in his place.

What had become of the proposed contribution to Britain? Where was the offer of a Dreadnought in Mr. Borden's amendment? If a German war was imminent a year ago it ought to be more imminent now. The elimination of any offer of privilege was entirely wrong.

E. N. Lewis introduced an anti-cockbill, and Mr. Sharp one to transfer to the government unclaimed bank balances.

Mr. Hughes on a question of privilege, complained that Rev. Geo. Jackson, Toronto, and Rev. Dr. Henderson, Ottawa, had been treated with discourtesy by the gallery of the house by being asked to leave a front seat in the north gallery and to take a back seat, while a Roman Catholic clergyman had been permitted to occupy a front seat in the speaker's gallery.

IN DREAD OF PILES

Many Believe That Nothing Short of the Surgeon's Knife Will Effect Cure. They Do Not Know

DR. CHASE'S OINTMENT

The agony caused by the intense itching, the depressing and debilitating effect on the system, the dread lest a surgical operation might be necessary—these are the things which make piles or hemorrhoids so distressing.

The doctors have been recommending surgical operations as the only cure. But the surgical operation with all its dangers and expense does not do it usually.

Many a man has been cured by Dr. Chase's Ointment. Here is a case which does not say so.

Dr. J. A. Roden, M.D., writes: "Dr. Chase's Ointment is a wonderful preparation, and itching piles for over six years, and though I tried two doctors, it is expected that several passengers will be taken aboard at Halifax. The steamer will have a full cargo from Halifax."

A STRANGE FISH

The angler, or fishing frog, of which a specimen has just been captured near Brighton, though nowhere common, seems more generally distributed around our coast than some authorities suppose.

The angler is so called from the curious "rod and bait" formed by a modification of a ray of the front dorsal fin, which was formerly fancied to attract small fish, but the entire hideous body is a marvelous mimetic adaptation of the bottom of the sea, upon which the creature walks, using the pectoral fins for feet. This marine ore has little value, except for museums, but the gall is used by Irish fishermen to bleach linen, and in Ireland it is utilized for the manufacture of soap.—Westminster Gazette.

THE BEST REMEDY

For Women—Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Becky, Ont.—"I was so weak and I had lost out from a female weakness that I concluded to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I took several bottles of it, and I gained strength so rapidly that it seemed to make a new woman of me. I can do as good a day's work as I ever did. I sincerely bless the day that I made up my mind to take your medicine for female weakness, and I am exceedingly grateful to you for your kind letters, as I certainly profited by them. I give you permission to publish this any time you wish."

Mrs. ALBERT WICKETT, Belleville, Ontario, Canada.

Women everywhere should remember that there is no other remedy known to medicine that will cure female weakness and so successfully carry women through the Change of Life as Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from native roots and herbs.

For 30 years it has been curing women from the worst forms of female ills—inflammation, ulceration, displacements, fibroid tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, and nervous prostration.

If you want special advice write for it to Mrs. Pinkham, Lynn, Mass. It is free and always helpful.
