Helping to Choose.

The men in the store watched the young farmer assist his wife into the respectable-looking buggy outside, arrange the packages, spread the laprobe generously and carefully over the young woman's knees and then, himself uncovered, drive away.
"Clayton's goin' to take good care o' his," commented the storekeeper.
"Foolish of him," declared Washington Hancock.
"He'll get tired o' washin' up that buggy o' his'n after a while 'n conclude the old wagon's good enough to come to town to trade in," said Sol Baker, sagely.
"Course he will," agreed Hancock.
"He'll have her out to the woodpile splittin' stove wood, like as not. I've knowed that to happen, too."
Baker had the grace to look embarrassed when the storekeeper snickered.
"There's was things than splittin' a leetle might o' wood now an' then for a woman," he said. "Anyway, Clayt's wife'll take all the care he kin give her an' then need more. It he ain't washin' the dishes for her afore long I miss my guess. She don't like no kind o' work none too well. She didn't as a gal."
"Ain't a great hand to cook, they tell me," said the storekeeper. "Most any one o' the other gals could beat her out when it come to fixin' up a meal. Seems like Clayt 'ud have took 'Lisbeth or Birdie if he was set an' bound to marry into the fam'ly. 'This un's mighty slack mouthed, by all accounts. I could have told him anythin' on that score if he'd come to me an' ast me."
"Why didn't you tell him, anyway?" asked Marvin Parsons.
"It's a pity she's slack-mouthed," observed Hancock. "It's them kind o' wimmin that gits to talkin' about their neighbors after a while. An it's a funny thing that it's allus the wimmin that does that. You might sit in this store when Rufe an' Sol here was shootin' off their mouths year in an year out an' you'd never hear them say a word agin' anybody--not if you was stone deaf. But when a man sees a feller in 'dager o' 'blightin' his life by takin' up with a gal that's ornery an' no account, he ain't doin' no more than what's his duty to give him the right kind o' warnin'. If a feller's got good sense he'll exprehiatate a word in season o' that sort an' won't git mad about it. An' body's apt to be a mite careless an' unthinkin' in the matter o' choosin' a gal when he's young. I bet there hain't a married man but what'll say that's so."
The storekeeper nodded involuntarily and Hancock grinned.
"S' fur 'nct takin' a word o' kindly advice is concerned, I reckon there's the many a man would tell you that if somebody'd come to him in time an' let him know what he had a right to expect from the gal he was thinkin' o' marryin' he'd never have married the gal he did," resumed Hancock. "There's some what does git warnin' in time. I rickerleek right well when a cousin o' mine, Sam Hancock, thought o' hitchin' up with a gal he'd met up with when he was a young buck. He seen the gal an' tuck her buggy ridin' once or twice an' he figgered to himself that she was jest about the finest young woman that ever set a foot on this green airth. He couldn't make out that she'd got a fault. She'd allus acted that way whilst he was around, so how was he to know any diffrant?"
"There was one thing, though, an' that was that Sam had a mighty level head on him for as young as he was. He'd slip up on a trade wunst in a while but he never slipped up twice the same way an' he'd made a many trades by the time he was twenty years old. No, Sam wasn't nobody's fool."
"Well, there was a feller lived neighbor to the gal's folks name of Ben Critenden, an' he knowed Sam an' he knowed the gal. He figgered that Sam was a likely boy an' that it wasn't right for him to stand back and keep his mouth shut when he c'd do good by openin' it. So he goes to Sam one day and he takes him out behind the barn for a confidential talk."
"Sam he says, 'I allow you know that I'm a friend o' yours an' that I ain't a troublemaker or a stir-strife. I've got uthin' to say to you an' if I say it I don't want you to git mad an' prance around on your ear.'
"Certainly not," says Sam. "If you've

PENNFIELD RIDGE.

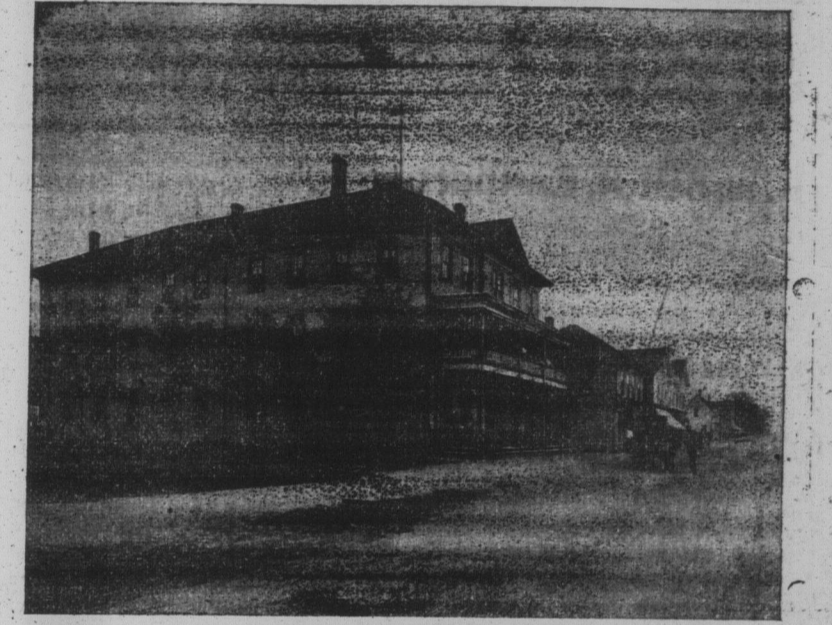

The home of Mr. and Mrs. David Boyd, Pennfield Ridge, was the scene of a happy event on Monday, November 18th, when their youngest daughter Annie Edythe, and Mr. John Carter, of Seelye Cove, were united in the holy bonds of matrimony. The bride was beautifully gowned in white silk lawn and carried white flowers. She was attended by her cousin, Miss Jessie A. Eldridge, who looked charming in a dress of white organdie with lace trimmings and white flowers. The groom was supported by his brother, Nathaniel Carter. At five o'clock the bridal party entered the parlor, which was tastefully trimmed with evergreen and roses. Rev. H. L. Lynds of St. George performed the ceremony, after which a delightful supper was served. At eight o'clock the bride donned a suit of grey with hat to match, and amid showers of rice and good wishes drove to their future home in Seelye Cove, where a party of young folk gathered to wish Mr. and Mrs. Carter a long life of happiness. The many beautiful gifts which were presented show the high esteem in which the young couple are held.

Old Time Toys.

Perhaps you think, when you push your jumping-jack before, somebody and make them say "Oh!" and jump, that the little children who lived ages and ages ago, so long ago that we scarcely know anything about them, did not have such a toy; only the children in America know it. If you do think so, you are mistaken.
It has been found that the children in Egypt had such a toy. And another discovery is that the little girls in Egypt, in the long, long ago had dolls-- queer, misshapen dolls, but dolls that they loved and to whom they were little mothers.

CHASE and SANBORN MONTREAL

One On The Editor.

A little boy of our city was given the task by his father of writing an essay on editors the other day, and the following was the result of his effort: "I don't know how newspapers come to be in the world. I don't think God does, for he hain't got nothing to say about them and editors in the bible. I think the editor one of the misshapen links you read of and strayed in the bushes until after the flood; and then come out and wrote the thing up and has been there ever since. I don't think he ever dies. I never saw a dead one and never heard of one getting licked. Our paper is a mighty poor one; the editor goes without underclothes all winter, don't wear socks, and pay hain't paid his subscription in more than five years."
If the editor makes a mistake he has to apologize for it but if the doctor makes a mistake he burns it. "If the editor makes one there is a lawsuit, swears, and the smell of sulphur, but if the doctor makes one there is a funeral, cut flowers and the smell of vanilla. "A doctor can use a word a yard long 'thout knowing what it means, but if the editor uses it he has to spell it. "If the doctor goes, he gets a charge of buckshot. When the doctor gets drunk, it's a case of overcome by heat, and if he dies, it's 'heart trouble.' When an editor gets drunk, it's a case of top much booze, and if he dies, it's a case of delirium tremens. "Any old college can make a doctor. "You can't make an editor, he has to be born."--Exchange.

Whale's Laminee.

The age of whales is ascertained by the size and number of laminae of the phalacra, which increase yearly. Ages of 300 and 400 years have been assigned to whales from these indications.
Both Sides.
Both sides may be made of discarded bedsteads by cutting from the firm part squares of desired size and hemming. These mats are nice to lay on the floor beside the bathtub when the latter is in use, but should be folded and hung in a convenient place, as they are not heavy enough to take the place of a rug.
Half Pines For Women.
Women, because they eat so much less, only pay half rates in the more old fashioned of Sweden's hotels.
Marriage Penances.
Army and navy officers in Germany are obliged to make a deposit of $7,500 with the government before they are permitted to marry. This draws an income of 3 per cent and at death is refunded to the family or heirs.
Low Down Cities.
Most Dutch cities are several feet below the level of the sea.
Animal Intelligence.
Evidence of a mind in all animals, even the lowest, is found by F. W. Headley. The amoeba exercises the power of choice when it eats, and the tree-like colony of one called Infusorian, called zoöthalamium, after a time ceases to be agitated by jars repeated at intervals, showing that it must remember that a jar is harmless.

A Tickling Cough.

A tickling cough, from any cause, is quickly stopped by Dr. Shoop's Cough Cure. And it is so thoroughly harmless and safe, that Dr. Shoop tells mothers everywhere to give it without hesitation even to very young babies. The wholesome green leaves and tender stems of a lung-healing mountainous shrub, furnish the curative properties to Dr. Shoop's Cough Cure. It calms the cough, and heals the sore and sensitive bronchial membranes. No opium, no chloroform, nothing harsh used to injure or suppress. Simply a resinous plant extract, that helps to heal aching lungs. The Spaniards call this shrub which the Doctor uses, "The Sacred Herb." Demand Dr. Shoop's. Take no other. Sold by all Dealers.
