A Fire broke out yesterday about on A FIRE PLOSE our yesternay as in Palace Street, known as the Mansion House, and lately occupied by Mr. Brown as an hotel. The building burned with amazing rapidity, and the flames communicated to the adjoining building, and the most serious apprehensions were entertained that St. Patrick's Church would be destroyed. This, however, was averted by the most strenuous exertions on the part of these who manaed the engines; and the fire was confined to three houses. These were owned by Mr. Henry Atkinson, Mr. M'Leoc, and the rebel Chasseur. The house in which the fire originated was not tenanted, but several persons were in the upper stories at the time of its breaking out, who saved themselves by descending by a ladder outside. The other houses were occupied by several families, who saved nearly the whole of their
