LAMENESS—INVERSION OF UTERUS.

Cow went very lame and had to be assisted to rise before calving. Now, two weeks after calving, she is much better, can rise without assistance, but throws leg (hind leg) outwards from body when walking. She had difficulty calving, and she expelled the uterus. In replacing, I ruptured it with my thumb. Her appetite is good, and she is improving in production of milk, but occasionally she discharges a dark-colored matter. Will the wound heal? Can I breed her again, and how can I prevent inversion of the uterus next time?

B. R.

Ans.—From symptoms given, I cannot tell what caused the lameness, but as she is improving I do not think you need treat her for it, and nature will effect a cure. It is probable the rupture of the uterus is healing, else the symptoms would have become severe by this time. You cannot inject the womb as we do in most discharges, as the fluid would pass through the rupture into the pelvic cavity and cause complications. Give her 80 drops carbolic acid three times daily until the discharge ceases. Do not breed her again for at least three months. Nothing can be done to prevent inversion of the uterus, further than tying in a narrow stall and building up behind after calving so that her hind quarters, whether she be standing or lying, are about a foot higher than her fore.

FATAL TYMPANITIS.

Cow had two attacks of bloating. In about three days afterwards she was on old clover during the day, and after milking she was turned on alsike. About nine o'clock she was terribly bloated. Father tapped her, but she died. Another one bloated up and died next night. They had been on clover for two weeks, and they did not bloat at first. Do you think the disease contagious? What is the best way to treat a case. J. E. B.

Ans.—It is seldom cows bloat so badly after being on clover for two weeks, but having been on red clover all day and changed to alsike in evening they ate too greedily, or probably the clover was wet and the evening cold. The condition is not contagious. It is simply indigestion from overloading the rumen with easily-fermented food. In cases of excessive bloating, death takes place very quickly. The only treatment in such severe cases is puncturing on the left side with a trocar and cannula and following with a purgative of two pounds Epsom salts. In slight cases, a dose of two ounces oil of turpentine in a pint of raw linseed oil will generally dissipate the gases.

Miscellaneous.

HOUSE WATER SUPPLY.

Have an excellent spring well about 27 rods from dwelling house. House is on slightly higher ground than where well is. Well is 12 feet deep; water at lowest in dry time being 4 feet deep.

1. What would be the best and cheapest way to place water in house?
2. Could it be drawn by a cistern pump?
3. What would be the probable cost of placing water in house? D. V. E.

Ans.—1. As in many other cases, you probably could not adopt a plan that would be at once the "best and cheapest." What you should aim at is an efficient system of supplying your house with water at a reasonable cost. A pumping windmill at the well and a tank in the house from which the kitchen and other taps would be supplied, and through which it might flow on through other pipes to the barn, would probably be the most serviceable plan.

2. It could be drawn by a pump at the house, but it would be slow and hard work.
3. The cost of the plan suggested in answer 1 would range according to size of piping, distance, etc., from $125 to $150.

Will some of our readers who have adopted a plan that has proven satisfactory under similar conditions send us a description of same.

The Cream Separator that is the Cheapest in the End.

There are some folks who are everlastingly trying to get "something for nothing." They buy a wagon at a "bargain" price because the agent says it's "just as good." And then, after a few months, when the tires and spokes have all loosened up, they cross the wagon.

Price isn't the only difference.

It's the same way with cream separators. You can buy many other separators for less money than the U. S. Cream Separator sells for, but before you've finished paying for the experiment you'll find price isn't the only difference. The cheaper separators soon get out of adjustment because built of cheaper material by inferior manufacturing methods; they consume twice the necessary amount of oil; they have a bowl that will not run true, and does not skim clean. The repairs in the first few years would pay the difference for the U. S. Cream Separator.

Durability is important.

The U. S. Cream Separator has stood the test of time. Many of them have been in use for 10 years, and cost less than a dollar for repairs. They run easy, skim cleaner than others, have a simple bowl, enclosed gears, and a convenient low supply can.

The Vermont Farm Machine Co., of Bellows Falls, Vt., have printed in a handsome booklet a few of the thousands of letters from satisfied users of the U. S. Cream Separator. This booklet will save you money when you buy a separator, and a post card will bring it to you.

To insure prompt deliveries and to save freight charges for their Canadian customers, they ship from their warehouses at Montreal, Sherbrooke, Hamilton, Winnipeg, Calgary and Vancouver, but all letters should be addressed to Bellows Falls, Vt.
