DEATH OF THE PRINCESS ALICE.

By the death of the Princess Alice, which took place on Saturday morning last, the Queen of England has lost a favorite daughter, and a gloom has been thrown over the entire British nation.

The Princess Alice Maud Mary was the third child of Queen Victoria. She was born on the 25th of April, 1843, and was married on the 1st of July, 1862, to His Royal Highness Prince Frederick William Louis of Hesse and Rhine.

The death of the little Princess Marie of Hesse, says the Times, reminds us that up to the present time her Majesty had had to her no less than 26 grand children, out of whom she lost only five.

On Wednesday evening the Osborne Hall was most fully filled with the elite of our town to listen to the Oddfellows concert. The programme was replete with highly appropriate selections.
