A PUBLIC NUISANCE.

This is the critical time of the year as far as malarial and other fevers are concerned. People cannot be too careful of the water they drink, and also of the sanitary condition of their premises. The Board of Health inspectors would find a tour of inspection very beneficial in the community. There are many nuisances which are simply 'pest' spots, for instance, the old tannery premises, which have been since the fire an eyesore to the village, especially to those residing in the immediate vicinity. The stench arising from those vats containing liquor, hair, pieces of hides and other particles of foul, decayed matter is sufficient to breed almost any disease and it is high time the Board took active steps towards having this nuisance removed. The odor arising from that source contaminates the atmosphere and we need not be surprised to hear of several cases of typhoid or malarial fever this fall in one or more of the families living adjacent, and a heavy doctor's bill or a death as the result of carelessness and negligence on the part of the Board of Health is no trifling matter. The Board is not ignorant of the whereabouts and nature of these pest spots. They have been frequently entreated to remedy the evil, but they allowed the appeals to go by unheeded. Our attention has also been drawn to another fever-breeding bed—the slaughter house near the saw mill. Now it is a well known fact that the law prohibits the erection of a slaughter house within the limits of a corporation or proximate to dwelling houses. This nuisance is within the corporation and at this season of the year endangers the health of the people living in that part of the village. For some weeks past a beef's head partially covered with decayed flesh was allowed to remain on King street to the disgust of the passers-by. The Board of Health are directly responsible for this state of things, and if they continue to remain neutral in the matter let there be a united appeal made to the Provincial Board of Health and have these evils removed at once.
