BANDAGE ON HIS HAND TOOK FIRE

Because it was Soaked With Turpentine
And This Man was Frantically
Burned.

Roughneck, N. Y., Jan. 7.—William Hallenbeck, of Greendale, Columbia County, is at the point of death as the result of an unusual burning accident. A few days ago he was bitten on one of his hands by a cat, and he buried the injured hand in flannel, saturated with turpentine. After that he renewed the bandage several times a day. Soon after putting on a fresh supply of turpentine a few days later he struck a match to light his pipe, and the bandage blazed up. Before the man could get it off his fingers had been burned off and his hand literally roasted. Another piece of flannel soaked with turpentine which he had across his breast caught fire. His ears were burned to a crisp, and his head, breast and neck terribly eaten by the flames.

DEAREST PHONE CALL ON RECORD.

Caused a Loss of $40,000 to Heirs of J. P. Metcalf.

Eric, Pa., Jan. 7.—A telephone call cost the heirs of Joseph P. Metcalf, the Erie Manufacturer, $40,000. Just before his fatal illness began, Mr. Metcalf, then in perfect health, was arranging for a life policy of that amount. An urgent business call by telephone obliged him to excuse himself and leave the writing of the policy postponed until the next morning. That same night he was taken ill with pneumonia, and four days later he was dead.

THE HOLD-UP THAT FAILED.

An American Agent in Paris Who was up to

His Countrymen's Way—A Well Laid Plot Which did not Succeed.

Paris, Jan. 7.—Maj. Brackett, secretary and financial agent of the United States Exposition commission, is the hero of a thrilling adventure. Saturday being pay day of the commission, the major went to Morgan & Harjes' Bank, Avenue Haussmann, to draw the necessary money. Beside the employees' salaries, he had several large bills due. He drew $1,000 in notes and gold, which he placed as usual in a small handbag. Accompanying Brackett was one of the financial clerks. The major's carriage was waiting at the door. Sitting on the box beside the coachman was a well-dressed stranger. Brackett asked what he was doing there. The coachman replied that he didn't know for a ride as far as the Avenue Suffren when he learned that the carriage was going in that direction.

"All right," said Brackett, "go ahead."

When inside the carriage the major, ever prudent, and for a long time suspicious of such an attempt to waylay him, took a six-barrelled revolver from his pocket, remarking to the clerk: "We'll see some fun now."

The clerk was similarly armed. When the carriage crossed Pont Lalande, instead of continuing straight along the Avenue Rapp, where the offices are, it turned to the left abruptly into an unfrequented road skirting the exposition.

"I told you so," said Brackett. Looking through the front window, he saw the man beside the coachman pressing against the latter's ribs a small pistol.

"The fun's coming now. Are you armed?" whispered the major. The clerk nodded. The carriage began to slow up.

"Now," said Brackett. Thereupon each alighted upon opposite sides and pointed their revolvers at the stranger's head in English.

"Halt," screamed both in English. The man grabbed the coachman's arm, the carriage stopped, and the stranger descended and looked into Brackett's pistol.

"Caught that time," remarked the major.

"Right you are," replied the man with a marked American accent. Brackett was surprised to find the thief a countryman, and said so, on which the man told a pathetic story of coming to Paris with his sick wife, hoping to save her life through the distractions.

"She's dying now," he added. "I've no money to help her. That's why."

Brackett was much affected and allowed the fellow to go. The major, a minute later, looking around a corner saw the man in angry conversation with two others who had been hiding beside the exhibition railing, a hand-drawn carriage beyond the spot where the carriage was stopped.

"All Americans," observed the clerk.

FIVE JACKS IN A BUNCH.

They don't make a bad hand, 'tis true, five Jacks do not. But then, if you can't get rid of one there are some occasions liable to be times, unhealthily times, too.

Three of them were standing at the police station polling booth this morning. They were Jack Horstead, toll clerk, and Jack Poole and Jack Redner, scrutineers, when the other two approached. They were Jack Young and Jack Edmundson, who respectfully solicited your vote and influence for Alderman.

Morning, Jack.

"Hello, Jack."

"Nice day, Jack."

"Not so bad, Jack."

"Say," said Jack Edmundson, "I'm taking in the situation. 'That's not so bad. It's about worth a treat.' And it'll only take a quarter to secure the lot for this purpose," said the Chief, who apparently knew.

And Judge Houston, N. H. Stevens, John Holmes and others, who had just come along, smiled again.

At last night's service at the First Presbyterian church Mrs. John Cooper contributed the exquisite soprano solo, "The New Born King."

Miss E. Stuart Thompson, who has been visiting her uncle, D. Anquital, Richmond street, for the past two weeks, returned to her home on Saturday, in Toronto.

The first regular meeting of Wellington Masonic lodge is a visit to the city, this evening at 7.30. A large attendance is hoped for.

At the evening service of the William St. Baptist church, yesterday, Miss Florence G. Stephenson gave an excellent rendering of the cantata solo, "The New Born King."

We must have a number of reliable persons and families in this locality to work for us whole or spare time, good wages paid. No canvassing. Write for position to-day. People's Syndicate, Dept. A, 130 Yonge street, Toronto.

Mrs. Wm. J. Fleming of Raleigh, who has been an inmate of the Public General Hospital since Dec. 12th, returned with her husband to-day. Mrs. Fleming has recovered and is quite enthusiastic over the care she received at the hospital.

On Saturday evening the teachers and scholars of Victoria Avenue Methodist presented E. E. Parratt with a handsome easy chair, and a eulogistic address. Mr. Parratt has been superintendent of the school for the past nine years.

W. H. Taylor, of the T. H. Taylor Co., Ltd., contemplates leaving for Montreal and Quebec this week. Mr. Taylor states that during the last few days there has been a greater demand for flour than usual, but as yet prices for wheat remain the same.

THE MIGHTY DOLLAR.
The young ladies of St. Joseph's Church will give a gold dollar social on January 22nd in the I. O. O. F. Auditorium in aid of St. Joseph's Church. The social will be unique. A gold dollar will be baked in one of the biscuits and whoever gets the biscuit with the dollar in owns the dollar. It is not necessary to swallow the money, but this can be done if desired.

Cash Counts

The credit giving shoe shop's got to even up losses by hook or crook, as they can't 'hook' they're going to "crook." You'll be the one whose extra half dollar pays for Mr. Chagremup's privilege. It isn't fair, nor pleasant to contemplate. A man with ready cash to spend ought to be favored instead of overcharged. Come with purse in hand to this store and see how much your dollars will cover. We never "book it" except in the case of approbation selections. No cash customer, therefore, is mulct-ed to cover the discrepancies of credit sales. But, mind you, all so-called "cash stores" have not abandoned the credit system. This store never adopted credit.
