EARL GREY AS ADVISER

DEVELOP NATIONALITY ON THE HIGHEST POSSIBLE LINES.

Canadians Should Not Only Aim at High Ideals, But Should Inspire Others to Strive for Purity in Social and Political Life - Address Delivered In Winnipeg, But For Canadians Everywhere.

Probably no speech ever delivered in Winnipeg by a representative of the Crown produced a deeper impression than that which Earl Grey made before the Canadian Club during his recent visit to that city. His theme was the uplifting of civic politics and the need for eradicating social as well as agricultural weeds. In the course of that speech His Excellency said:

"I am glad that I have been able to accept the invitation from your club. I have accepted it because I am aware that the Canadian Club is composed of men of ali parties, whose one object Probably no speech ever delivered in that the Canadian Club is composed of men of ali parties, whose one object is the advancement of the public good. I believe it is the ambition of the members of the Canadian Club of Winnipeg to win a high place for the Dominion in the British Empire, and to win a high place for the British Empire in the great confraternity of civilized nations. That, I understand, is the grand and the noble ambition which stirs the young and resolute which stirs the young and resolute hearts of the members of this club. That being so, I might quote, I think with absolute appropriateness, that well-known stanza from Macaulay's "Lays of Ancient Rome," which might almost have been started. almost have been dedicated to the members of this club:

"When none were for a party And all were for the State, When the rich man served the man, And the poor man loved the great, When lands were fairly portion And spoils were fairly sold, And Romans were as brothers In the brave days of old."

True Citizenship.

"When I see such a large assembly of gentlemen of Winnipeg, who have come here as members of a club which has been created to advance and promote the public well-being, not in the interests of any party, but of the State, I do not think I am wrong in assuming that they are animated by the same spirit which moved the ancient Romans in the brave days of old. At the same time, I do not wish to pretend to take up the attitude that it is wrong to belong to any party. On the contrary, I remember that the laws, I think of Sparta, decreed that the men who refused to take one side or the other when a point of high principle, affecting the national well-being, was at stake, should receive the death penalty.

"Well, having been a party of all which is a party. "When I see such a large assembly ally.

"Well, having been a party politician myself, and a very keen one when great issues were at stake, I confess year of sympathy with the great issues were at stake, I confess I have some sort of sympachy with the spirit which inspired that rather drastic law. But I confess I have still great er sympathy with one of the greatest Canadians the Dominion has ever prosuced, one of the most inspiring orators and political teachers the British Empire has ever produced, I refer to the Nova Scotian, Joseph Howe, when he said, he hoped he might live to see the day when the question asked of every politician would be not "to which party do you belong?" but "what great public improvement do you mean to advocate, and to which great public measure, tending to advance the public welfare of the people, are you pledged?"

Few Things Impossible.

Few Things Impossible.

Few Things Impossible.

"Now, Mr. Chairman, if this Canadian Club is in favor, and resolutely and earnestly in favor, of the application of any great moral principle to the conduct of public affairs, such as sweeping away corruption and self-interest out of the public service, then I say these Canadian Clubs of Winnipeg, Toronto, Montreal and Ottawa can do it. It is a favorite belief of mine, which thas been confirmed by experience more and more every day, that there are few things which are impossible to the man who is really in earnest. I heard a most encouraging and inspiring sentence Herridge, the great Presbyterian preacher in Ottawa, who said: In the region of high endeavor there is absolutely no limit to the ultimate horizon of a sworp hypersea.

solutely no limit to the ultimate horizon of a sworn purpose."

"If you study the lives of such men as Father Damien, Charles Gordon, Cacil Rhodes, General Booth and Dr. Barnardo—all men practically of my own generation, you will realize that there is a divine force in each of you which, if you will only let it grow, will enable you to remove mountains.

Dr. Barnardo

Dr. Barnardo. "I cannot mention Dr. Barnardo's name without giving expression to the grief which has caused Canada to stand as one of the chief mourners by grief_which has caused Canada to stand as one of the chief mourners by the grave side of one of the greatest benefactors either Canada or England ever had. A Spaniard by birth, a British citizen by adoption, Dr. Barnardo, by the strength of the Divine power which worked within him, was able, absolutely single-handed, and without any advantages to help him, to carve a way into the region of practical benevolence, and to find a haven in Canada for thousands of friendless children who, but for his helping hand, would, instead of becoming good citizens of the Dominion, have been swept by the force of circumstances for which they had no responsibility whatever, over the moral falls of Niagara.

"I hope Winnipes may one day be able to give artistic expression to the lessons to be learned from Dr. Barnardo's life, and I say that because I believe there is no part of the world which has benefited so much from his benevolence as has the Province of Manitoba.

"The story of the penniless Spaniard working for lost humanity and for Canada from the standpoint of a citizen of London, supplies a vivid and graphic illustration of what the British Empire means to all who recognize in it the most potent instrument that has ever been created for assimilating the virtues of manitind from whatever race they spring, and for using them as a force for the regoneration of the world.

Prey of Eccelers.

"This Canadian Club, composed as

Prey of Boddlers.
This Canadian Club, composed as it is of men whose first ambition is to serve the State, and to help every movement outside party lines which can advance and promote the national well-being, is the greatest guarantee any city can obtain that its life shall continue to be high, noble and cultured, and that the energy of its citizens shall be directed to noble ends. For the want of such institutions as this many English-speaking cities have become the prey of boodlers and grafters, of men who have sought public positions with the sole object of obtaining as much as they could out of them, with no idea of serving the public, the only idea being to serve themselvits. It is, I say, for the want of such clubs as this that this sort of, men have been able to direct the pollities of many cities, and to become the vampires and not the guardians of the people whose trust and confidence they have betrayed.

"I have been delighted to see in driving about Winnipeg a most inspiring command, "Citizens protect your property." At every turn of the city, through all your beautiful boulevards, I have seen this injunction, and have said that at any rate this city is safe, for its citizens may be relied on to protect their own pockets and taxes as well as the grass and flowers which adorn your streets.

Good Out of Chicago.

adorn your streets.

Good Out of Chicago.

"I would remind you that the res "I would remind you that the resolute action of a few fearless citizens in Chlcago and other cities, has cleared the pirate gangs of boodlers and grafters out of their City Councils, and that a few private citizens have been that a few private citizens have been able to rouse a wave of civic enthusiasm which has swept corruption out of their cities. I say, if it has been possible for a few men to do this, it stands to reason that a club such as yours will be strong enough to prevent the evil of corruption from ever showing her loathsome and leprous visage in your midst.

showing her loathsome and leprous visage in your midst.

"Last week, riding through your beautiful wheat fields, I noticed here and there a field which was evidently intended by the farmer for wheat, but which appeared to be a much finer crop of thistles and weeds than the wheat he hoped to reap. The farmer had not destroyed the noxious weeds at the right time. It is the business of a Canadian Club, to whatever city it belongs, to prevent the thistles and the noxious weeds overrunning their city by extirpating them before they the noxious weeds overrunning their city by extirpating them before they become too numerous.

"It is an obvious truism that no such period of national history is so solemn or important as its dawn. Every day of the early life of a man Every day of the early life of a man or of a nation is fixing in permanent features the character of its future complexion, and your Canadian Club can, if it chooses, secure for your city a character which will make its influence great for good, not only throughout the Dominion, but the whole of the British Empire.

A Lot to Learn.

"I have been told that the many na "I have been told that the many nationalities you have in Winnipeg may be a. weakness. I prefer to regard it as a strength. I think it was Ruskin who said: In every moment of our lives we should be trying to find out, not in what we differ from other people, but in what we agree with them.' And so, I think it would be conduct in accordance with that suggestion, and wise, too, to try and seek out the virtues which distinguish the various races of which the fair Dominion of Canada is composed.

races of which the fair Dominion of Canada is composed.

"We have all a lot to learn from each other, and if we look for it, I dare say we will find something to be copied in the Galician, the Frenchman, the German, the Scandinavian, the Englishman, the Irishman and even the Scotchman. Fuse all those virtues together, and roll them into one good Canadian.
"I am glad to meet the members of

"I am glad to meet the members of "I am glad to meet the members of your club, because I believe it is your aim and ambition to develop your nationality on the highest possible lines, and that a people can only be great in proportion as they develop this principle of nationality. I hope it may become through the action of this club, that it may be the glory of the City of Winnipeg to be an influence which shall make itself felt throughout the whole of Canada for all that is highest and best in the national life, and that from Winnipeg shall issue a force which shall inspire the people to keep high ideals constantly before them; ideals which shall require them to esteem honer before them; ideals which shall require them to esteem honor before success, the spirit of sacrifie and service above that of selfishness and greed, and the cult that makes for true nobility and efficiency, rather than the pursuit of pleasure and the gratification of self-indulgence. indulgence.

High Ideals.

"I would ask the members of this club to aim at having in Winnipeg the best schools, the best churches, the best music, the best art, the best newspapers and the best literature in the Dominion, and to spare no effort and no money to arrive at those posses; sions. This may seem difficult to obtain. It is certainly a high ideal to aim at, but as I believe in the omnipotence of a club like this, if you only have the right spirit among you, and I am confident if you only have one man in this room who is really in earnest in striving for these results, that he will leaven the whole lump, and that you will reach the ideal which I have attempted roughly to lay before you." High Ideals. I have attempted roughly to lay be-fore you."

University Not "Godless."

University Not "Godless."

Toronto is wont to be classed as a "godless university" by a number of individuals who should know better. As a matter of fact, she is exceedingly solicitous for the spiritual welfare of her children. Her connection with the theological colleges doubtless has done much to counteract the negative attitude which she is compelled to adopt towards questions of creed, but in various ways she contributes indirectly to the religious life of the undergraduates. Courses in religious knowledge, Bible training and Church history have recently been added to the curriculum, and students have the option of taking these at the college of their own denominations. Another method which has been followed with eminent success is the delivering of university sermons. Famous preachers who are in a special manner adapted to an audience of university men are secured at frequent intervals. Last Sunday Rev. Prof. Kilpatrick of Knox College addressed the students in Wycliffe Convocation Hall. On Nov. 5 Rev. Dr. Mills of Kingston, Bishop of Ontario, will be the speaker. Toronto is wont to be

Hats on In Church.

Spectator.

Pepys shows that in the seventcenth century both men and women wore their hats to worship. "To church," he writes, "and heard a simple fellow open the praise of church musique and exclaiming against men wearing their hats on in the church." Later he notes that he saw a minister "preach with his hat off, which I never saw before." The hat was then an integral part of both male and female costume, and Pepys catches "a strange cold in my head by flinging off my hat at dinner.
