The Philosopher.

A quaint old fellow with a quaint old smile. Whose clothes were far from the modern style. Looked up at the sky with his weather eye. And said as a child came drifting by. 'The beautiful stars that have shone so long. And I hope that snowstorm won't come true. But if it does, it will not be queer. You've got to expect 'em this time of year.' He talked that way when the sun shone hot. He smiled as he shared in the common lot. When Fate seemed grim, he could still smile some. As he waited for better days to come. And he said to the people for whom he cared. You must be cheerful and well prepared. Here's luck and I bid you 'ere get to learn To take your share when it comes your turn.

Alberta News.

DEAR ACADIANS.—Notes of a year's residence in the West may furnish something of interest to your readers. In common with other parts of Canada, the year, or the latter portion of it at least, has been marked by lack of employment and consequent hard times. Speaking of Edmonton and surrounding districts particularly, there have been few business failures, and Edmonton has dealt generously with her unemployed to help them through the past winter. Although probably 50 percent of those helped had no claim upon the city's generosity other than as "strangers within her gates," work was devised for all those who would work. True, the monetary return was not of a princely sort, but it tided many a family over a very trying period.

The problem of the "out of work" is likely to continue difficult of solution, especially in those newer western cities, until the steamship lines that bring them in are made responsible for their maintenance, for at least one year after landing, they should they fall in maintaining their selves for that period.

Hundreds of foreigners are brought in for railroad construction and other big jobs. These work for low wages during the summer and when work shuts down in the early winter there is nothing for them, but to "chick" for the cities and offer their services for any wage they can get, or failing this, become a charge upon public charity.

Profits from this class of immigrant has accrued to none except possibly the big contractor who has got his work done at a cheap wage, and the steamship company who has received its passage money.

At the present time, there is an immense labor force in this province that can be utilized, and yet hundreds more are being sent in.

Only yesterday two hundred more mostly British, were heading for the railroad grade along the Lesser Slave Lake while double that number were a few days previously, waiting for employment in the same district, which railway contractors were unable to offer.

Passing my station on the E. D. and B. C. Railway may be seen men returning daily from the north country who have been disappointed in getting employment.

I have devoted considerable space to this question and it is a case where immigrants do not add to the prosperity of the country.

The Real Estate Boom, so much in evidence up to a year ago, is practically a thing of the past, and normal values both for purchase and rental now prevail.

Fortunes have been made in inflated and fictitious values, but to any sane person, viewing conditions impartially, the fact must be very apparent that land is not so scarce as demand such exorbitant figures as have been asked and in many cases paid.

City property holders now find themselves taxed on those higher values, and this is making an annual drain upon their profit margin which in the case of non-revenue producing properties must soon spell loss.

Edmonton's real property must be more in the trade that will come to her through the occupation by agriculturists of the rich farm lands adjacent, and her real connection with points more distant.

A vast area is being opened up to the north by the building of the Edmonton, Dunsmuir and B. C. Railway, and the Alberta and Great Westway Railways. The former is now in operation to the Lesser Slave Lake, 180 miles north of Edmonton, and will reach the Peace River, 150 miles further north, by the end of the present year, opening up a very large and fertile country as well as large stretches of good timber.

How to Cure Stomach Trouble.

THE COMMON CAUSE IS LACK OF BLOOD—THEREFORE YOU MUST BUILD UP THE BLOOD.

There is the most intimate relation between the condition of the blood and the activity of the stomach. The blood depends upon the stomach for a large part of its nourishment, while every act of digestion, from the time the food enters the stomach and is assimilated by the blood needs plenty of pure well-oxygenated blood. The muscles, glands and nerves of the stomach work only according to the quality of the blood.

The most common cause of indigestion is lack of rich, red blood. Not only does impure blood weaken the muscles of the stomach, but it lessens the product of the glands of the intestines and stomach, which furnish the digestive fluids. Nothing will more promptly cure indigestion than plenty of pure blood. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are the safest and most certain blood builder. A thorough trial of these pills gives a hearty appetite, perfect digestion, strength and health. Here is proof of the value of these Pills in cases of indigestion.

Mrs. Alfred Austin, Varna, Ont., says: My system became run down and my stomach very weak. I had no desire for food and what I did take caused me great distress, and I did not get any nourishment, and I was gradually growing weaker, and could scarcely do any work at all. I did not sleep soundly at night and would have a feeling of dread. Some years previously I had used Dr. Williams' Pink Pills with much benefit and this decided me to again try them. My confidence was not misplaced, as by the time I had used six boxes I was again feeling quite well.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are sold by all medicine dealers or will be sent by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 by sending to The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Familiarity Breeds Contempt.
An inspector going through a plant in Illinois observed a set-screw projecting on a revolving shaft. He considered it particularly dangerous because the shaft was near a passageway and workmen were continually going back and forth past it. He called the manager's attention to it. "Don't you think," he said, "that that set-screw had better be cut off. Some one will get hurt some day if it is left that way." "I do not think so," the manager replied, "that set-screw has been like that for years. No one has ever been hurt by it. The fact that it is exposed and can be observed by anyone renders it safe from causing any accident." The manager had a habit of generalizing when speaking, and as he waved his arm to emphasize what he was saying, the sleeve of his coat came in contact with the set-screw and caught on it and in an instant he was whirled to death.

Children Cry for FLETCHER'S CASTORIA

Chickens.
WALT MASON.
Now man goes forth and makes his garden, a hard and painful grid; and then the crime beyond all pardon destroys his peace of mind. His neighbor keeps a string of chickens, and they, inflamed with greed come o'er and scratch to beat the chickens, and dig up all the seed. And then the man whose wasted labor has set him seeing red, walks o'er to see that heathen neighbor and manures his head. Thus village feuds are often started, and people raise the deuce, and men and women are broken hearted because some hens run loose. In any town where leggy chickens run loose, in season of law, you may be sure that trouble thickens, and hearts are sore and raw. Old hens and roosters have created more trouble, caused more tears, than could in seven weeks be started by seven auctioneers. If you must keep a herd of Dorkings or other brands of fowls, oh, take them where their frantic workings won't stir up grief and howls. To some lone wilderness escort them, some desert far away; there you may coddle them and sort them, and watch the blizzard fools lay.—WALT MASON.

Love Your Work.
Do not look on your work as a dull duty. If you choose you can make it interesting. Throw your heart into it, master its meaning, trace out the causes and previous history, consider it in all its bearings, think how many even the humblest labor may benefit, and there is scarcely one of our duties which we may not look to with enthusiasm. You will get to love your work, and if you do it with delight you will do it with ease. Even if at first you find this impossible, if for a time it means mere drudgery, this may be just what you require; it may be good like mountain air to brace up your character.—Lord Avebury.

To Him Who Overcometh.
A good many of the fights in which we overcome in Christ's Name are fought with our basetting sins. These may be laziness, selfishness, lack of confidence in our ability, or weakness of will. We have to fight these things in ourselves. Again we have to fight against other temptations. One may be tempted to use profane words, to say what is not true, to go with bad companions or to do something which the inward monitor-conscience declares to be unsafe, immoral and shameful. To him that overcometh in the battle with temptation the dear Lord will give blessing and reward.

When Mr. Gladstone was travelling once he purchased a beautiful bunch of grapes. At the custom house the officer refused to let the grapes pass, saying that they were dutiable. Gladstone refused to pay, whereupon the custom house officer insisted. Gladstone took them out of the basket and ate every one of them. "Now stop me!" said the "Grand Old Man," triumphantly, as he took his seat in the train bound for Brussels.

Story of the Wireless.

A few minutes before eight on a recent Saturday night a stranger called at Londonberry Postoffice and asked for gold for four £5 Bank of Ireland notes. He explained that he was just leaving for Canada, a tender at the quay, close to the post-office, being timed to start at eight for the liner, which was lying at the mouth of Lough Foyle. The post office clerk courteously took the notes, and handed him in exchange four little piles of gold which were in front of him. Without counting the money the stranger emptied it into the pouch of his emigrant's belt, which he thereupon strapped round his waist and departed.

An hour later, when he came to balance up for the night, the post-office clerk discovered his cash to be £20 short. No amount of checking made any difference; the figures would not come right. Later on in the night he sought the help of a senior official. Together they worked at the problem until three on Sunday morning. It then became clear that what had happened was that the stranger had carried away £45 instead of £20. What was to be done? The clerk did not know the name of the visitor, or even of the ship in which he was a passenger. The ship herself was probably already a hundred miles off the Dn-gal coast on her way to the far west.

It was a case of wireless and Sherlock Holmes to the rescue of a civil servant with £25 at stake. There is a wireless station at Malin Head, the most northerly point in Ireland. Calling up Malin Head, the clerk asked "Wireless" to ascertain the name of the Transatlantic liner which had left Lough Foyle on the night before. Away over the dark ocean went the request for information. Within five minutes the reply was in London derry: "Wireless reports Allan liner"—left Malin at 9.30 last night for Halifax." One point gained.

Nothing further could be done until morning. After breakfast time the postoffice clerk looked up the clerk of the Allan L. Co. Office in Londonderry with the view of getting the man's name. Yes, said the shipping clerk, Y. Sweeney, was the name of the man who carried the notes.

Y. Sweeney, from Canada, carried in his office on his way to the tender. I asked what money he had and he replied, "Some five-pound Irish notes." I said they should be changed for gold otherwise he might have trouble in getting them cashed on the other side, and recommended him to try the post-office for change.

Meanwhile, the Allan liner was rapidly getting outside the radius covered by the wireless installation at Malin Head. "Halloo, Malin Head!" once more was clicked on the telegraph wire from Londonderry. "Call up Allan liner,—and ask the purser to seek out Emigrant Pat Sweeney, from Cavan. Get him to open his belt and return twenty pounds overpaid by mistake."

An anxious half-hour was spent by a Londonderry post-office official and those who shared the knowledge of his threatened loss. Sooner than was thought possible came the response: "Halloo, Derry! Purser has recovered twenty pounds, and will bring it back when the ship returns."

Teachers Organize in West
That 'blood is thicker than water' is exemplified by the formation at Moose Jaw last month of an association to be composed of teachers in Saskatchewan who formerly taught in the Maritime Provinces or who are natives of these provinces. The charter members present at the meeting numbered nearly fifty and as many more are expected to join as soon as the organization campaign is launched.

Maritime Provinces Teachers' Association of Saskatchewan. The idea originated with H. W. Hewitt, a former Nova Scotia teacher and newspaper man now resident in Saskatoon. He sent the "ferry cross" among the teachers gathered at Moose Jaw on the occasion of the annual meeting of the Provincial Educational Association, as when, in the midst of conflicting events, enough had gathered together to make a start, explained his proposition, which was enthusiastically accepted by all present. In quick order organization was completed, the following office bearers being elected: President, H. W. Hewitt, Saskatoon; Vice President for Nova Scotia, Miss Bertha Oxner, Saskatoon; Vice President for New Brunswick, J. M. Nason, Watrous; Vice-President for Prince Edward Island, Miss K. Rowe, Macklin; Secretary-Treasurer, Charles I. Macnab, Saskatoon; Editor in chief of the Association's organ, H. W. Hewitt, Saskatoon.

Once a year the members will meet at the banquet table when old acquaintances will be renewed and new friendships formed. The traditions of the home provinces will be maintained. Means will be taken to keep former and present Maritime teachers in touch with one another, through exchanges of ideas, letters, objects, etc. All will unite to boost the old home, to bring about a better understanding between the east and west, and to give a welcome and correct information to intending new comers. District Associations will be formed.

No Newspaper Man There.
The report of the Nova Scotia Hospital for the past year has been issued, and a journalist commenting upon it says: One of the interesting revelations from a newspaper man's standpoint is the fact that no editor has ever appeared among the list of patients. They have had, however, a long and varied list of ailments, including, among others, laborers and every other class, but out of over 5,700 cases treated during the past sixty years no journalist has ever had to appear for admission to Mount Hope. The fact is one that critics at times would do well to bear in mind. This hospital has had a fine career of usefulness in the past, and all kinds of humanity will hope that its future career will be even more successful in dealing with some of the most serious medical problems of the age. The general record shows that according to population insanity is not on the increase in the province.

There is bread and BREAD
—Because there is a difference in flour Bread is no better than the dough from which it is made, and the dough can be no better than the flour used. A vast army of particular Canadian women always use PURITY FLOUR.

—Because loaves made with PURITY are more nutritious than those they can make with any other flour. PURITY home-made bread contains the blood-enriching, body-building elements of the world's strongest wheat. Order a trial sack of PURITY at your Grocer's. If he does not handle PURITY FLOUR he'll be glad to stock it for you.
