

by the host. Thou . . . with shame . . . the lowest place (Rev. Ver.) humiliated before all the other guests.

10, 11. Sit down in the lowest place (Rev. Ver.); out of true humility, not in the expectation of being promoted. Friend, go up higher. The host calls the guests nearer to himself. Have worship; be honored. Exalted himself . . . abased . . . humbled himself . . . exalted. Not the proud, but the lowly, are worthy of honor in God's sight.

III. JESUS AND THE HOST.—12-14. Jesus now turns to His host, and bids him, when he makes a dinner or a supper, to invite, not those who can repay him, but those who can give nothing in return. Doing this, he will be recompensed (rewarded) at the resurrection; when the just (the righteous) enter into eternal happiness. By his kindness to the needy he will win for himself a share in this joy.

THE LESSON IN LIFE

1. We never read of Jesus refusing an invitation. He is a willing, kindly Guest in all sorts of homes. But we must count on plain speech from Him if we entertain Him. We cannot be comfortable in His presence if we harbor impure or unkindly thoughts and purposes.

2. Goodness is always a winner. Jesus, so gentle and so kind, is more than a match for the mean, suspicious lawyers and Pharisees. As surely as the sun melts the ice in the spring, will purity and truth overcome all opposition. Even the vilest bow to innocency.

3. "Humble we must be, if to heaven we go;
 High is the roof there, but the door is low."

4. At a certain college commencement the name of one brilliant student was read out as the winner of prize after prize. By and by he was missed from his place. He had slipped quietly away from applause of the crowd. He did not seek the chief seat.

5. The bird that sings on highest wing,
 Builds on the ground her lowly nest;
 And she that doth most sweetly sing,
 Sings in the shade when all things rest :
 In lark and nightingale we see
 What honor hath humility.
