

The September Canadian

Special illustrated articles:—

In the Haunts of the Whale—By Sturgeon Stewart, M.A., Ph.D.

The first of two awe-inspiring articles on the Leviathan of the Deep. Dr. Stewart visited the whaling areas of the Pacific and made special and minute observations. The illustrations are particularly illuminative.

Where Grapes and Peaches Grow—By Agnes Deans Cameron

In this article, which is beautifully illustrated, Miss Cameron deals with the significance and picturesqueness of the Ontario fruit industry.

Winnipeg: The Melting Pot—By George Fisher Chipman

Winnipeg has been described from many standpoints, but Mr. Chipman has taken a novel aspect and, as a result, presents a vivid picture of the polyglot population of Winnipeg and its meaning as a community. The article is illustrated with special photographs.

Plays to be Repeated—By John E. Webber

Just as the theatrical season is about to open, Mr. Webber, who writes direct from the heart of the theatrical world in New York, will contribute a consideration of the plays that were a success last season. Beautiful photographs of players and scenes will accompany the article.

There will also be a fine assortment of articles and short stories.
