

The February Number

ROYAL CASTLES IN FRANCE

By ESTELLE M. KERR

Miss Kerr has invested this romantic subject with all the glamour and interest that ever attaches to those venerable piles, which are playing just now so important a part in the progress of the war. She gives vivid pictures, and graphical historical sketches of the chateaux of Blois, Loches, Amboise, Chambord, Chenonceau, etc. The text is illustrated with drawings by the author and others.

A STUDENT DUEL IN GERMANY

By JOHN D. ROBINS

This is an authentic and graphic account of what the author saw and heard during the brutal performance of a duel in Germany. The peculiar etiquette of student life and duelling is set forth, leaving a vivid impression of a monstrous sentiment long rampant among the youth of Germany.

OUR PORTION AT VERSAILLES

By E. MONTIZAMBERT

Here is the touching story of a young French girl who volunteered to tend the graves at Versailles of Canadian soldiers who fell in France. Actual photographs are reproduced, showing the girl working at the flowers amongst the graves.

WINSTON SPENCER CHURCHILL

By HUGH S. EAYRS

An intimate character and biographical sketch of the statesman in England who so recently laid down the gauntlet in the House of Commons. To read the article is to better understand one of the leading personalities in British political life to-day.

A choice selection of short stories, including a fine North Country tale, by John Beames, and a poignant story of the war, by Leslie Floyd.
