

INDIAN AFFAIRS

Mr. Doug Fee (Red Deer): Madam Speaker, it is my honour to present a group of petitions to add to some earlier ones that have been certified correct according to Standing Order 36.

These petitioners recognize that treaty rights entitle Indians to preserve their traditional way of life, including hunting, fishing and gathering, but express concern that completely unregulated hunting interferes with good conservation and sound wildlife management practices.

They ask that this government conclude an agreement with Canada's treaty Indians regarding sound wildlife management practices, including restrictions on native rights to hunt, fish and gather, to personal consumption needs and prohibiting the sale for profit of wildlife meat or parts obtained by treaty rights.

QUESTIONS ON THE ORDER PAPER

(Questions answered orally are indicated by an asterisk.)

Mr. Charles A. Langlois (Parliamentary Secretary to Minister of National Defence): Madam Speaker, Question No. 470 will be answered today.

[Text]

Question No. 470—Mr. Proud:

With respect to the Department of External Affairs and International Trade, (a) how many trade missions does the Government of Canada have abroad (b) where are they located (c) what is the cost of running each one?

Mr. Peter L. McCreath (Parliamentary Secretary to Minister for International Trade): Canada has 105 diplomatic missions abroad of which 103 undertake trade-related activities. Shown below is a list of those missions and the estimated costs apportioned to their trade program. The total of these estimated costs for the 103 missions is $86.5 million.

It should be noted that mission budgets integrate all the program costs associated with the conduct of political relations, public affairs, consular assistance, immigration and social affairs, and trade promotion. In calculating the costs of trade-related activities of a mission, the salary and benefits for Canada-based and locally-engaged trade officers have been added to a prorated share of the mission's over-all budget.
