MARRIAGE BY FORCE

and Justice of Peace. Writing from Kansas City, a kind reader sends a clipping from the Kansas in localities contiguous to the cave gentlemen of their respective choice, with the expectation of capture. However, all this is beside the point, and is put in here only to fill space. The main question is, did the Texan who used his pistol as a substitute for Cupid's little bow and arrow commit a casus belli between Missouri and Texas? We opine not. Marriage is an earthly state.

We have scriptural authority for the Texan Gets Wife by Overawing Woman reader sends a clipping from the Kansas City Journal, which speaks harshly of an alleged Texan, who is alleged to have married a Kansas City lady by using a pistol to compel her consent, and the same pistol to compel the lawful authority to perform the ceremony. In other words, it is declared that the Texan in question got himself a wife by overawing her and a justice of the peace by flourishing a gun and threatening to shoot.

That is no way to court a girl, and a very improper way to impress a justice of the peace. The method harks back to the era of the cave men, who used to get married by lying in wait for a female of the species, grabbing her while she wasn't looking, and dragging her home by the hair. That was too rough, but the cave men were not hep to the refinements which obtain today. And the cave women, it should be remarked, were so used to that style of address by gentlemen that they made no great outcry when selzed by an eligible party—indeed, it is whispered in the footnotes of history that the cave laddes made a practice of picking huckleberires or cracking hickory nuts

TEDDY POSSUM VISITS FARMER JONES' HEN-ROOST.

TEDDY POSSUM VISITS FARMER JONES' HEN-ROOST.

One dark night Teddy Possum called on Bobby Skunk. These two hunters talked about the weather, and the "long dry spell," and Teddy asked Bobby Skunk, "What do you say about visiting Farmer Jones' hen-roost tonight? Don't you think, on this dark night, we could slip into the hen-roost and fool that dog Ranger?"

"Why, of course, we'll go. I supposed you called on me tonight for that very purpose. We can puzzle that fool dog Ranger, all right." And the two famous hunters started on their midnight the little Winding Path, and he ambied along quite fast, for he was very hungry for his supper. "Oh, come along. Bobby Skunk" "Teddy Possum, "Gome on, Teddy! Called out Teddy Possum, "don't be such a slow-poke; for you stop to tear such a slow-poke; for you can find." "Now, look here, Teddy Possum, "don't be such a slow-poke; for you can find." "Now look here, Teddy Possum, "Teddy." "One, two, three—now for a race!" And you never saw so many ince fresh eggs disappear so quickly.

They met quite a number of hunters and who was sitting beside a little spring among the ferns, washing his supper. You washing every bit of food before he will take a bite. Ans.—It might seem rather "previous" to give a party to these new friends, who, I presume, have not entertained you, as yet. Would advise biding a wee until you are better established as a class member. Perhaps some opportunity may arise of offering your home as a meeting place for a class committee, concert practice, or something of the sort. You could then serve light refreshments and have music, and perhaps in this way become better acquainted with your new friends.

Your whip dessert sounds very nice for these hot days and would be quickly made.

So with the appies—they might keep, but again, they mightn't. Personally, I should be afraid to risk the waste of time, labor and sealers, but it will give me much pleasure to hear from some of our experienced canners on the subject.

And now we're speaking of canning, has anyone fallen into the way of using salicylic acid to keep canned fruit? We hear but little about it, yet some folks say it is harmless and extensively used by the canners. I remember one reader some time ago stating that she used this acid (just a little on top of the jarful) in canning tomatoes. Now sisters of the fruit kettle and stirring spoon, speak

DAY, AUGUST 18, 1918. ONE GOLDEN TEXT SUGGESTION. (By Rev. T. S. Linscott, D.D.)

Here is Silverlocks.

Dear Miss Grey.—I have never ventured to write to the page before, but now I come to trouble you. I would like very much to have the stocking foot pattern if you would be kind enough to send it to my address. I would also like to know if any of the readers have had any experience in painting linoleum after the pattern has worn off. Hoping to see this in print. I remain.

THE HILLS OF CIVIGNON

The hills are white, but not with snow They are as pale in summer time. For herb nor grass may never grow Upon their slopes of lime. Within the circle of the hills
A ring, all-flow'ring in a round,
An orchard-ring of almond fills
The plot of stony ground.

O white, austere, ideal place,
Where only few will care to come,
Where spring hath lost the waving
grace,
She wears for us at home.

Fain would I sit and watch for hours The holy whiteness of thy hills; Their wreath of pale, auroral flowers. Their peace the silence fills.

A place of secret peace are thou Such peace as in an hour of pain; ne moment fills the stricken heart, And never comes again. The true secret of physical beauty to be born pretty.
