MY HEART AND MY HUSBAND ADELE GARRISON'S NEW PHASE OF REVELATIONS OF A WIFE

What Her Father Told Madge On the Day of Their Mysterious Celebration. I have never seen my father in hap-der mood than he was during our "day with me?" words of Praise. Words of Praise. on Broadway"—as he laughingly dubbed our outing—although more than half of our time was spent on other streets than the famous thoroughfare. He had been so long a semi-invalid, shut away from the things he koved, that he was like a boy let loose in his enjoyment of the pleasures so long denied him.

One thing I noted with uneasiness, and that was his layish expenditure of eyelasnes.

Words of Praise.

He was pathetic in his whimsicality. I felt a lump in my throat as I answered him.

"I agree that I have the dearest father in the world, and that he ought to be allowed to do anything that he wishes."

I retorted gayly, albeit with smarting eyelasnes.

Gentle soasy Waseline ... 1½ ounce Gentle massage with a sterilized piece of absorbent cotton or chamois, followed by the application of a little paste made up with the following will help your blackheads:

Fullers earth ... 4 drams Vinegar ... 3 drams One thing I noted with uneasiness, and that was his lavish expenditure of money. Knowing, as I did, that his income had been reduced to a meagre sum by his South American losses, I realized that he must be spending in this one day all the small savings he had managed by much scrimping to put by during the year. But there was a dignify, an authority in his manner that effectually kept me from remonstrating with him, or, indeed, even hinting my dismay.

Luncheon, a culinary poem, the matinee, where we had a box to ourselves, even the orchids which he purchased and insisted upon my wearing as boyish as if he were 19, and I his first sweetheart—all sounded the same lavish note. It wasn't until the sweets course of our dinner in one of the most ornate and expensive of the Broadway eating paiaces, that he explained his reference to "celebrating".

I retorted gayly, albeit with smarting eyelasnes.

"Thank you." The words were low but full of meaning. "I wonder if you can ever guess how proud I have been of your all those lean months, when you've so bravely put your shoulder to the wheel to help out the family finances. But, thank goodness, the mecessity for that is over and done with. I am not a rich man, dearest, not even as well situated as I was before, but at least I have enough so that you will not have to do anything to earn even your own pin money after this. Of course, I honor your decision to keep on with your teaching because you had given your word to do so, but when your contract is ended there will be no levels to the lating pair of the wheel to help out the family finances. But, thank goodness, the finances are finances. But, the wheel to help out the family finances. But, thank goodness, the finances. But, the wheel to help out
