"The Beauty Spot."

The seat sale for Jefferson De Angelis in "The Beauty Spot," sopens at the Royal Alexandra. Theatro this morning. The evening prices for this attraction will run from twenty-five cents to one dollar and a half while both matinees will have one dollar for the top price. "The Beauty Spot," is one of the most pretentious musical productions that will be seen in Teacher this season, and it is identically ronto this season, and it is identically the same as it was during its cun of over six months at the Herald Square Theatre in New York City.

A feature of the production will be the chorus, whose members are said to be the most beautiful stage women ever seen in Toronto.

"Ben Hur." "Ben-Hur," the dramatization of the late General Wallace's famous novel of the same name, since its original production in New York City in the tumn of 1899, has maintained its sition as the greatest achievement of the spectacular drama, and has evolved into the present elaborated version which is on a scale of unparalleled nagnificence. Each scene as it unolds becomes more massive than the ne before until a great climax is eached in the charlot race and the animated pageant of the entry into Jerssalem. "Ben-Hur" has won the esteem of millions of theatregoers and is an entertainment to which people go again and again. All classes are patrons, and many persons whose nclinations are such that theatre-gong is not a usual pastime with them rn with pleasure and eagerness to
