Without U. Shocker

NEW YORK. July 24.—The Yankee pitchers are going so well that Bill Donovan will not have to recall Urban Shocker from Toronto.

"If the Yankees can get an even break during this western trip I think we will win the pennant," said Bill Donovan just before his club started on its second western trip. Bill figures that if the team can stick around the front for the next fortnight he will have Baker, Maisel and Cullop back by the time the club returns to the Polo Grounds on Aug. 12, and with these men in harness again he thinks the club can start a drive which will get it into the world's scries.

drive which will get it into the world's scries.

Judging by last week's work, the Yanks have nothing to worry about, for despite the fact that Baker, the team's big punch, has been missing, the team's long punch, has been missing, the team's long two out of seven games, winning two out of three from Detroit and three out of four from St. Louis. The last time Baker and Peck were laid up, and the team playing with Bauman at third and Boone at short, the Yanks won five straight games with the new combination.

The Yanks are scheduled to play eighteen games while they are on the road, four each in Chicago, Detroit and Cleveland and six in St. Louis. Outside of the Mound City there are no double-headers.

Williams and Gordon are as eccentric as they are said to be, and provide much amusement with some of their jokes on politicians. They have some very good parodies on the latest musical hits. Lillian Calvert is a comedienne who draws her applause in a somewhat new way, while Eldridge and Barlow create a little amusement with a country skit called "The Law."

In the Old Country C.C. game on Saturday against the Western Ontario League Club at Brantford the home team put into the field their strongest men. Brantford won the toss and elected to bat first on a well-prepared and perfect wicket. All day long the heat was very great, and the players had to take refuge in the shade on several occasions. The Old Country C.C. renewed past traditions, especially in the field, T. R. Barford making two good catches. The visiting captain sterted Old Country C.C.'s innings with T. R. Smith and A.
