THE RUSTY COAT APPLE

(By Peter McArthur.)
Having observed that many modern apple-lovers appear to be guided either by the labels on the boxes and barrels and having commented on the fact with considerable scorn I am now moved to make a confession. The names of apples do seem to make a difference. If anyone comes along and asked me if I would like a "Rustycat" apple I would sit up and take notice at once. I have not been offered a "Rustycat" since I was a boy in school and in that golden age they were not offered freely but in the way of trade. I remember seeing one of these peerless apples sell for a stub of lead pencil with a "cartridge" on it, a soft slate pencil that never scratched and a copper harness rivet without a washer. I am not telling whether I was buying or selling when this transaction took place, but I assert with confidence that the apple was well worth this outlay of boy treasure. Along in February, when the last apples were being opened, the "Rustycats" were the best. The boy who had had access to a bag taken from the pit lacked neither friends nor admirers. If he responded with alacrity to the plea "Gimme a bite!" he was nothing short of a hero for to share a "Rustycat" with a friend showed a high quality of self-denial.

O yes, I know that the old-time "Rustycat" was nothing more or less than the Golden Russet of today, but the name does not make the same appeal. The Golden Russets are still our best. I have a tendency to get a trifle tough if not properly stored or pit. In their season they are equal to the best for eating from the hand and I am assured by competent cooks that for baking they are unrivalled. They are also first-class for pies and apple sauce and cider made from them is the best I eat. I must admit that I am able to speak of their cider quality only from hearsay, for I have never tasted any. I have seen it made and judging by the stinginess of the farmer who was having it made, the cider must be prime. Last fall I was in the line at a cider mill with a load of apples and a farmer who was right ahead of me had a load of "Rustycats." When his cider was being pressed he drove away all the boys who were standing around with dippers and acted so mean that I did not ask him for a taste. But it certainly looked good and I have no doubt tasted as good as it looked.

Last winter we kept our "Rustycats" in a new way—at least it was new for us. I put the barrel in a corner of the drive-shed and buried it in clover hay, putting the hay about five feet deep on every side and on the top. When I took it out in February it was unharmed by frost and the apples were as plump and sound as when packed and they were ripened to the minute. There was not a leathery one in the barrel. With a book of pioneer reminiscences to read and a plateful of "Rustycats" at my elbow, I spent several long and happy evenings before the persistent raids of the children brought us to the bottom of the barrel. I incline to think that Hawthorne was right when he said: "I suppose I am like a Russet—a great deal better, the longer I can be kept." I also want to add that in my case at least they are also a shade better if called "Rustycats."

I am glad to learn that a great many "Rustycats" are being put into storage this year, both in the maritime provinces and Ontario. When the other more perishable varieties are used we can have them to prolong the apple-eating season. Be sure to provide yourself with a barrel and when they are properly ripened you can have much happiness if you "Roll them to the Kiddies."

THE Real Test of Value Publishers of magazines and periodicals of a general nature are frequent newspaper advertisers.

They recognize the daily newspaper as the medium to use when they want to make actual sales of their product.

Announcements in the newspapers send people to the stands to buy the publications.

In just the same way the advertising of any National product in the newspapers sends customers to the local retailers to make actual purchases.

Of all forms of advertising none equals the newspaper for making sales.

After all that is the real test of advertising value—don't you think?
