IMPURITIES OF THE BLOOD !

For we step from the oradie into the bier, And a careless world goes on the same. Hours of gladness and hours of sorrow. oes it matter to us tomorrow Truth of leve, or vow of friend-

Tender caresses or cruel sneers-What do they matter to us in the end? For the brief day dies, and the long nears. Passionate kisses, or tears of gall, The grave will open and cover them all.

Homeless vagrant, or honored guest, Poor and humble, or rich and great, All are racked with the world's unrest All must meet with the common fate. Life from childhoed till we are old, What is all when all is told?

-Utica Herald, THE SILENT AZTEC.

JOAQUIN MILLER.

The silence of dead centuries That lie entombed on yonder hills, Is his. These dreamful poppy seas Wave on; he lists ! His silence fills The land. He leans, as if he heard God speak through some still gorgeous

His babes about; the golden morn Strikes godlike on yon holy hill; His wife and daughter grinding corn "Two women grinding at a mill." Oh mystery ! Yon sun of old Was god, was god and ample gold.

Yon golden hills had flocks of snow; These valley fields had fair increase, He saw his white sails fill and blow By poppy isles in flowery seas. The wood dove sang for him his loves, His harshest note the soft wood dove's,

The Spaniard's hand is laid upon His fields, his flocks, hard, fast and tight, But oh ! this glorious golden dawn, The golden doors that close at night. His gold-hued babes, her russet breast, Are his ! The world may have the rest. —The Independent.

THE MINISTERING HAND.

Across the fields I saw her go, A fair young maid of motion fleet; The falling petals' drifted snow From pale white blossoms grazed her feet.

The morning breeze was fresh and clear, The blue sky crowned a perfect day, While that fine chorus filled the ear, Which makes the orchestra of May.

So rosy-cheeked, so young and fair, Her steps I noticed long and well, And found they took her quickly, where A suffering household chanced to dwell.

She bore within her basket's space, Dainties and food for those in need; And all the sweetness of her face, I saw reflected in her deed.

She lifted up the hearts struck down By lifelong sorrow and despair, And by her presence, shed around Their humble home her love and care,

She did not seem to make a task Of what befell so fair and free; But nothing more could crushed hearts ask, Than her most welcome ministry.

Oh, there is beauty in the spring, And strange delight in summer days— But oh, what joy one hand can bring When touched by love's transcendant grace.

The celebrated English agriculturist, the late ance sheet; and after all he never did so until his estate was not in a condition to pay twenty shillings in the pound. For experimental farming in Ontario better results are claimed. In the Ontario Experimental Form Bulletin, we ad that from "Ivrestock breeding, with eight distinct breeds of cattle, there has been real-ized a head profit of $120, or one-half more than the cost of producing." The actual cost of producing a thoroughbred bull up to eight is put down at $90, and $15 less for a heifer. The cost of rearing a ram is put down at $18 and of ewes at $4 less. The prices obtained for bulls have been $235 each; for heifers $167; for rams $22 and for ewes $21.
