Kronstadt Authorities Could Find No Executioner and Had to Shoot Prisoners Condemned to Death

LONDON, Nov. 5.—The fimes' corespondent at St. Petersburg cables as follows: Fourteen persons, including two girls, who were executed at Cron-stadt this week, had to be shot because no hangman was procurable. Convicts declined the task, even for the promise of a free pardon and money. The two girls attended the university extension classes at St. Petersburg and their comrades today insisted on a suspension of studies as a sign of mourning.
