In military circles the queen's birthday was kept on Wednesday. The only display was the prade at the citadel and the feu-de-jole. The old time review on the common, most popular with everyone, has been done away with, and a ten minutes gathering in the citadel has taken its place. A number of people met on the ramparts to see the slow and lancheon parties afterwards were the evider of the day. A parade and review on the common of the dombined imperial and local sorces seems to be the fitting and orthodor massifier in which to celebrate the birthday of the gracious majesty. Pitylit is, it could not be rene wed.

May and June weddings are few this year.  Usually at this time there is a large crop to chronicle. Mass Unlacke's wedding will not be till July, when the Royal Military college closes, so that her brother may act as best man.

May 27.—Considerable speculation has been going on for some time past regarding the movements of the band whether they were to favor the public as heretofore with their ever welcome series of concerts on the quare. It has at last been announced as a settled fact that they will begin their concerts at a very early date, which means good music and a pleasant promenade for everyone in general. On Friday evening they will give one of their ever popular concerts in the Opera house and are to be assisted by the Webb quartette of Sackville.

A., headed by the Springhill band also marched around town and halted in front of Mr. M. D. Pride's residence, the band playing a lively tune in honor of the Amherst boot and shoe factory.
