PLEASANT HOME TREATMENT FOR CANCER.

Dr. Mason's method of treating cancers and tumors without knife or plaster is mple and plainly explained in a small amphiet, which we send free to all who ask for it.

There are some cases of cancer so far advanced that no human power can cure them. Other cases yield rapidly to the invigorating and purifying influences of this truly marvelous method of freatment. If you desire to know which class of cancer you have, send 6 cents for symptom blank and we will then get Dr. Mason's advice for you free of all charges.

Dr. Mason has probably treated more cases of cancers and tumors than any physician on this continent, and his advice should be valuable to you. One thing is sure, his advice will cost you nothing, and he will be frank with you if he considers your case hopeless. He only advises the use of this treatment when he has reason to believe the patient will receive satisfactory results and be able to recommend it to triends and neighbors.

He often suggests simple means for relieving the pain and making life more comfortable to those who are incurable, but these suggestions are free of all cost, and no one need feel under any obligation to use Dr. Mason's treatment, unless they think it is suited to their case after getting full particulars and hearing what it has done for others. Write us it you want more information.

Jones., Cor. 27,—The sacred concert given in the central methodist church on Wednesday evening in aid of the sufferers by the Windsor fire, was most successful, the net proceeds being something over a hundred dollars. The church was comfortably filled, and the programme rendered in every way excellent, the choirs from central methodist, Wesley, Memorial, presbyt rian. St. George's, first baptist and reformed episcopal churches all being represented, while the citizen's band added greatly to the succes of the concert, by their well chosen selections. The first number on the programme was an organ solo by Mr. F. H. Blair, organist of St. John's presbyterian church followed by the chorus "Radiant Mora" by the choir. A selection by the Citizen's band was followed by a solo by Mrs. Grant Hall, "Palms," which was well received. Mr. Blair then played a Fugue and Fantasia by Luz, in grand style. "Egypt's Bondage" overture by the band, was the next number on the programme, after which Mr. W. H. Watts, with an appropriateness very touching ander the circumstances gave a beau 'fini rendering of "Home Sweet Home" on the organ. The next number was the chorus "There is a Holy City." with solos by Mrs. Dernier, and Mrs. W. H. Watts, organ selection "The Storm" by Mr. F. H. Blair, solo by Mr. Harry Twigger, chorus "Praise Ye," and "Got Save the Queen." by the band. Mr. Watts who filled the difficult post of accompanist and leader of the choruses, is entitled to great credit for his energetic action in organising the concert at such short notice. Mr. J. H. The funeral of the l-te Miss Charlotte Crossman who died in Boston last Taursday took place on Sunday afternoon, from the residence of her father, Mr. Edward Crossman, High street, and was largely attended. The floral tributes were numerous and beautiful evincing the affectionate esteem in which the deceased young lady was held. Amongst them was a very beautiful star, from the teachers of Victoria school, where Miss Crossman had been a teacher, and a wreath from the baptist Young People's Union, of which the deceased had been a member. The services at the house and grave were conducted by Rev. W. B. Hinson, and were most impressive. The pall bearers were, Messrs. Ernest Hagerty, Philo Fryers, Newton Hsrvey, August Moller, ira Boomer and John Mcafee.

It will be remembered that Miss Crossman who had been on the public school teaching staff both in Harcourt Kent county, and in Albert county as well as in Moncton went to Boston some five months ago for medical treatment having contracted ing trouble from a severe cold, but failed to derive any benefit from he change death resulting quite suddenly at the last. She was a young lady of singularly amiable and lovesble disposition, and her early death will be regretted by hosts of friends to whom her many estimable qualities had endearded her.

On Wednesday, evening Mr. George A Boardman's home, was the scene of a pretty wedding, when his charming and popular granddaughter M iss Ida Frances Boardman, daughter of Mr. Charles A Boardman, of Calais, was united in marriage to Mr. Clement Hall Soule of New York. There were no bridesmalds, but Miss Dorothy Dexter made a sweet little maid of honor, and gracefully carried the bride's bouquet. The bride, who is a petite brunette, was particularly lovely in a white brocaded silk ohifon and violets anglais. The floral decorations were much admired, and the bride was the recipient of numerous and valuable gifts. Upon their return from their wedding tour, Mr. and Mrs. Soule will reside at Passiac, New Jersey.

Henry of Orleans, has given of a banquet which he attended.

It was the day after the great Abyssinian festival of St. Raguel, and the prince and his suite were invited to dine with the Ne-gus at the palace, Menelik sat on a raised platform above his guests, who were served somewhat in the European manner,—which was a discordant note, out of harmony with the mediæval surroundings—with various kinds of food and with hydromel, - a wine of honey, -and araki, another Abyssinian beverage.

But this meal was only a prelude to the real Homeric scene. After the king and his European guests had eaten, a curtain of rude tapestry was drawn, disclosing the main part of the king's hall; then the Europeans saw a strange and antique spectacle —all the king's officers, even the subalterns entering to partake of a feast to be offered them in real Abyssinian fashion.

They marched in in groups, clad in their barbsrous military attire—swarthy and most picturesque warriors, who seemed to be issuing from the midst of a solemn antiquity. They formed in circles about a great number of hampers containing cakes of gingera's—an Abyssinian food. This they did without any form of salutation to the Negus, whose guests the officers now were; this abstention from a salute to the qost was also an Abyssinian custom, which Prince Henry notes as a curious one.

The king's musicians blew a long blast on their trumpets, and the guests sat down.

And now really Homeric viands were And now really Homeric viands were brought in—great quarters of beef roasted whole, and similiar quarters of mutton. The servants who brought them held them aloft with the sticks on which they were impaled, and the guests, drawing long and short knives, cut of pieces, and proceeded to eat them; at the same time large cups made of the borns of cattle were passed around and filled with hydromel for each guest.

around and filled with hydromel for each guest.

'I could have believed myself,' says Prince Henry, 'back in the days of Homer; I seemed to see the companions of Achilles dismembering an ox under the walls of Troy. Soon, to complete the illusion, two bards appeared, bearing great lozengeshaped guitars, and leaning against the central green-painted wooden pillars of the hall, their heads thrown back, they improvised wild songs of war and love to divert the company.
