

The Semi-Weekly Telegraph.

Vol. XLII

ST. JOHN, N. B., WEDNESDAY, JUNE 29, 1904. —TWELVE PAGES.

NO. 80.

A GLORIOUS WELCOME FOR CHAMPLAIN II., AT THE SPOT WHERE LOYALISTS FIRST SET FOOT.

Most Picturesque Scene as L'Acadie Came Up Harbor Under Gaze of Thousands of Citizens and Fighting Men of Three Nations.

The Agent book of aster in graphy the y doub circs at a work guar. R. J. Stone Discovered at last, and Champlain's responsible. Under a sky of fairest blue and hearing the plaudits of a multitude, he and his smart company of gentlemen adventurers have made the discovery of their lives. They have with naive pomp claimed the soil of Market square and incidentally all the region within sight for their royal master, and even deigned to tarry by the mouth of the new-found stream that en-

T. T. LANTULUM, Rear Commodore of the R. K. Y. C., Who Gave an Excellent Representation of Champlain.

And then the red men! What more natural than them to dance a welcome to the august strangers. But do not think that the Indians waited until the explorer had to manifest their sentiments. When they saw the white man's plumed hat, and with a warlike shout they came forward to meet him. Champlain and his officers were surrounded by a dense throng of Indians, who were shouting and waving their spears and bows.

And then the red men! What more natural than them to dance a welcome to the august strangers. But do not think that the Indians waited until the explorer had to manifest their sentiments. When they saw the white man's plumed hat, and with a warlike shout they came forward to meet him. Champlain and his officers were surrounded by a dense throng of Indians, who were shouting and waving their spears and bows.

THE SCENE IN THE MARKET SLIP JUST BEFORE THE LANDING.

FREDK. HEANS, Who Represented Captain Timothee of the Champlain Birk.

As the small wanderer from the shores of La Belle France came slowly up the harbor the savages peered from around Navy Island, then in pairs and singly canoes darted across the sunlit waters. Was it war or peace—the scaling knife or the pipe of tranquility? What could they look. They clambered on board and white and red hands clasped in deathless friendship. Unquestionably Champlain was monarch of all he surveyed Friday. His unconquerable soul could not have wished for more recognition. He discovered something else besides a virgin empire. He discovered a city's hearty admiration for a most appropriate ceremony, remarkably well carried out. In many respects Friday was one of the most notable in the history of the city. From a spectacular point of view it will be difficult to recall any recent equaling in magnitude Friday's commemoration. Every feature passed off as if many times rehearsed. There was smoothness and utter absence of misunderstanding or confusion. The afternoon's sports entertained a large number, the unveiling of the Champlain tablet was a notable event and the parade of firemen and the harbor procession in the evening made a fitting consummation to a day to be remembered. The weather was ideal. Every feature of the day was heartily enjoyed. From first seen on the harbor until the last weary firemen walked home at midnight, the crowds were keen to witness and make comment. The latter was in practically every instance complimentary. The landing of Champlain, the unveiling of the monument, the military parade, the afternoon's sports, the unveiling of the tablet in the new library, the firemen's parade, and harbor illumination—all the demonstrations could not have been better carried out.

W. H. HARRISON, Mr. Harrison Was Poutincoeur in Friday's Proceedings.

used the canoes separated and the waters of the slip were covered with the small craft. The progress of the ship up the slip was rather deliberate but quite becoming a vessel of an antique type. Champlain and his company were plainly discernible on the high poop deck. Just before the ship made the slip the Indians swarmed from Navy Island and to those lining the water front the meeting between the aborigines and the explorers was very entertaining. It looked as if blood might be shed. The Indians, as they paddled vigorously out to meet the ship, appeared to fill the bosoms of

THE INDIANS WHO GREETED THE BOLD NAVIGATORS.

Honor Done New Brunswickers Who Fell in South Africa--Statue Unveiled in River View Park With Elaborate Ceremonies.

the French with something of akin to consternation. A cannon was fired, but the red men were undismayed. The explorers' tactics changed. Even in view of a flight of arrows from the advancing canoes the French refrained from further warlike measures. They knelt on deck and made signs of peace. The chiefs were invited on board and ere long all thought of strife was put away.

The Landing. It was at this point that the entrance

St. John Man in the Character of Sieur de Monts Friday.

Geo. Blizard, R. C. Carson, H. C. Chase, H. E. Clarke, Ralph Clarke, J. P. Carleton, E. Clawson, Hal Clawson, D. Clinch, W. J. Coates, J. Currie, F. D. Collins, J. Desbrisay, F. Dunlop, Harry Ervin, A. R. Everett, Robert Elliott, J. Fleming, A. Fraser, Rowland Frish, Walter Fairweather, Lee Fowler, Chester Gandy, Deane Gandy, F. E. Hanington, D. Hasson, C. P. Holden, Percy Howard, Bernard Holder, F. P. Johnston, Samuel Johnston, H. Kierstead, F. A. Kinneer, George P. Kirk, F. M. Keator, W. J. Kirk, D. Ledington, Pollard Lewis, Fred Lawson, Ernest March, William Murray, Tynell Masters, E. Mooney, Eric McNeill, Chief Jim Paul, Shirley Peters, Jack Porter, William Pugsley, George Robertson, William Rising, Aubrey Schofield, John E. Sayre, W. A. Smith, Jack Spence, Goldwin Stockton, Charles Saunders, Harvey Tapley, A. Tapley, Andrew Tutts, Heber Vroom.

CHAMPLAIN'S SHIP COMING UP THE HARBOR.