CANADIANS IN LIVERPOOL.

Great Scene on 'Change—A Pathetic Incident.

(Liverpool Paper.)

To-day a representative party of Canadians, invalided and returning from the seat of war in South Africa, were received and entertained at the Town Hall by the Lord Mayor (Mr.
Crosby). The men were received in the splendid crypt abutting on the Council chamber, where they were introduced to his lordship and the Lady Mayoress. Captain Strachan, chief embarkation officer of Liverpool, was present, as also Captain Findlay, of the "Buffs," who had come from Shortcliffe in charge. Among the Canadians was one who had been shot through the temple, and who had been rendered blind in consequence. When he was led into the Town Hall, and afterwards on 'Change to view the two kind companions, much sympathy was shown for the great misfortune which had overtaken him, and rousing cheers were given.

When the men had all assembled they were regaled with champagne and light refreshments.

The Lord Mayor, who was accompanied by the Lady Mayoress and other ladies, addressed them as follows:

"Captain Strachan, Lieutenant Findlay, Canadian Volunteers, and other countrymen.—It is with very great pleasure I welcome you to Liverpool and this Town Hall. I understand it is the first visit you have paid, most, if not all, of you, and I am sorry that you have not much longer time to see through our city, but I hope you will take back some pleasing remembrances of the second city of the Empire. I believe some of you took part in that noble battle of Paar-delberg, and that others reached so far north as Pretoria. You will take back with you remembrances of this eventful journey, and I assure you that Liverpool does not lightly value the services which you have rendered to our country, and I feel sure you will receive a most hearty welcome when you return back to your own country. If the Queen or the ruling Sovereign of this great country should ever require help other than she is able to provide, I am sure that none will be readier to respond to the call than the men in Canada."

The Lord Mayor then toasted the health of the Queen, which was received most heartily and with deafening cheers. On the call of Captain Strachan, he complimented the Canadians on their great ability and usefulness in the war. The Lord Mayor's health and that of the Lady Mayoress were cordially drunk, and the men then proceeded to the Exchange newsroom.

Speech From a Blind Soldier.
After leaving the Town Hall, the Canadians marched across the Exchange Flage, which was crowded with people cheering vociferously, to the Exchange New room. Here a great ovation awaited them from the commercial and their clerks, who had flocked from all the four corners of the Exchange.

The soldiers were then taken upstairs to the balcony, and some speechmaking followed.

Mr. G. R. Sandbach, chairman of the Exchange Newsroom, bespoke a heartily welcome for their Canadian soldiers, who had gone from one end of the empire to the other to fight for their Queen (hear, hear). He asked the men of Liverpool to shower upon them the heartiest of welcomes, so that they might know when they returned to their own country how much the people of Liverpool appreciated their services (hear, hear, and applause).

Mr. William Adam on here announced that they would have a few words in reply from one of the soldiers, who had entirely lost his sight while fighting for the Queen and empire (great applause).

Private Molloy, Royal Canadian Mounted Infantry, a young fellow—an ex-student of one of the Canadian Universities—whose face was a wonderfully intelligent one, but whose terrible affliction was made evident by pair of dark blue glasses (which he wore, was guided gently to the front of the balcony, and from here he addressed the sea of up-turned faces.
The scene was at this time a wonderfully striking and pathetic one.

The blind soldier spoke, in the clearest of accents, as follows:

Gentlemen,—I am glad that I have had the privilege of speaking to a portion of the people of our British Empire. I am not a Regular soldier.
A year ago I was a student, studying, and ought now to have been in the University there. When Canada was called upon to send out men, she did not send her corner-boys, but she sent the best men she had, I believe (hear, hear), and I don't know how it came about, but I happened to be among the crowd (laughter and applause). I suppose I came because I couldn't stay away (hear, hear). I allow no regrets for the past (hear, hear).
First, if we decide that a course is a right one, and we pursue that right course, we have no business to regret the further consequences (hear, hear, and applause). Of course, it looks rather unfortunate to find one's hopes, ambitions and aspirations all come down with a smash, sudden and irreparable, but there are conditions which alter circumstances to a certain extent, and I believe that the truly brave man, the truly brave soldier, will accept with manly fortitude the vicissitudes of fortune, and not be overwhelmed by any circumstances, but will still, with a calm heart and a serene mind, go bravely onward (hear, hear, and loud applause). I thank you very much on behalf of the Canadian soldiers for the reception you have given us. I won't take up your time any longer, except for our beloved Queen, whom we love as well as you do (hear, hear).

The rafters of the newsroom rang again as the cheers for her Gracious Majesty were given.

The vast audience then commenced singing "For he's a jolly Good Fellow," and afterwards cried "Three, cheers for the Canadians!"

This terminated the proceedings, and the Canadians marched back across the Exchange and down Water street towards the steamer, crowds of people following them the whole distance.
Private Molloy led the procession with an alert, soldier-like step, guided by one of his companions. His appearance created general attention.
