

Canada's World's Champion

"MAY ECHO SYLVIA," the holder of six world's champion milk and butter records, also smashed all previous "price records" for a cow's progeny. Her six months' old bull calf sold at auction in Milwaukee, Wis., June 7, 1919, for $106,000—twice the previous high record price.

The owner of this wonderful cow, Arthur C. Hardy, of Avondale Farms, Brockville, Ont., feeds and endorses SCHUMACHER FEED. If you want to get the best results possible from your herd—if you want to increase your milk profits, you can do it by feeding as the carbohydrate or maintenance part of your ration in connection with any good high protein concentrates you prefer.

SCHUMACHER FEED is a uniform, scientific mixture composed principally of a mixture of specially selected by-products of Corn, Oats, Wheat, Barley and Linseed Meal correctly balanced, finely ground and kiln dried.

For almost half a century SCHUMACHER FEED has been giving the most satisfactory results as the maintenance or condition-sustaining part of a dairy ration, as well as a complete feed for dry cows, young stock, horses and hogs. The fact that it has had a very important part in the making of the records of 36 World's Champion cows is proof that it is actually giving dairymen the results desired—also that it is the profitable and result-producing feed for you to feed to your cows. Ask your dealer for SCHUMACHER FEED. If he can't supply you, write us.

In a letter from Mr. Hardy's farm manager, Brockville, Ont., we quote the following: "In regard to the ration fed to our great cow, MAY ECHO SYLVIA, up to about the time her record began she, with the rest of the herd, was fed a mixture of Schumacher Feed, Bran, Gluten Feed and Oil Meal—nearly half the ration being Schumacher Feed. Have also used this ration for making some of our other large records."

Good Manners as an Investment.

EDITOR "THE FARMER'S ADVOCATE":

We all like the person who is natural in his manner and free from affectation. Good manners come of refined home life. A man lifts his hat and the grace of movement shows that generations of culture, refinement and grace are back of it; another lifts his hat and shows to you that he only lately began the habit. Good manners are an inheritance. We become like those with whom we associate. To learn good manners we must frequent the society of the well bred. It has been said that, "the best passport to society a young man can have, next to a clean character, is the possession of fine manners."

Consideration for others is the basis of all true courtesy. It is ill-bred to block the sidewalk or speak in a loud, boisterous manner. Scraping the feet and slouching along the walk is boorish and indicates the person is not used to wearing boots. Talking or whispering while one is at the piano or speaking is a breach of good manners. Hissing, hooting, whistling, clapping and stamping the feet are only done by bores, and are altogether out of place at an entertainment, neither do well-bred people eat candy, peanuts or chew gum at any public place.

Girls should never forget to thank the man audibly who offers her his seat in a public conveyance. Be quick to say, "I thank you," to the person who picks up any article you may have dropped and restores it to you.

Boys should not stand with their hands in their pockets. That boy is never ready if anything turns up. Keep your coat buttoned. Do not gather in groups on the street or in other public places and stare and make remarks at passersby.

A polite boy is always polite to his mother, and if he walks with her will carry her parcels. If he meets her he takes off his hat to her. Always remove your hat as soon as you go into the school building, church, theatre, home or any other building. Do not put it on again till you are leaving.

Do not pass in front of another unless absolutely necessary. And say "Excuse me, please," when you must. Always say "Thank you" when receiving a favor.

Be kind to the unfortunate, never tease or torment a foolish child, and never laugh at another's deformity. Never mention a person's deformity. Try to have him forget it. Do not be curious. Never peer through windows and doors where meetings are being held, and never look over another's shoulder to see what he is reading or writing. Learn to open and close doors noiselessly. Move your chair quietly, and do not tilt back in it when seated. Always knock at the door of a private room, and do not enter till invited to do so.

Address your teacher by his own name, never teacher. Say, "Good morning, Mr. Black," and always remember, that a bald "yes" or "no" to persons older than yourself is discourteous. Make it softer by the addition of some other word or words; as, "no, mother," "yes, Mrs. Brown."

It is a nice practice to say "good morning," to the members of your family as you see them, and also to bid them "good-night." When you ask for anything at table, say "if you please," or "Father, I should like some more butter, if you please." These little courtesies are beautiful and help to make home the happy place.

Always rise when an elderly person enters the room and remain standing till the older person is seated. Never interrupt when people are speaking.

"Good manners are the art of making those people easy with whom we converse." Last summer George F. Conroy, a young Erie conductor was bequeathed $15,000 by J. J. Adams, "just as a mark of appreciation for his kindly treatment of me and other passengers when he had no personal interest in us beyond his official duties," said the will. When Conroy was spoken to he said, "They all look alike to me, and I only treat them as I would like to be treated. I do try to make each passenger feel that I represent the company; that the company has a personal interest in his comfort and safety, and that its service does not end with the sale of a ticket. I want them to feel they are getting more than they have paid for." F. M. CHRISTIANSON, Welland Co., Ont.
