Grammachree Wolfe said that, on one or casion, he s the air over and over till he burst into a flood of tear which mood he composed the song. If I had thought thou could'st have died, I might not weep for thee; But I torgot, when by thy side, That though could'st mortal be: It never through my mind had passed The time would e'er be o'er, And I on thee should look my last,

And thou should'st smile no more. And still upon that face I look, And think 'twill smile again; And still the thought I will not brook, That I must look in vain: But when I speak-thou dost not say What thou ne'er lett'st unsaid : And now I feel, as well I may, Sweet Mary, thou art dead.

If thou would'st stay e'en as thou art, All cold and all serene-I might still press thy silent heart, And where thy smiles have been While e'en thy chill bleak corse I have, Thou seemest still my own; Rut there I lay thee in the grave-And I am now alone.

I do not think, where'er thou art, Thou hast forgotten me; And I, perhaps, may soothe this heart, In thinking, too of thee: Yet there was round thee such a dawn Of light ne'er seen before, As fancy never could have drawn And never can restore.
