THE WORLD HARVEST.

They are sowing their seed in the daylight fair,
They are sowing their seed in the noon-day glare,
They are sowing their seed in the soft twilight,
They are sowing their seed in the solemn night,
What shall the harvest be?

They are sowing their seed of pleasant thought;
In the spring's green light they have blithely wrought;
They have brought their fancies from wood and dell,
Where the mosses creep and the flower buds swell,
Rare shall the harvest be.

They are sowing the seed of word and deed,
Which the cold know not, nor the careless heed,
Of the gentle word and the kindest deed
That has blest the heart in the sorest need,
Sweet shall the harvest be.

And some are sowing the seeds of pain,
Of late remorse and a maddened brain;
And the stars shall fall and the sun shall wane,
Ere they root the weeds from their soil again.
Dark will the harvest be.

And some are standing with idle hand;
Yet they scatter the seed on their native land;
And some are sowing the seed of care,
Which their soil hath born and still must bear,
Sad shall the harvest be.

They are sowing their seed of noble deed,
With a sleepless watch and earnest heed;
With a ceaseless hand o'er earth they sow,
And the fields are whitening where'er they go.
Rich shall the harvest be.

Sown in darkness, or sown in light,
Sown in weakness or sown in might,
Sown in meekness or sown in wrath,
In the broad work-field, or the shadowy path,
Sure shall the harvest be.

HUMAN NATURE.

"Great disappointment and exceeding viciousness may talk as they please of the badness of human nature. For my part, I am now in my sixty-fifth year, and I have seen a good deal of the world, the dark side as well as the light, and I say that human nature is a very kindly thing, and capable of all sorts of virtues."—Leigh Hunt.

Well and bravely said. Those who croak of the badness of human NATURE forget that they are decrying the highest work of creative power. They remind us of the boy that curses the chestnut, because he does not know how to get the fruit without lacerating his fingers with the burr. Human nature, if addressed in the spirit of humanity, rarely fails to respond in tones of harmony and relative goodness. But if man assumes the cold austerity of the lower feelings, unmixed with any of the milk of human kindness it is not strange that the tiger should be aroused; that the burr which covers good fruit should be unwelcome to such unskilful fingers. When it is remembered that man is a compound being, made up of moral feelings and intellectual faculties, as well as animal impulses, and that these powers, by due training and education from infancy onwards, such training as every human being has a right to claim from society, and as nature indicates by giving parental love, the race would present ten thousand times less vice than at present and reclaim the bad reputation of "poor human nature." But where the eye of reason has never been opened by education and the moral susceptibilities are cradled on an iceberg of vice, when all that is animal and selfish in his nature is lashed into fury by every influence which he feels from the cradle to the grave; is it at all strange that men should look upon human nature, in the abstract as essentially bad. Way is it, that your fair-haired little girl, nursed on the lap of maternal tenderness, and warmed and cheered onward by the sunlight of beneficent culture, and the generous appliance, and radiant smile of affection, has her little soul full of joy, innocence and gladness! Why is it, that she is not gross, and rude, profane, thievish, and a terror to the world?

Yet that poor, vagrant, blasphemous, degraded inmate of a female prison, was once as soft and innocent, as fair-haired, and as gentle and winning in her budding childishness, as your own daughter.

Is it then the badness of human nature that makes this one wretched? If so, why is not your darling as harsh in spirit—as vicious in conduct? In one case human nature is developed in full; in the other, the animal is brought out, while the angelic loveliness of nature is blasted.

What folly to break half the strings of an instrument, and make the rest sadly out of tune, and then slander the maker, or curse the instrument, and deny musical science.

When poor, abused, slandered human nature receives as much philosophical attention in his training as the horse, as much care in his culture, as we deem necessary to keep a watch, an engine, or a piano in order, God's work will be deemed as perfect, and as reputable as that of men.

AFFECTION AND BENEVOLENCE.

Affection and benevolence are deservedly mentioned together, because when they are genuine, they never can separated. A man gifted with these qualities finds power and riches real blessings; they furnish him frequent opportunities of bestowing happiness, and consequently of enjoying it in the highest degree. But even with these advantages, the truly benevolent, in whatever situation in life they may be placed, will find numberless sources of pleasure and delight which to others must be forever unknown. All the happiness they see becomes in some sort their own. Even under the pressure of the greater difficulties, they can rejoice at the good which others enjoy; far from repining at the comparison, they find in the thought of it a pleasure and satisfaction to which no satisfaction of their own can render them insensible, but which, on the contrary, proves a powerful cordial to help them to support those sufferings. Even the face of animal nature fills them with a satisfaction which the insensible can never know.

TOUCHING INCIDENT.—An aged mother—a woman of seventy years—left her home in the Emerald Isle some ten weeks ago to seek the abode of her children, who are now residents of Louisville. After a tedious passage, and the trouble incident to a long journey, she reached this city from New Orleans last Monday night, on board the Alex. Scott, and soon she was surrounded by her children. Her son was the first to see her, and he hastened to inform his sister of their mother's arrival. They met—the mother and the daughter—in one long embrace, which only ended as the infirm mother sank with excitement to the floor. She had swooned away in the rapturous enjoyment of beholding once more a daughter so long lost. She had pronounced a blessing upon her children and fainted away. Whenever restored to consciousness, the sight of her children and the pleasing recollection of their presence, would overcome her with emotions, and again, and again she would faint in their arms. Physicians were called to aid, but could afford her no relief. For two days she continued in this condition, until worn out by fatigue and excitement, exhausted nature gave way, and the mother now "sleeps well" in the green earth of her new made home. How strange, how sorrowful and how touching are the incidents of life.—Louisville Democrat.

CURIOUS, BUT NOT AGREEABLE.—I have no sympathy for machinery; the action of machines of great power terrifies me by its impassibility. There are some, above all, employed for beating out metals, which do so to an alarming extent. Whatever these may happen to seize, the thing seized must pass through a hole more or less great, towards which all fabricable substances are conducted. Of whatever size the thing may be when it goes in, let it be a beam of the greatest thickness, it will come out stretched into a knitting needle of the greatest fineness. As for the machine, it merely turns—that is its business and its duty, and it matters not to it, what the substance may be which it has to crush and draw out. You offer it an iron bar—the monster draws it to itself and devours it. You don't take your hand back quickly enough, the machine pinches the end of your finger, and all is over. You may cry out, but if there be no workman present with a hatchet to cut your wrist off, after the finger comes the hand, after the head the body. Shrieks, oaths, prayers, nothing will avail you; the shortest plan for your friends or family is to look out for you on the other side of the machine. You went in a man, you come out a wire—in five minutes you have drawn 200 feet. It is curious, but not agreeable.—Pictures of Travel in the South of France.

HERE IS YOUR REMEDY!

HOLLOWAY'S OINTMENT.

A MOST MIRACULOUS CURE OF BAD LEGS, AFTER 43 YEARS' SUFFERING.

Extract of a Letter from Mr. William Galpin, of 70, Saint Mary's Street, Weymouth, dated May 15, 1851.

To Professor HOLLOWAY,

SIR,—At the age of 18 my wife (who is now 61) caught a violent cold, which settled in her legs, and ever since that time they have been more or less sore, and greatly inflamed. Her agonies were distressing, and for months together she was deprived entirely of rest and sleep. Every remedy that medical men advised was tried, but without effect; her health suffered severely, and the state of her legs was terrible. I had often read your Advertisements, and advised her to try your Pills and Ointment; and, as a last resource, after every other remedy had proved useless, she consented to do so. She commenced six weeks ago, and, strange to relate, is now in good health. Her legs are painless, without scar, or sore, and her sleep sound and undisturbed. Could you have witnessed the sufferings of my wife during the last 43 years, and contrast them with her present enjoyment of health, you would indeed feel delighted in having been the means of so greatly alleviating the sufferings of a fellow creature.

(Signed) WILLIAM GALPIN.

A PERSON 70 YEARS OF AGE CURED OF A BAD LEG, OF THIRTY YEARS' STANDING.

Copy of a Letter from Mr. Wm. Abbs, Builder of Gas Ovens, of Rushcliffe, near Huddersfield, dated May 31, 1851.

To Professor HOLLOWAY.

SIR,—I suffered for a period of thirty years from a bad leg, the result of two or three different accidents at Gas Works; accompanied by scorbutic symptoms. I had recourse to a variety of medical advice, without deriving any benefit, and was even told that the leg must be amputated; yet, in opposition to that opinion, your Pills and Ointment have effected a complete cure in so short a time, that few who had not witnessed it would credit the fact.

(Signed) WILLIAM ABBS.

The truth of this statement can be verified by Mr. W. P. England, Chemist, 13, Market Street, Huddersfield.

A DREADFUL BAD BREAST CURED IN ONE MONTH.

Extract of a Letter from Mr. Frederick Turner, of Penshurst, Kent, dated December 13, 1850.

To Professor HOLLOWAY,

DEAR SIR,—My wife had suffered from Bad Breasts for more than six months, and during the whole period had the best medical attendance, but all to no use. Having before healed an awful wound in my own leg by your unrivalled medicine, I determined again to use your Pills and Ointment, and therefore gave them a trial in her case, and fortunate it was, I did so, for in less than a month a perfect cure was effected, and the benefit that various other branches of my family have derived from their use is really astonishing. I now strongly recommend them to all my friends.

(Signed) FREDRICK TURNER.

A WONDERFUL CURE OF A DANGEROUS SWELLING OF THE KNEE.

Copy of a letter from John Forfar, an Agriculturist, residing at Newborough, near Hexham, dated May 15, 1850.

To Professor HOLLOWAY,

SIR,—I was afflicted with a swelling on each side of the leg, rather above the knee, for nearly two years, which increased to a great size. I had the advice of three eminent Surgeons here, and was an inmate of the Newcastle infirmary for four weeks. After various modes of treatment had been tried, I was discharged as incurable. Having heard so much of your Pills and Ointment, I determined to try them, and in less than a month, I was completely cured. What is more remarkable I was engaged twelve hours a day in the Hay Harvest, and although I have followed my laborious occupation throughout the winter, I have had no return whatever of my complaint.

(Signed) JOHN FORFAR.

AN INFLAMMATION IN THE SIDE PERFECTLY CURED.

Copy of a Letter from Mr. Francis Arnot, of Brewhouse, Lothian Road, Edinbro', dated April 29th, 1851.

To Professor HOLLOWAY,

SIR,—For more than twenty years my wife has been subject, from time to time to attacks of inflammation in the side, for which she was bled and blistered to a great extent; still the pain could not be removed. About four years ago, she saw in the papers, the wonderful cures effected by your Pills and Ointment, and thought she would give them a trial. To her great astonishment and delight, she got immediate relief from their use, and after persevering for three weeks, the pain in her side was completely cured, and she has enjoyed the best of health for the last four years.

(Signed) FRANCIS ARNOT.
