IN MEMORIAM.

In memory of Dorothy Armstrong who was drowned at Green Head on August 15th 1899.

Poetry.

Composed by David H. Emery. When we see the tender one That we tended with such care. So quickly taken from our number How our hearts almost despair,

She was called quickly from us, Our darling one so fair To go and dwell with Jesus, From this world of toil and care.

Around her grave we lingered, All on an August day With hearts that felt most saddened With the way she passed away.

She's only gone from our number here o Not counted out in heaven so high So that we can live to meet her, With God upon the day we die.

Twas God who called her from us All in her tender years, With hearts that felt most saddened To mourn and wipe our tears.

We must not mourn of her departing Or speak of her death alarms, Twas the way,our Saviour took To call her to his arms.

Farewell Dorothy! we shall miss thee, There will be one vacant chair, Chough your race on earth is ended We hope to meet thee over there.

Aug. 17th, 1899. HE DON'T KNOW ME.

(The following lines were suggested by cell.)

Dark in the dungeon where she hides Crnshed by her sin and shame, Fair is her face and young is she, Lost-but for her Christ came, One who has felt the touch of God, Tells of His love so free, Whispers of pardon but said she, "Woman, He don't know me."

Once in the years not long gone by, One little babe just born, Nestled close to its mother's heart Glad was its young life's morn. Ah, seems to me I hear them yet, Prayers by that mother given, "Father, Oh, lead my baby's feet Straight to the gates of heaven."

Years roll away, that mother died, Sin claimed that life so fair. Now she is sinking 'neath her shame, Filled with a dark despair. Thus when these words were said to her "Jesus is seeking thee." Melted to tears she sadly said,

"Woman He don't know me." Ye, who are mothers, dost thou hear This poor girl's sad refrain? Press to your heart your daughters Shield them from sin and pain. Yet as ye would they were done by.

Do to this one, she Who in her shame hides from her God, Saying, "He don't know me."

Ye who are 'neath the blood of Christ, Blow ye your trumpets, blow! Bring the poor lost ones home to God, Go to the desert, go! Can ye who feel the love of God, Setting your spirits free, Go on rejoicing while lost souls Cry out,, "He don't know me." Perfect Fit Guaranteed, Oh, for the hearts that feel the cost, Christ for the lost ones gave, The hearts that care not where they go God's erring ones to save. Washed in the blood of Christ from And shame, they shall be free, Our Saviour came to save the lost.

Who say, "He don't know me."

THAT APPLE STORY. Bid Neah Webster Steal It, or Did

Irish Steal It From Neah?

Said an old man who was an ardent admirer of Noah Webster:

"Was Noah Webster a plagiarist or did the English steal from him? I was led to sak these questions by being shown the Universal Spelling Book, published in Dublin in 1839 by T. Tegg & Co., which sontains the story of the boy that stole apples, with an exact reproduction of the Websterian illustration. It runs as follows: 'An old man found a rude boy upon one of his trees stealing apples, and desired him to come down, but the young sauce box told him plainly he would not. "Won't you?" says the old man. "Then I will fetch you down." So he pulled up some tufts of grass and threw at him, but this only made the youngster laugh, to think the old man should pretend to beat him out of the tree with grass only. "Well, well," says the old man, "if neither words nor grass will do, I must try what virtue there is in stones." So the old man pelted him heartily with stones, which soon made the young chap hasten down from the tree, and beg the old man's pardon.'

"Now, when I first read that story, some-Irish Steal It From Noah?

"Now, when I first read that story, something more than 50 years ago, no doubt entered my mind that it was made in Connecticut. And the picture accompanying it—was not that little house Jerry Griswold's, and the 'old man' Priest Pruden? And the boy, did he not hear a striking resemblance to me in my best white trousers? All these impressions remained unsers? All these impressions remained unsers?

resemblance to me in my best white trousers? All these impressions remained until recently, when I saw the picture in the Universal Spelling Book, where it looked wonderfully Irish to me. I wish some of you fellows would find out whether Noah Webster was a plagiarist or the victim of British publishers.

Webser was a plagiarist or the victim of British publishers.

"In the 'Universal Spelling Book' under the headline 'Words of Seven Syllables Accounted on the Fifth Syllable,' I find circump in why an idea, and, under the line 'Words of Five Syllables Accented on the First Syllable,' fa shi on-a-ble, and having got so far I didn't wonder any more that some of my Irish brethren fied it difficult to catch on to the pronuputation of English words. But that is only a small pare of what the 'Universal Spelling Book' contains. It has 'a treatise on English grammar, followed by the principles of politeness by Philip Stanhope, earl of Chestarfield, and a number of fables, stories, etc., besides the 'Boy and the Applie Tree,' " concluded the old man.—Utica Observer.

As Eastern Shere Question.

Strangers tell us it is a fact that after the formalities of an introduction to an eastern shore man at his own home always follows the question: "Is this your first visit to the eastern shore?" The origin of this custom was set forth by an eastern shore man at a Cincinnati banquet at Newport, R. I., some years ago, when he was twitted about the peculiarity of his countrymen. The story is a true one.

of his countrymen. The story is a true one.

When General Lafayette accepted the invitation of congress in 1894 and came to this country as the nation's guest, a great reception was tendered him at the statehouse in Annapolis officially by the state. The governor of Maryland at that time was an eastern chare farmer, who lived on his farm except when the general assembly was in season or when he was called to Annapolis at other times on official business. Of course his presence was indispensable at the Lafayette reception. His function, indeed, was to introduce the distinguished guest. The governor made the trip on horseback around the head of the bay, clad in a homespun suff made on his own looms. The roads and weather heing worse than he calculated for when he left home, he did not reach the capital until the day of the reception and after all the other notabilities were there and waiting for the governor, who was hastily ushered into the senate chamber, his clothes ing for the governor, who was hastily ushered into the senate chamber, his clothes splashed with mud just as he was when he dismounted. The distinguished people in splendid array in the chamber confused the plain and patriotic eastern shore governor, and when he was presented to Lafayette he could think of nothing to say for the moment and blurted out, "Is this the first time you were ever in this country, general?" and from the day the eastern shore governor made that faux pas to this the question is religiously, patriotically and proudly put to the stranger when his footsteps first touch the eastern shore strand.—Baltimore Sun.

Dentistry at Sea. When a sailor on a deep water ship has a toothache, he is likely to go to the captain. The captain gives him something out of the medicine chest to put in his tooth, and if that doesn't cure it perhaps he pulls it. It is a common thing for sailors to pull their own teeth. Their method is to put a string around a tooth and pull it. But dental forcers are carried on deep water. dental forceps are carried on deep water ships, on some vessels a fair outfit of them. A ship captain of long experience said that in the course of his life at sea he had pulled 200 teeth.

The ship's medicine chest on large vessels is like a closet or cupbard with a glass deep hills in the ship. In this chest the door buils in the ship. In this chest the medicine bottles, gilt labeled, are arranged on shelves that rise one above another in receding tiers. It is practically a well appointed little drug store. There is supplied with the medicine chest a book explaining the uses of the medicines. The captain is likely to have some other book on medical subjects which he has read and studied, and he is likely to have had a studied, and he is likely to have had a good deal of experience before attaining the rank of master of a ship.

The sallors are generally healthy men, but when occasion requires the captain prescribes. He is the physician. Limbs broken at sea are of course set there, and there might be circumstances in which the captain would not healthete to perform a captain would not hesitate to perform a surgical operation.—New York Sun.

I remember hearing a church warden in one of our large manufacturing towns read in the lesson the following odd statement from the epistle to the Romans, "And if children, then hares," a somewhat strange piece of reasoning. In the same connection still with reference to the insertion of this much abused letter, I heard a funny story the other day. There is a village in the eastern counties which rejoices in the name of Haw. A parishioner rejoices in the name of Haw. A parishioner was asked what he thought of a strange preacher who had been holding a service in the village. "Well," he said, "I liked the gentleman, 'is tex' was just suited to us folk." "Why, what was his text?" "It were a tex' from the Psalms, 'Stand in hawe and sin not'—it sounded so 'omely tolke."—Cornhill Magazine.
