Rounding Up The Dealers In Extracts

St. John, June 16—The denunciation of lemon extract by Police Magistrate Ritchie in the police court on Monday afternoon started one of the liquor inspectors to work yesterday afternoon His Honor in referring to lemon extract said, "It is worse than gin, rum, whiskey or any liquor. If everybody does his duty there will not be another ounce of lemon extract left in the town by midnight. I will give up my place here in order to make room to stock it all, if necessary." Inspector McAlnsh decided that he would do his duty according to the magistrate's interpretation, and although he has not stocked the court room with all the lemon extract in the city, he has summoned seven wholesale grocers and two wholesale druggists to court at 2 o'clock this afternoon.

Inspector McAlnsh made a round of the wholesale grocers yesterday and according to him, it was only because time would not allow, that he did not get to all the dealers who sell extracts in the city. From each place of business he visited, he took a bottle of lemon and vanilla extract as samples and he ordered each proprietor to appear at 2 o'clock this afternoon to answer to the charge of having intoxicating liquor in his private dwelling.

The nine firms visited were G. E. Barbour & Company, Limited; Jones & Schofield; Puddington, Wetmore, Morrison, Limited; Northrup & Company; Baird & Peters; Wilson Chemical Company; Brayley Drug Company Vanwart Brothers and F. J. Williams & Company, Limited.

A BOOM IN SHEEPING

Compared with the product of other countries sheep breeding in Canada does not appear prolific. In Australia there are twenty-five times as many sheep as there are here. In the United States thirteen times as many and in Great Britain nine times as many. That this fact is becoming recognized, and that efforts are being made to improve the situation, is shown by a series of articles on sheep extension work in the different provinces that appear in The Agricultural Gazette of Canada for May. These articles show that the subject is being taken up in a very practical way by at least seven of the nine provinces. Presumably in the other two, British Columbia and Prince Edward Island, although not set forth, like measures are being taken. In short, there are prospects that sheep raising and mutton and wool producing are going to receive in the next few years very considerable impetus. The efforts put forth to bring this about consist mainly of the distribution of pure bred rams, the holding of competitions for which prizes of considerable value are given, for the best ewes and for the best flocks, of organized sheep sales, of obtaining the highest price for wool through the Canadian Wool Growers' Association of demonstrations in shearing and of other matters connected with sheep raising, and by placing flocks as in Ontario, on a share basis. In addition drastic legislation has been passed looking to the protection of sheep from dogs. It is noteworthy that in many instances credit has been arranged with the banks so that funds may be procured on fairly easy terms to be used in the purchase of pure-bred rams and high grade ewes.

Corn Smut

The smut of corn is well known to farmers. The smut masses which usually appear, as swollen outgrowths are sometimes quite large and make the smut very conspicuous. They are at first covered by a thin membrane, which soon breaks away and exposes the black mass of spores. The mass soon becomes powdery and the myriads of spores which each mass contains are readily blown about by the wind. It is these spores that spread the disease during the growing season and carry the smut over the winter to the next crop.

In many of the smuts, as the smuts of oats and the stinking smut or bunt of wheat, the spores get on the seed and when the seed is planted begin growing with it and attack the young seedling. Treatment with a solution of formaldehyde is effective in killing the spores on the seed and preventing infection of the young plants. In the case of the loose smut of wheat and the loose smut of barley the spores are blown about at blossoming time and grow into the very young seed. The hot water treatment of the seed is used to kill the smut inside the seed. In the case of corn smut seed treatment of any kind has been found to be of no use, as the smut spores live even in the soil or in manure rather than in or on the seed. So the only way to control the corn smut is to prevent the smut spores getting into the soil or the manure. Not only do the spores live in the manure pile for some time, but they may actually increase rapidly in number if the conditions are favourable. Corn smut is found in all parts of Canada where corn is grown, but is more common in Eastern Canada. Generally it is not very prevalent and the losses are not great. Where it is common, measures should be taken to prevent its spread. The smut masses should be cut out during the growing season. They should be removed before they have broken open and spread their spores. They should not be left lying where they may reach manure or refuse and be carried back to the soil but they should be gathered and burned. Rotation of crops is also valuable in preventing corn smut. The smut does not live long in the soil and will not attack any other crop, so time should be given for the smut to die out in the soil before another crop of corn is planted. Seed treatment has not been found to be of any use in corn smut.
