A Second Note from Mr. Lugrin.

The Gleaner recapitulates certain charges which it says it has made against me and asks, why I have only replied to one of and third meeting of the Ancient Order of them. My answer is that I was not aware Hibernians of the province of New Brunsthat the Gleaner had made the charges it wick is now in session in the city of Frednow repeats. I very rarely read the paper. I am told that it has devoted many columns to me, and have seen some of its articles: but as they were principally in reference to our Ancient and Honorable Order to have matters with which the public could possibly have no concern, I paid no attention to them. The recapitulated charges relate to me in my official capacity and perhaps should be replied to: although it has long since ceased to be of the slightest importance the provincial officers for their successful what the Gleaner alleges against any perand earnest efforts in behalf of the order. son, so often have its statements beer shown to be utterly unreliable, as far as they relate to those to whom it is politically branch of an order that contains the best

The first charge, to which my attention is called by the Gleaner, is that I represented that I had an office messenger in my employ to whom I paid $150 a year, when in fact I had no messenger. This charge is entirely free institutions of our Canadian birthplace false, and I regret to have to add is known by the Gleaner to be false. Mr. Crocket, of the Gleaner, knows perfectly well that the of the shamrock and gem of the sea—dear of the shamrock and gem of the sea—dear of the agricultural department were, for I have told him myself, and I am not sure but that they have been fully explained in the columns of the Gleaner. The facts are that several years before I was appointed to office an allowance was made to the secretary of the board of agriculture of $75, not $150, per year for a messenger. Out of this the secretary defrayed the cost of an office janitor, and paid for any services, which might be strictly called "messenger's work." When I took office the allowance was con tinued, and out of it I paid William Wall $36 a year, as janitor, and used the balance or as much of it as was necessary in the other manner mentioned above. I never represented that I had a messenger to whom $150 was paid; on the contrary when Mr. Wetmore, leader of the opposition, brought the subject up in the house the whole matter was explained just as I have explained it above and every person was satisfied. At that time, if my memory serves me, the Gleaner was very severe upon Mr. Wetmore for meddling with such trifling matters. When my office was removed to a building having a janitor and messenger connected with it, the allowance ceased.

The second charge is that I could not use well to add, for the information of those who think that by "stationery" as used in the are meant, that it covers all the score or more of things needed around an office and in the case of the agricultural office includes books for the office library as well. The items of the accounts for this service are every year submitted to the committee on public accounts, on which the opposition is always represented, and I think I am at liberty to add that when I have been before the committee to explain the agricultural accounts the members of the oppositio have had the fullest opportunity to inquire into these matters, and that they have done so far as they thought was necessary. The third charge is that I undertook to de the editorial work for my political party for from the provincial treasury. There is not a syllable of truth in this statement, nor the slightest ground why any one should surmise anything of the kind, as a brief review of the facts will show. By an arrangemen made in December, 1887, my salary was increased to $1,000, to take effect on January 1st: and in December, 1888, the salary was afternoon, and vainly endeavored to sit upfurther increased to $1,200, to take effect or on the press. The game was a most exciting January 1st, 1889. Both these increases were made at a time when I was in no way directly or indirectly, connected with any newspaper, and solely because of the increased work of my office, which has nearly doubled since I took charge. My connection Machum, ss; O. S.
