KING EDWARD'S OBSEQUIES.

Body Will Lie in State at Westminster Hall-- Funeral on the 20th--The Royal Mausoleum--King George's First Official Speech.

Special to Evening Telegram.

LONDON, May 8.

The tomb of Edward the Seventh will be beneath the Memorial Chapel at Windsor where the body of his eldest son, the Duke of Clarence, has a sepulchre. The funeral will probably be held on May 20th. Before the funeral it has practically been decided that the body of the King will lie in state in Westminster Hall, under the House of Commons, where the House will be open to the public. The date of the funeral is a matter of some importance, as it will be held on a Sunday, and the funeral will be a very grand one. The body will lie in state in the Throne Room at Buckingham Palace, where the King's casket will be placed. The funeral will be held in the Royal Chapel at Windsor. It will first be lowered to the vault beneath the Chapel floor of St. James's Chapel, Windsor Castle. Afterward when the permanent home has been prepared it will be removed to Albert Chapel. Queen Alexandra and King George conferred with various officials of the State and the Home Office concerning the funeral arrangements to-day, after holding service in the Royal Chapel at Buckingham, which the King always attended when in residence there. The date of the funeral was fixed for May 20th, although it may be May 18th. The members of the Royal family would prefer there should be no lying in state, but it was represented to them that the wishes of the people were so strongly for this that they were willing to waive their personal inclinations. King Edward still lies in the bed where he died clothed only in night clothes, while his hands are crossed on his breast. Queen Alexandra visits the chamber frequently, appearing greatly worn and tired. King George and Queen Mary spent most of the day with her. After church the family again looked upon the body for a few minutes. An impressive incident this afternoon illustrated Queen Alexandra's desire to show consideration for British subjects of every class. General Booth sent a message that the Salvation Army wished to show honor to Edward the Seventh by holding a service before the Palace, and Queen Alexandra gave her permission. At four o'clock a large band wearing red jerseys and carrying silver instruments and banners with scarves of crepe pushed through the crowd to the Palace. The big iron gates were opened and the band formed a circle under the windows. The crowds around the Palace were diminished to-day as well as at Marlborough House. The streets to-night are filled with people, but there is little mourning decorations on the London buildings as yet. The creeping of the House will begin to-morrow. While King George was signing the proclamation of his accession in the presence of his Privy Counsellors, who came in uniform and wearing brilliant decorations, in the Palace at St. James's Saturday afternoon, a battery in the adjoining park was firing 38 guns, denoting the age of his predecessor. The first official utterance of the new King was marked by feeling eloquence and made a deep impression. "My lords and gentlemen," said the King, "my heart is to fall for me to address you to-day in more than a few words. It is my sorrowful duty to announce to you the death of my dear and beloved father, King. In this loss which has so suddenly fallen upon me and the whole Empire I am comforted by the feeling that I have the sympathy of my subjects, who will mourn with me for their beloved Sovereign, whose happiness was found in sharing and promoting theirs. I have lost not only a father's love but the affectionate and intimate relations of a dear friend and adviser. To endeavor to follow in his footsteps and at the same time to uphold the excellent Government of his reign will be the earnest object of my life. I am deeply sensible of the responsibility which has fallen on me. I know that I can rely upon the Parliament and upon the people of these islands and my Dominions beyond the Seas for their help in the discharge of these duties, and their prayers that God will grant strength and guidance. I am encouraged by the knowledge that I have in my dear wife one who will be a constant helpmate in every endeavour for our people's good."

BERLIN, May 7.

Following the announcement of the death of King Edward all of the engagements of Emperor William for the next two days were cancelled. The Emperor, who was at Weisbaden, determined to start for Berlin to-day and will arrive here to-morrow. It is assumed that it is a certainty that the Emperor will attend the funeral.

PARIS, May 7.

Nowhere in Europe has the passing of King Edward created deeper emotion than in France, where he was gratefully acknowledged as the principal artisan in the present diplomatic combinations for the preservation of the peace of Europe. The French Government intends to express its grief in a most marked fashion. Premier Briand and others of the Cabinet personally called upon the British Ambassador early to-day to express their condolences, and as soon as Foreign Minister Pichon, who is absent from the city, reaches Paris, an extraordinary mission will be appointed to attend the funeral. Former President Loubet, whose exchange of visits with King Edward in 1902, resulted in the Anglo-French entente, probably will head the mission. Most of the French papers appear with black borders to-day and their editorials sound a sermon note of grief which may be summed up in the words of the Matin, which says: "England has lost a great King, the world a great figure and a great friend."

TOKIO, May 7.

The death of King Edward has cast a gloom over the nation in which profound sympathy is felt for the British Court and Empire. Japan as Great Britain's ally feels the loss most keenly. All public functions have been suspended. It is confidently believed that the demise of the British Monarch will not affect the alliance of the two countries. The press is unanimous in its expressions of grief and in declaring that the death of Ten Thousand Newfoundlanders Acclaim George King!

The scene in the area in front of the Colonial Building this forenoon is one that will never be forgotten by the thousands that gathered there. Squads from the Church Lads' Brigade, Catholic Cadet Corps, Methodist Guards and Nfld. Highlanders marched from their respective armories down Military Road shortly before noon and under the direction of their officers drew up in the square near the Colonial Building. A detachment from the city police force under Supt. Grimes also marched to the place and were put through manoeuvres by the Inspector General. The members of the two Councils, Judges of the Court and the Consuls for foreign governments in full uniform filed into the building to witness the ceremony of the swearing in of His Excellency the Governor, who arrived in his brougham accompanied by Lady Williams, Miss Dean and Secretary Fitzherbert at high noon, when the Total Abstinence band played God Save the King and the battalions and police gave the Royal salute. His Grace Archbishop Howley in his coach and pair accompanied by Rev. Monsignor Roche, Rev. Fr. Walsh, Rev. Fr. Fyne and the heads of the other churches in the city also were present. The joy bells of the R. C. Cathedral rang out at noon announcing to the whole city that the new King, George the V., had been proclaimed. After the Chief Justice had administered the oath to the Governor in the Council Chamber in presence of all the members of both branches of the Government, His Excellency the Governor came forward to the steps of the Colonial Building to read the Proclamation announcing the accession of the new King. The Governor with rare good sense and forethought asked the Inspector General to allow the multitude to come right in up to the front of the Building and fill up the vacant square in order that they would be better able to hear the proclamation. He then asked the people to keep as motionless as possible and make no noise in order that his voice might reach those on the outside of the gathering. His Excellency then read the Proclamation amidst breathless silence and his words were heard by everybody in the crowd. At the conclusion the Governor made a sign to the leader of the band to strike up God Save the King, whereupon he asked the people to join in, and the National Anthem was sung with a heartiness and vigor and intensity the like of which we have never witnessed before in the open air. The personal magnetism of the Governor and the impressiveness of the occasion electrified the whole gathering, and when His Excellency called for three cheers for His Gracious Majesty, the newly proclaimed King George V., the hearty response that was given might be heard down at the waterfront of the city. Meanwhile the teachers of the primary schools of the city had marshalled their pupils--the rising generation--and marched them to the Prince of Wales Rink, in the extreme end of the city, where His Excellency the Governor proceeded after the ceremony at the Colonial Building was over. The Rink was filled with children even before and that on the occasion of the visit of the new King when he was Prince of Wales. It was a happy idea that his accession should be proclaimed to the children. This morning in the same building, at 12:40 the Governor arrived, accompanied by His Grace Archbishop Howley, heads of the other churches and the Superintendents of Education. The Proclamation that was read at the Colonial Building was repeated to the children; who cheered lustily for the new King and His Excellency. Sir Ralph said that he was very glad of the opportunity to address the young boys and girls and to remind them again of the great Empire of which they were members. They would, when they grew up to be men and women, be able to look back to the beginning of the reign of the new King and to relate that they were amongst those who were present when the great and mighty King George V. came to the throne, and were addressed by the Governor of

Supreme Court.

At the opening of the Court on Saturday morning, the chief justice ordered an adjournment in the following terms:--

"Since the Court adjourned yesterday, the King has passed away. To-day sorrow pervades the world. In common with our fellow subjects throughout the Empire, we mourn the great loss our nation has sustained. The reign now brought to a close will be memorable in history, chiefly because of the King's achievements in promoting the peace of nations. By us in this colony it must ever be gratefully remembered in that it lifted from Newfoundland the burden of foreign territorial claims and left the island wholly British. It was the statesmanship of King Edward in promoting the Entente Cordiale with France, which rendered possible our release from grievances under which the colony had suffered for well nigh two centuries."

"As a mark of respect to His late Majesty, the Court adjourns."

"A Delightful Pastime"

is the verdict of those who have purchased a Columbia Zither. It is a very fine zither, graceful in shape, and in every way a charming musical instrument. It is finished in polished black ebony, the same as a fine piano. Makes a beautiful gift for holiday or birthday. In a few short evenings you can learn to play the Columbia Zither with facility and ease. The lower notes are tuned in groups of chords. The higher notes render the air while the chords produce the accompaniment. For sale by Arthur B. Walker, Sole Agent for Newfoundland and Maritime Provinces. One month's free lessons at the studio, 13 New Dover Street (Albion House). Note: Toy zithers and small autoharps cost less, but the Columbia Zither excels in size and durability, combines the tone qualities of the guitar and mandolin. Can only be obtained from Arthur B. Walker who imports direct from factory in U. S. A., and has handled them exclusively since 1899. Call and secure one now and get instructed for one month free of charge. Autoharps put in perfect tune for 10c. Polos, strings, etc., at New York prices. A few piano folios 50 per cent off--adv't., may 31.

Narrowly Escaped Drowning.

As Mr. John Dawe, son of Capt. A. Dawe, of Bay Roberts, was out for a boat sail on Saturday afternoon, he narrowly escaped losing his life, and for a long while after rescue was unconscious, and is since pretty ill. The wind blew in fitful gusts; the ballast was not properly arranged in her and when one heavy squall struck the sail she went over so far that the sprays coming in filled the boat and she sank under Mr. Dawe in 15 fathoms of water almost before he could realize what had happened. The man was left struggling in the water, but fortunately some oars floated away from the boat as she went down, and came so near Mr. Dawe that he was enabled to grasp them, and then floated him. A man named French, of Coley's Point, witnessed the accident and jumped into a boat and rowed with might and main to the rescue. He was just in the nick of time, for Dawe when he reached him was unconscious and was holding mechanically. Getting him into his boat, French, with great presence of mind, got Dawe across his knees and succeeded in making him vomit large quantities of water which he had swallowed. He then rowed him ashore and Drs. Pritchard and Atkinson succeeded after much trouble in resuscitating Mr. Dawe. An effort will be made to get the boat from the bottom.

WESLEY CHURCH.

The West End Church was most tastefully draped in black for the deceased Sovereign. At both services, morning by the Rev. J. Banford and evening by the Rev. J. K. Curtis, B. A., reference was made to the lamented death of King Edward. At the close of a short but eloquent eulogy of the deceased Sovereign, the preacher said he would speak at great length at the Memorial Service. The organist played the "Dead March" at both services and the choir rendered suitable hymns for the occasion.
