—While driving along con. 2, London township, last evening, Mr. John Hood came upon one of the most helpless cases of drunkenness that could be imagined. The man was in a buggy and his horse had fallen down in the middle of the road and broken the shafts. Mr. Hood got the horse on its feet and brought the man to the police station. He was there directed to take the man down to the county authorities where he was lodged in jail. He had lost the power of utterance and could not give his name. To Squire Jarvis to-day he gave the name of Alex. Calvin and was fined $2 and costs.

—Mr. William Ward, cigar manufacturer, this city, received a letter from a friend in Aylmer yesterday setting forth his good luck in bagging three fine woodcocks and stating he would express two of them to him (Mr. Ward). The latter received a carefully-labeled box this morning, paid the charges, and in the presence of a few friends proceeded to disclose the beautiful birds to their sight. In a neat little box, with iron bars, he found two nicely painted woodcocks hanging on strings—the wooden class generally used as a tap to fit the bunghole of a barrel. The recipient had ordered woodcock pie for dinner, but appreciated the joke, attributing the author's originality to his having attended the recent bake of the London Clam Club, of which Mr. Ward is chief clam.

—As has already been mentioned the 'Sea King' will receive its initial production in London at the Grand Opera House, on Thursday, by the William J. Gilmore Opera Company. The large advance sale of seats would show that much interpst is taken in the event by the theater-going public, and certainly the announcements that are made warrant it, for few visiting companies have been better prepared to face criticisms. The cast includes no small number of recognized comic opera favorites, together with rich costumes designed by Emens, Mender and Schaeffer and well-drilled ch 1 28 to-day.

A Red Elver Veteran.

The civic authorities have made application to have John Macdonald removed from the Aged Men's Home to the asylum. Macdonald was one of the volunteers who accompanied Colonel Woiseley on the first Red River expedition in 1870. While in the Northwest he met with an accident from which he never recovered, and on account of which he received a grant of $200 from the Government. After the return of the men from the Northwest, Macdonald was engaged in any kind of work he could get, but became gradually more helpless until he finally drifted into the Aged Men's Home. Within the past few weeks he has shown symptoms of insanity, which, becoming each day more evident, the authorities decided to have him removed to a more suitable institution.

A Change in the Firm.

One of London's oldest and most reliable drygoods houses is about to undergo an important change in the withdrawal of Capt. Thomas Beattie from the firm of Thos. Beattie & Co. after an active business life of many years. The firm's name has for years been a synonym for excellence in quality of goods and honorable dealing, and in commercial circles the name is "giltedged" of the first class. No doubt citizens will regret the withdrawal from active business life of Capt. Beattie, but will be pleased to hear the announcement that the business will be carried on by able and competent men, who have been with Capt. Beattie for many years, namely, Messrs. R. Spittal, Daniel Burn and John Gentleman. They are well posted in the business and will without doubt succeed to the popularity that Capt. Beattie attained with its customers. The retiring gentleman will carry with him into private life the respect and esteem of his fellow-citizens after an honorable business career of many years.

At the conclusion of the playing the brethren invited their visitors to supper in the adjoining chamber, where Wor. Brc. Paul, W. M. of Tuscan Lodge, took the chair, and called on Wor. Brc. Barker, chaplain of the lodge, to say grace, after which an enjoyable repast was partaken of. The toast, "The Queen and Craft." was responed to by Right Wor. Brc. Geo. C. Davis, G. J. W. of the Grand Lodge of Canada. "The Army and Navy and the Volunteers" found exponents in Wor. Brc. Cols. Dawson and Fisher. "The National Legislatures" drew able replies from Dr. Roome, M.P., and Mr. Geo. Laing. For "Our Guesta" many responses were made, R. Bayly, Q.C., Dr. Roome, M.P., R. Toothe, R. K. Cowan, M. G. Brenner, Dr. Gardiner, and the Worthy Master of 209a, speaking. All expressed great pleasure at being present to enjoy the hospitalities of Tuscan Lodge, which are proverbial. "Tuscan Lodge" was proposed by R. Wor. Bro. Davis and Wor. Bro. Paul, V. Wor. Bro. Hungerford, Wor. Bro. Broderick, Wor. Bro. Mc-Whinnie, Bro. Dr. Weld and others replied. Bro. Geo. Brown replied for "The President of the United States." "The Trade and Commerce of London" was replied to by R. Wor. Porte. "The Learned Professions" drew responses from Messrs. Bayly, Q.C., Cowan, J. B. Mc. Killop, Beattie, Dr. Weld and others. The customary minor toasts were also duly honored, and good songs were given by the Mr. Macdonald, barrister, gave severa of his inimitable dramatic recitations. The happy company separated at an earl hour this morning.

Assizes—Mr. Blackstock Abandons a Case and Stalks Out of Court.

Sandwich, Oct. 25.—The case of Daniel Mayhow, timber stealing, came up at the assizes yesterday. In March last D. E. Cew, of Essex, brought from the Canada Company $22,000 worth of timber at Colchester. Some time afterwards it was noticed that a lot of timber had been taken away. Detective McKee placed the crime on James Walters, Daniel Mayhow, Herbert Brush, Wm. Ford and others. The grand jury brought in true bills, and Walters turned Queen's evidence, and at the trial of turned Queen's evidence, and at the trial of turned Queen's evidence, and at the trial of Mayhew yesterday he admitted that he took the timber with Mayhow, Brush and Ford. Mayhew swore that Walters told him he had bought the timber. Mayhew was found guity.

When the civil case of Corlett vs. Mason was taken up Mr. Blackstock, for the demanded the protection of the court towards the witness. Mr. Blackstock till perservered in the same line of cross-examination and when he asked the witness if he had been drinking, Judge MacMahon if he had been asked. Mr. Blackstock said that on account of the Judge's nonastrated against the Judge's ruling and said that he had a right to put any questions when they were proper, as the one ruled out had been. The Judge said such a question should never have been asked. Mr. Blackstock stock said that on account of the Judge's conduct he would be obliged to withdraw ornducts and stating that his colleague would not conduct the case, Mr. Osler, for the plaintiff, said that he did not want to take any advantage of the defendant, and the Judge sent the case. The case of Brewn vs. Sandwich East stands for a decision of the Judge, together with the case of Labute vs. Sandwich East. The grand jury returned no bill in the case of Wm. Mitchell, charged with assaulting Mrs. Geo. Fox, of Leamington. The case of Anderson vs. McCormick, arising out of the ownership of the Pelee Island West dock, has been settled in favor of the defendant, plaintiff to pay all costs.

Desperate Remedies By Thomas Hardy. AUTHOR OF "A PAIR OF BLUE EYES," "TH

TRUMPET-MAJOR," ETC.

The trees here was so interlaced, and hung their branches so near the ground, that a whole summer day was scarcely long enough to change the air prevading the spot from its normal state of coolness to even a temporary warmth. The unvarying freshness was helped by the nearness of the ground to the level of the springs, and by the presence of a deep, sluggishstream close by, well shaded by bushes and a high wall, Following the road, which now ran along at the margin of the stream, she came to an opening in the wall, on the other side of the water, revealing a large rectangular nook from which the stream proceeded, covered with froth, and accompanied by a dull roar. Two more steps, and she was opposite the nook, in full view of the cascade forming its further boundary. Over the top could be seen the bright outer sky in the form of a crescent, caused by the curve of a bridge across the rapids and the trees above.

Beautiful as the scene was she did not curve of a bridge across the rapids and the trees above.

Beautiful as the scene was she did not look in that direction. The same standing-ground afforded another prospect, straight in front, less somber than the water on the right or the trees on the left. The avenue and grove which flanked it abruptly terminated a few yards ahead, where the ground began to rise, and on the remote edge of the greensward thus laid open, stood all that remained of the original manor-house, to which the dark margin-line of the trees in the avenue formed an adequate and well-fitting frame. It was the picture thus presented that was now interesting Miss Aldelyffe—not artistically nor historically, but practically—as regarding its fitness for adaption to modern requirements.

its fitness for adaption to modern requirements.

In front, detached from everything else, rose the most ancient portion of the structure—an old arched gateway, flanked by the bases of two small towers, and nearly covered with creepers, which had clambered over the eaves of the sinking roof, and up the gable to the crest of the Aldelyfie family perched on the apex. Behind this, at a distance of ten or twenty yards, came the only portion of the main building that still existed—an Elizabethan fragment, consisting of as much as could be contained under the three gables and a cross roof behind. Against the wall could be seen ragged lines indicating the form of other destroyed gables which had once joined it there. The mullioned and transomed windows, containing five or six lights, were mostly bricked up to the extent of two or three, and the remaining portion fitted with cottage window frames carelessly inserted, to suit the purpose to which the with cottage window frames carelessly in-serted, to suit the purpose to which the old place was new applied, it being parti-tioned out into small rooms downstairs to form cottages for two laborers and their families; the upper portion was arranged as a storehouse for divers kinds of roots and fruits.

The owner of this picturesque spot, after her survey from this point, went up to the fruits.

The owner of this picturesque spot, after her survey from this point, went up to the walls and walked into the old court, where the paving stones were pushed sideways and upwards by the grass between them. Two or three little children with their fingers in their mouths, came out to look at her, and then ran in to tell their mothers in loud tones of secrecy that Miss Aldelyffe was coming. Miss Aldelyffe, however, did not come in. She concluded her survey of the exterior by making a complete circuit of the building; then turned into a nook a short distance off where round and square timber, as aw pit, planks, grindstones, heaps of building stone and brick, explained that this apot was the center of operations for the building work done on the estate.

She paused and looked around. A man who had seen her from the window of the workshops behind, came out and respectfully lifted his hat to her. It was the first time she had been seen walking outside the house since her father's death.

"Burdon, could the old house be made a decent residence of, without much trouble!" she inquired.

The mechanic considered, and spoke each consideration completed itself.

The meenance consideration completed itself.
"You don't forget, ma'am, that two thirds of the place is already pulled down, or gone "Yes, I know."
"And that what's left may almost as wel

be, ma'am."
"Why may it?"

"Why may it?"
"Twas so cut up inside when they made it into cottages, that the whole careass it fall of cracks."
"Still by pulling down the inserted partitions, and adding a little outside, it could be made to answer the purpose of an ordinary six or eight-roomed house?"
"Yes, ma-am."

dinary six or eight-roomed nouse?"
"Yes, ma-am."
"About what would it cost?" was the question which had invariably come next if every communication of this kind to which the superintending workman had been party during his whole experience. To his surprise Miss Alddyffe did not put it. The number of the superintending an old house must have been an unusually absorbed.
