We are rejoiced to hear it, and can see no good reason why the "Forest City," which tor so many years led the van in Oddfellowship and which has such a beautiful temple erected by the order, should not resume its place, and, by a great stride of progress in place, and, by a great stride of progress in all the branches, show its appreciation of the honor it feels at the selection of one of their residents for the highest office in the gitt of the order—grand sire.
