Greater Awakening Than Ever

INTENSE INTEREST IN

POWELL'S

Great Bankrupt Sale

The immense run of trade and customers is keeping up day after day. To those who may not fully understand the reason of this great and growing and interesting sale of Powell's Old Stand we must give the information in a word or two.

The reason the crowds come simply this, they can buy their groceries at Powell's Old Stand at half or half price. Immense lines of bankrupt goods will be opened on Thursday morning. We urge you to look out for this big offer.

The quantities are big, but the price will clear them out in a few days.
We want everybody to remember that we don't pretend to get more than about half price for our goods.

Remember, when you buy goods at Powell's Old Stand you get the class of goods imported into London.

Compare the prices of our Table Linens, Cottons, Sheet-Blankets, Lace Curtains, Sil-Bengalines, Colored Henrietta, Black Henrietta, Millinery, and with prices elsewhere and you will find our prices are about half or a few per cent. We are always at Powell's Old Stand.

We are busy in the millinery room busy at the front counters; in fact busy all over the store. It would be a wonder if it were not so where all classes of goods are sold at half price at Powell's Old Stand.

We give you a few samples of prices:

1st—50c and 60c Ladies' Hats selling for 25c.

2nd—75c and 90c Ladies' Hats selling for 35c.

3rd—$1 and $1.25 Ladies' Hats selling for 50c.

4th—Just think, ladies, that you can buy Silk Blouses, 40 inches wide, for 10c per yard at Powell's Old Stand.

5th—Fancy, all colors in Silk Net Veiling, with self-colored spots, for 10c
at Powell's Old Stand.

6th—The greatest awaker in Dress Goods is the Full Dress Length in about 50 different ways, for $1.25, the dress pattern at Powell's Old Stand.

7th—Nobody overheard of pure Silk Lace being sold at 10c per yard until Powell's great bankrupt sale started.

We have them in all colors.

8th—Read this carefully. These are figures from the invoices, viz: $3.00 yards of Ribbons in one case. We will offer them in two lots, at 50c and 80c.
Come and see them; you will wonder at these Ribbons; the price will make wholesale millinery men shudder.

9th—Ladies' underwear—Please read this and don't forget what we say; the invoice speaks again. 133c dozen Ladies' Undervests will be offered Thursday morning at net wholesale prices. Merchants from the surrounding towns should send for sample lot.

We close our list for to-day longer list, but will stop here for now by reminding our thousands of customers to remember prices the Blankets, Prints, Mil-lineries, Hosiery and Gloves are at Powell's Old Stand.

Please note our goods are sold for spot cash, as we keep books for accounts.

Owing to the hot weather we open our doors for trade now 9 o'clock instead of 10 o'clock in the past. Don't make a mistake and go into the wrong store.
Be sure you find lawyer knew nothing, of whom could he seek information. His thoughts reverted obstinately to Dora, although—out of consideration for Aunt Barbara—he had not mentioned her to the lawyer, nor his suspicion about her, nor Anthony's strange wanderings. But he would not feel satisfied until Dora had been asked if she could throw any light on this great mystery, which involved so much for him and for Kitty.

He had met Sergeant Jones on the road the day before and had asked him casually where his master was spending his honeymoon. But the sergeant's answer was like Barbara's.

"The master left no address, sir; the mistress wanted him to have a real good rest and change, and not to be worried with letters. They started north, sir, but whether they're still in Ireland, or have crossed the channel, I don't know. The master said we was to get on with the renovating the rooms, and he would give us fair notice of his home-coming."

"They may be in America by this," said Arthur to himself, as he walked moodily home.

They had been consulting the better part of the afternoon, that mystified trio, and the lawyer had risen to prepare for his journey back to Dublin, when the evening post arrived.

There had been a good many letters at Carriconna during the last week—letters of sympathy and letters of business—but to-night there was only one, and John looked uncertain to whom he should hand it, but finally presented it to Arthur with an apologetic bow.

It was addressed to Anthony Nugent, Esq., and bore the Australian postmark.
"It is for my father," said Arthur, in a tone of surprise, "and from Australia." From Cleaver & Sons, solicitors, he added, after scrutinizing the seal.

"Your father's lawyers," explained Miss Nugent. "Upon it, Arthur; perhaps they know about the money."

Arthur broke the seal and read aloud the following short note:

"Dear Sir.—Since our former letter to you in reference to the daughter of our client, Mr. Kedagh Nugent, we have learned accidentally that Mrs. Lytton is a widow. Her husband died in Paris, where he was, we believe, practicing as a physician. Thinking this information may be of interest—and possibly of use—to you, we transmit it at once, and remain, dear Sir, Faithfully yours,
"CLEAVER & SONS."

"Anthony Nugent, Esq."

"Then she is Kedagh's daughter!" exclaimed Barbara, with something very like a gasp. "I always felt she was not like a stranger."

"And my father knew of it!" exclaimed Arthur. "This accounts for his delicious words."

"Arthur," said his aunt solemnly, "you may depend on it: he has given her back her money. He would be just like him. That's where the money is."

"But, why not tell us?" said Arthur.
"We should not have balked his generosity, Aunt Barbara. Why should she keep here as a stranger? Why should she keep the secret from us? Why return her money in such a mysterious manner?"

"But," said the lawyer, "that is a question you're not meaning to suggest that Anthony gave up the whole of his fortune for his niece?"

"He'd not do that, I suppose," said Barbara.

"She seemed always to have a great deal of influence over him," said Arthur, with a smile.

"She would never use her influence unfairly, I am sure of that," said his aunt emphatically.

"My dear aunt, we really do not know what she used it for."

"Upon my word," exclaimed the lawyer,
"a little testily, 'we don't know anything at all. All this is the merest conjecture.
We are no nearer, or but very little nearer, to facts than we were before. Where is this niece? I never heard of her till now.'"

Barbara in a few words told the lawyer the story of Dora's coming to them from Paris, of her sojourn at Carriconna, and of her marriage with Trenchard.

"A very singular business," indeed," said the lawyer; "a sort of romance I suppose you might call it. Do you say that her father left nothing whatever to her?"

"Nothing whatever," replied Miss Nugent.
"Nothing whatever, as far as we have known," replied Miss Nugent.

"I wonder whether she knew, when she came over from Paris," said Mr. Bucknell, "that it was her uncle who was engaging herself, and that her father's fortune had been left to him?"

"That would have provided her with a motive, at all events," said Arthur.

"To be sure it would," answered the lawyer. "And where do you say the lady is now?"

"They're on their honeymoon," said Barbara.

"Of course, of course; honeymoon after marriage; that's proper enough. But you have some dress, I suppose?"

"No. I don't think they had a settled plan themselves."

"Ah, wanted to have the world to themselves; well, that's natural and proper enough, too. But you expect them back soon, no doubt?"

A Prominent Doctor Accused of Murder

A gentleman recently made a startling accusation in the hearing of a writer.

Said he: "I firmly believe that Dr. — intentionally or unintentionally killed my wife. He pronounced her consumption—Consumption—incurable. She accepted his word, and died. Yet since then I have heard of at least a dozen cases cured by Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery.
Her life might have been saved, for Consumption is not incurable. Of course it is, if it is not treated in time. I have heard of at least a dozen cases cured
by Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery.
Consumption is a disease of the blood—a scrofulous affection—and "Discovery" strikes at the root of the evil.
For all cases of weak lungs, spitting of blood, severe lingering coughs and kindred ailments it is a sovereign remedy."

The man who is unfaithful with one talent wouldn't do any better with 10,000.
