COUNCIL DENIES FAIR PLAY

Mr. J. R. Shuttleworth Treated With Grave Injustice.

Attempt to Impose Elective Monopoly on the City.

To the Editor of The Advertiser:

Failing to receive what to me would seem justice and fair treatment at the hands of the city council, I beg to ask if you will permit me to use part of your valuable space to explain my position and correct, if possible, some erroneous ideas which the public may have gathered from previous reports.

Firstly, I have always complained of being overcharged for the power service which has been supplied to me, and when the new company appeared I asked a rate and was quoted $72 per year, with the assurance that as soon as a test was made of the power I was actually using the rate would be reduced, if possible. This was done a few days later, and my rate fixed at $60 per year for what previously had cost me $140, or a saving of $667 per month.

The London manufacturers' committee are very anxious to have manufacturers come to the city but with the backing To the Editor of The Advertiser: are very anxious to have manufacturers come to the city, but with the backing of our council they allow one of their

of our council they allow one of their members to practically extort from me what is equal to a capital investment of $1,490, to do business in this city. No wonder that manufacturers will avoid London when we have to submit to this London when we have to submit to this unjust monopoly.

Secondly, I applied to the council in due form to be allowed to connect to Mr. Sifton's lines, the connecting wires to run from the top of my building to the top of the building opposite, entirely out of everybody's way, and the matter of so great importance to me is referred to a committee of four, with of so great importance to me is referred to a committee of four, with the general council and myself believing that if the city solicitor's report was favorable I should receive my permission immediately. Instead, of this, they use the power given them by having the power company at this meeting and listen to their arguments, which, if the paper reports are correct, I have evidence to show that their statements are incorrect; and moreover, I was not notified to be at the meeting, and had no idea the question was coming up, as they had previously almost indefinitely postponed the consideration. This I consider absolutely unjust treatment, and I denable to the consideration.

poned the consideration. This I consider absolutely unjust treatment, and I desire to know what Mayor Beck thinks of such actions of his committees.

Thanking you, Mr. Editor, for your valued space, and feeling sure that when the public know how a couple of blocks are receiving cheap light and power, and the manufacturing interests of the city are hampered, they will demand justice and competition wherever it can be secured.

J. R. SHUTTLEWORTH.

Orient Club at 10 o'clock.
This ended Milne's testimony. Mr. McEvoy read section 186 of the election act, which provides that the person who takes the first step in the securing of a bribe is the principal offender in the crime. He pointed out that Milne was by his own story the principal offender. Joseph Grindall, the next witness, said he worked at the Southam Printing Company. He knew Mr. Hayden, and conversed with him on May 28 as to Milne. Mr. Hayden asked how Milne voted, and witness said he did not know. Mr. Hayden asked Grindell to ask Milne, and witness said he would. That was all the conversation with Mr. Hayden. The conversation took place at noon. Witness saw Mr. Hayden again at suppertime and Mr. Hayden asked again as to Milne's vote. Witness replied that Milne was unde-Strike of Soft Coal Miners Would feet is not immediately serious, cided. > Mr. Magee submitted that Grindall was shown to be an agent of Mr. Hayden in the matter. Mr. McEvoy contended that he was not.

Witness delivered Milne's message to Mr. Hayden at suppertime. The latter made no reply. Witness saw Milne after at the Orient Club about 9 or 9:10. Milne was inside the club. It was about 8 o'clock when witness went to fore Milne came. Witness had no conversation with Mr. Hayden as to which side he (Hayden) was working on, nor did witness know. Mr. Hayden had not asked witness about any other voters. Witness took no part in the election, and was never in any committee rooms. Witness did not tell Milne which side Hayden was working on.

He made no mention of money to Grindall in connection with Milne. Witness neither went to see Milne nor sent anyone to see him. It was between 11:45 and 12 when witness went to the Boswell House. Witness saw no one there but the proprietor, and was there only five minutes, going then to the restaurant. Witness had no pocketbook, memorandum or list of names with him that night, and did not take down Milne's name. He gave Milne no money in an envelope, and did not receive any money in an envelope for Milne. This closed the evidence for the defense. Mr. Magee said the matter was entirely one of credibility of witnesses. One witness swore there was bribery, while the accused swore as positively

Witness admitted he was lying when Police Magistrate Love, in rendering a decision, said there was no evidence he told Mr. Hayden he was indifferent on which to make a conviction. In order to justify a conviction in such a case, there must be evidence which would place the guilt of the accused beyond reasonable doubt. The strongest evidence given was that of the defense. If Milne's story were true, and he went after Hayden with the deliberate purpose of asking for a bribe, then he would be an accomplice. Under the circumstances, said the po-lice magistrate, he could come to no conclusion save that the defendant was not guilty, and he accordingly acquitted him.

Mr. J. M. McEvoy informed an Advertiser reporter that civil suits will at once be entered against the parties who were behind the charge against Hayden.
