PETER ELSON AGAIN ELECTED

Former Member Will Represent East Middlesex at Ottawa.

ROUTLEDGE VOTE SLUMPS

A Surprise for the Liberals in a Constituency Which Would Profit by Reciprocity.

Mr. Peter Elson was re-elected for East Middlesex by 551 majority. He made gains in every township, particularly in London Township. The suburbs about the city gave him a great lift, the workmen employed in the factories there voting for him almost to a man. Westminster, Dr. Routledge's own township, fell off badly, the Liberal vote being much below the average.

The vote in sub-divisions is as follows:

Mr. Elson's Address.
Mr. Elson, speaking in his committee rooms, thanked his supporters for the splendid and noble work they had done. He was more than glad that the election had been won with clean hands. They had shown clearly that they did not want reciprocity. He was lovers of your own country. You feel that you are doing well.

and you want to leave well enough alone.

Reciprocity, Mr. Elson believed, would tend to loosen the bonds which bind Canada to the motherland, and this fine old Dominion would naturally drift towards her southern neighbor. He hoped that no foreign flag would ever be planted on Canadian soil.

Mr. George Neeley thought that the result of the election showed the reasonableness of the people. The majority, it was clearly to be seen, was not a straight Conservative majority. The result showed that the people were opposed to what Mr. Neeley described as "the reactionary proposition of reciprocity."

Mr. H. B. Elliot declared that the result of the election showed that the people were opposed to "the most corrupt administration that the country had ever seen." They were turning upon the traitor who had dared to sell his country. Mr. Elliot was glad that the electors had voted to perpetuate British institutions in this country.

TONS OF SUPPLIES FOR MAN IN ARCTIC

Appeal of Harry V. Radford, the Explorer, Answered by Arctic Club of America.

New York, Sept. 21.—In response to an appeal for aid, two tons of supplies have been forwarded to a remote point in the Hudson Bay for Harry Vincent Radford, an explorer, who left here in January, 1909. He intended to wander three years in the frozen north for a study of rare animals and vegetation. The relief supplies have been sent from Montreal under the auspices of the Arctic Club of America, and are being carried by vessels of the Hudson Bay Company. It is his intention to leave the coast at Chesterfield Inlet, Mr. Radford's point of departure.

The last word from Mr. Radford was a letter which Anthony Pella, secretary of the Arctic Club, received a few days ago. Mr. Radford said four companions had been killed by the natives. He had been taken to the Arctic by the natives, and he had been taken to the Arctic by the natives. He had been taken to the Arctic by the natives, and he had been taken to the Arctic by the natives.

Mr. William Gray and Major Beatrice also spoke.

Mr. H. B. Elliot declared that the result of the election showed the reasonableness of the people. The majority, it was clearly to be seen, was not a straight Conservative majority. The result showed that the people were opposed to what Mr. Neeley described as "the reactionary proposition of reciprocity."
