

WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 21, 1885.

The Haves de Grace (Maryland) Republic of the day last, has the following in reference to our old friend, Mr. Hector MacLean, who is now once more living amongst us:—

Mr. Hector MacLean, of Nova Scotia, who resided in our city for the past year, nearly engaged at a grating contract on the B. & O. extension near this city, left, with Mr. MacLean, for their home, this week. Mr. MacLean, and his excellent wife leave many friends, who have become acquainted with them during their sojourn in our city. Mr. MacLean's business and social life in our people have been of the most pleasant and satisfactory nature, and his name looms out as a shining mark among the many contractors on the B. & O. who have absconded, and left unpaid debts behind them.

The same paper contains a portrait of Mr. Robert Garrett, the president of the Baltimore and Ohio road, and a short history of the road. It is one of the best railroad properties in the United States, its estimated value being $250,000,000, and it extends through nearly 3000 miles of territory. To push the road into Philadelphia cost the company owning the road $14,000,000, and it was on this work that Mr. MacLean had his contract.

Local and Other Matters. Kings College has been recently reorganized with a staff of five Professors, and twenty-seven students.

Some of the greater European powers, it is claimed, can avert hostilities becoming more clearly defined than at present, and no doubts they could if they acted in unison.

England usually has good deal to say whenever Turkey is concerned, but she does not appear to be interesting herself to any marked extent in the present trouble.

Joe Billings, the American humorist, whose quaint sayings—often absurd and always witty made him famous—died on the 14th inst., at Monterey, Cal. His real name was A. W. Shaw. His might have been said to have stumbled into literature, as he was an auctioneer in Poughkeepsie, at one time in his life, and was so witty and talkative at his sales, that the editor of a small daily paper, published in the same town, asked him to write something for his paper, saying that a man who could talk so well ought to be able to write something pretty good.

Don't forget the concert in the Church, Paradise, singing a multitude of choruses, and in the course of much illness. Burdock Blood Purifier cures Constipation by acting on the bowels to a natural action.

The fair sex of Bridgetown are quite a flutter of excitement, in view of the annual event of the Methodist Church and the other in the Roman Catholic Chapel.

A concert was given by the S. S. of this place last Sabbath, preparatory to the closing of the school for the present season, and presented a pleasing appearance. The concert was witnessed by a large number of people.

Two cases of smallpox are reported to exist at Harbor Grace, having been brought there, it is said, by the ship Yarns, which arrived from Boston.

One of the Middle town tradesmen, S. L. Freeman, well known as a first-rate man, has retired from business to live in Boston.

A man named Quinn, of Parrsboro, has been arrested for vagrancy. He is now in jail awaiting trial.

A collision occurred on the North-east Railroad, near Hampshire, U. S., on the 18th inst., between two trains. Two engineers and a brakeman were injured.
