Face of New Zealand Gold Medal.

The Massey-Toronto wins the elegant Gold Medal at the Southland Field Trial, Invercargill, New Zealand, for 1889, also 1890. At this trial, held Feb. 14th, 1890, the greatest of all New Zealand trials, the report says:—"Fully 300 farmers and others interested in agriculture were present. The crop of oats operated on was exceptionally heavy, averaging quite seventy-five bushels to the acre. It was green and stood in places over six feet high. The Massey-Toronto performed its work in matchless style, and won first place, finishing its plot twenty minutes sooner than the Deering, McCormick, Brantford, etc."

The judging was by ballot, and resulted in the Massey-Toronto taking first place, and being awarded the elegant Gold Medal, having received 20 votes. Reid & Gray stood 2nd, getting 19 votes; Hornsby 3rd, 16 votes; McCormick 4th, 14 votes; Howard 5th, 12 votes; Deering 6th, 5 votes. The Brantford (Canada), which was present and took part in the Trial, received no votes whatever, it being also reported that the farmer who purchased the "Brantford" previous to the trial voted for the Massey-Toronto.
