

After the slight reserve common to all insular people has thawed, one finds the Islanders thoroughly sociable; and in common parlance "they're all right." Society in Charlottetown is represented by no millionaires, either in the blue-blood or money line; but it does consist of an extremely agreeable and prosperous middle class with which it is a pleasure to associate.

Perhaps like many others you will not take the trouble to go outside of Charlottetown during your holiday save for a day or so, because it will seem so quiet, so different, so emancipated from the constraints of the rapid life you have left behind, that you consider it comparatively tranquil, and spend your time pleasantly there. And that may be a good thing to do. Boating and bathing may be had near the city, and the country around is always within reach, two or three hours of driving taking one to any of the seaside resorts.
