

Numerous demands are being made of the Association with a view to the creation of new instruments, equipment, special clothing and radio aids. This is simpler than building dirigibles, but even in these respects we are poorly supplied.

Moreover, we continue to be faced with the long-standing problem of how to fill the period between seasons in such a way that the air detachments are not putting in time to no purpose. One suggestion is that during the wintertime we could be working in forest cooperative enterprises, workshops and artels. However, the forest fire protection system does not have its own equipment and premises for conversion of timber.

Does not have... The problem is unresolved... Impossible... Undecided... Far too many problems have accumulated in our business, and they remain unresolved for years and even decades.

(Author) L. Korotkov
Fireman-Parachutist
Lesnaya promyshlennost
4 May 1990
Page 1 (full text)