

CONTENTS.

ix.

58	Sto Gorges, and Captain John Mason,	104
59	The author's motives for undertaking his travels,	106

CHAPTER I.

60	The origin of the Indians,	109
64	Sentiments of various writers on this point,	110
66	——— Monsieur Charlevoix,	115
67	——— James Adair, &c.	120
68	——— the author of this work,	123
68	Coproduction of the latter by Doctor Robertson,	127

CHAPTER II.

70	Of the persons, dress, &c. of the Indians,	128
76	An account of those who have written on this subject,	130
76	Description of the persons of the Indians,	130
78	——— their dress,	130
78	——— the dress of the Ottawaguies,	130
83	——— the dress of the Nandowessies,	130
84	The manner in which they build their towns and huts,	130
86	Their domestic traffic,	130

CHAPTER III.

89	Of the manners, qualifications, &c. of the Indians,	136
92	Peculiar customs of the women,	137
92	The circumspect and stoical disposition of the men,	137
93	Their amazing sagacity,	139
93	The liberality of the Indians, and their opinion respecting money,	140

CHAPTER IV.

100	Their method of reckoning time, &c.	143
101	The names by which they distinguish the months,	144
102	Their idea of the use of figures,	144