Canadian Press Despatch. LONDON, Jan. 18.—The British military observer at the front dis-cusses the part aviation is playing in the military operations. In this con-nection the observer says: "Aviation has profoundly modified warfare by eliminating the element of surprise, for so long as the weather permits aerial reconnaissance it is impossible to carry out any great concentration or movement of troops by day within a considerable radius without being discovered. Especially in the present form of warfare have the former functions of the cavalry, as regards reconnaissance, been usurped by the flying corps." Notice is hereby given that Cecil How and Lambert, of the City of Toronto County of York, Province of Ontario Accountant, will apply to the Pariamer as regards reconnaissance, been usurped by the flying corps." The officer then pays a tribute to the remarkable work of the British aviators and mentions as a frequent occurrence reconnaissance in "driving snow with the temperature below zero or in a gale, under fire of the con as Patents and Lega Legal Cards Bicycle Repairin ALL WORK GUARANTEED J.
