The Yukon Molehill.

The Yukon hurricane has blown over in the House of Commons, for the present, at least. Mr. Sifton need not have paid Sir Charles Hibbert Tupper the compliment of a five-hours' reply, as parliamentary ethics do not require a minister to notice anonymous scandal-mongering. The same charge of indefiniteness cannot be laid against Mr. Sifton's speech, which was a plain, unvarnished tale, perfectly clear and frank. He withheld nothing—there was nothing to withhold. He laid bare every official act from the day upon which he was called upon to administer the Yukon, and the record shows above all things an honest purpose in dealing with a great emergency.

The whole case of the Opposition falls to the ground when we consider Mr. Sifton's choice of agents for the government of the new territory. It has been charged that he recalled Mr. Ogilvie, the uncrowned king of the Klondike, and deposed him from the office of administrator of that region. As a matter of fact, Mr. Ogilvie was merely a topographical surveyor in the Klondike when the fame of that country burst on the world. Mr. Ogilvie asked for permission to leave there because of his health, and the position of first administrator of the Yukon was then conferred upon Major Walsh, a distinguished ex-officer of the Mounted Police. Major Walsh took the post on the understanding that he would be relieved by Mr. Ogilvie when the latter regained his health. When the appointment of Major Walsh was announced the Opposition press praised him to the skies. This is the man whose character Sir Charles Hibbert Tupper attacked in the House, but the major has issued an unqualified denial. The other Government official at whom a great deal of mud has been flung is Mr. Fawcett, the former gold commissioner, but Mr. Fawcett was chosen at the suggestion of the Surveyor-General of Canada, an appointee of the late Conservative Government. Admittedly the postoffice management caused a good deal of complaint, but the postoffice was in charge of Capt. Harper, of the Mounted Police, who was assisted by members of that corps. Capt. Harper and his staff were, of course, also in the service of the last Government. Judge Maguire, the judicial head of the Yukon, was raised to the bench by a Conservative premier. As a Liberal member waggishly remarked, the trouble arose through Mr. Sifton appointing too many "Tories," but this adds to the proof of the minister's unbiased motives, and his conscientious endeavor to give the Yukon the best services at his command.

Mr. Sifton has emerged from the ordeal with an enhanced reputation. As he well pointed out, the opening up of the Yukon created a situation that no Canadian administration was ever before called upon to face. In a sub-arctic region, remote from the seat of government, almost inaccessible for six months in the year, a new community sprang up, with the suddenness of a mushroom. On the young Minister of the Interior fell the task of meeting this unexpected crisis by contriving the machinery of government for this far-off, isolated country. The fact that British law and order have been planted in that territory, where there are so many turbulent and exciting elements, as firmly as in any part of the empire, is an honor to Canada, and a tribute to the organizing genius of Mr. Sifton and his chosen instruments. Mr. Sifton is responsible to the public for the men whom he has selected to supervise the administration of the Yukon, and there is yet no evidence that his judgment in this respect has been defective, while there is positive proof that he put party considerations aside. If constables, clerks or minor officials have been guilty of taking bribes, Mr. Sifton is no way incriminated, as he had to rely on the integrity and vigilance of their superiors. But not one charge of corruption has been substantiated in the court of inquiry at Dawson City. Mr. Sifton himself readily agreed to investigate any specific accusation that may be brought forward, but none have been forthcoming yet at Ottawa.

The Canadian Lumber Situation.

United States Senator Forster, of Tacoma, Washington, State, is conceding enough to say that he believes it might be possible to have the present tariff of $2 per thousand on Canadian lumber entering the United States reduced by 20 per cent. That would be no reduction worth speaking about. If the tariff cannot be thrown off entirely, it ought at least to be reduced one-half. And if it is not so reduced, while it may be somewhat hard on the lumber industry of Canada, it will be so much the worse for the American consumers. The United States needs our lumber more than our lumber needs the United States.

Canada need not be in a great hurry to market her forests, if they are well protected against the ravages of fire. Unfortunately this danger, which contiguous settlement has always hitherto made possible, has been one of the chief reasons why our rulers have been so ready to sell off the limits. It has been deemed better to sell at the market price than to have the woods burned down, thus putting nothing into the public treasury.

Our tree-wealth, if care is taken for its preservation, will continue to be of immense value to us. There is really no reason why this country should not become the greatest woodware manufacturing and exporting country in the world, and that in the near future.

The New Ontario.

The pictures of New Ontario drawn by the speakers at the City Hall last night open pleasant prospects. People who are satisfied in Old Ontario should of course stay where they are—in the garden of the Dominion. But the young men of Ontario who are constantly leaving the old farms to swell the population of the cities or to take up broader acres in the Northwest, should turn their attention to the great possibilities of their own Province. Agriculture is no mere experiment in New Ontario, as thousands of prosperous settlers can testify. The vast region is being opened up by railways, and the expansion of the mining industry affords a growing local market for farm produce. It is estimated that of the sixty million acres of land in New Ontario, fifteen millions are adapted for wheat-growing or dairying. The young farmers of Old Ontario, who think they need wider opportunities, should learn what their own Province has to offer them.

To Visit the Northwest.

Hon. Sydney Fisher and Hon. David Mills have both been warmly pressed to visit the Northwest and British Columbia during the ensuing summer, as soon as their parliamentary duties will allow. Neither of these statesmen is a stranger in the Northwest. Mr. Mills had a good record as Minister of the Interior in the Mackenzie Cabinet, and in the early nineties he visited the Pacific coast, while Mr. Fisher traversed a large section of the Northwest before he became a Minister of the Crown. When west, Mr. Mills would, of course, visit and inspect the penal institutions, which are in charge of his department, and Mr. Fisher would have a warm welcome as the first Minister of Agriculture for the Dominion who has been, and is, a farmer.

Those charged with the management of our public affairs cannot see too much of our country, and its marvelous resources and capabilities. Mr. Fisher would have visited the Northwest last summer, but he was needed in Great Britain, where he spent a busy couple of months bringing the merits of our products before the dealers and consumers.

The British Army Slendered.

Col. Sir F. R. Wingate glances the lie to the statement that the Anglo-Egyptian troops were merited to the wounded dervishes. In an official report to Lord Kitchener, Col. Wingate says: "An Egyptian doctor, Hassan Effendi Zeki, who had been a prisoner with the dervishes, was appointed general superintendent for the care of the dervish wounded. He at once formed a hospital in a central position, where upwards of 400 of the worst cases were tended; a large number of out-patients also attended daily to have their wounds dressed. In addition to the above, many of the wounded were attended in their homes, and every effort was made to alleviate their sufferings. All possible assistance was rendered by the Egyptian army medical department, by whom surgical appliances, field dressings, etc., were freely provided, and the efforts made to treat the wounded elicited their gratitude and surprise, affording a very agreeable contrast to the manner in which they were accustomed to be treated under the Khalifa's rule."

The effluxion of language on Parliament Hill still continues.

We regret to hear that our former fellow-townsmen, Sir Frank Smith, is still far from well, and that it is doubtful whether he will be able to take his seat in the Dominion Senate during the present session.

The people of Chicago, Toledo and Detroit have declared for the principle of municipal ownership. Now it remains for them to elect men with enough principle to make municipal ownership a success.

When the people of Old Ontario think of the timber, the mineral, and the agricultural wealth of New Ontario, they also think of the fact that but for the vigilance and pluck of Sir Oliver Mowat, New Ontario would not now be a part of this Province.

The cycle of progress has reached India also. Revenues are buoyant and industry is moving briskly. During the twelve months just closed, 1,451 miles of new railways were opened, bringing the total mileage up to 22,650. In the ensuing year 1,570 miles will be built, leaving 1,859 miles to be finished later on, in accordance with the Government's programme.

In the British House of Commons, on one noteworthy occasion, a bishop rose to address the assembled wisdom, and began by saying he would divide his speech into twelve heads. Lord Durham thereupon got up and begged leave to interpose for a few moments while he told an anecdote. He was returning home, he said, a few nights before, and passed St. Paul's Cathedral just before midnight. As he did so, there was a drunken man trying to see the time. Just then the clock began to strike the hour. The drunken man listened, looked hard at the clock, and said: "D—n you, why couldn't you have said all that at once?" After this relation the bishop condensed his remarks. If it were possible to silence the long-winded talkers in the Dominion House of Commons by telling a story with a moral, or by any other means, it ought to be done. Unfortunately, the bores in our parliament seem to be impervious to the sufferings of others. They are ever ready to talk to a sleeping deputy speaker and to the cushions in empty seats, but at what a cost to the taxpayers!

Faith Fenton's report of the inquiry at Dawson City, written March 6, and published in the Globe, tells of a witness who swore he was hired by the Klondike Nugget to gather evidence against the Government officials. This same fellow, with apparent reluctance and after much persuasion, added that he was also in the pay of the Young Conservative Association of Ottawa. It is denied that there is such an association, but the witness' unwillingness in making his statement—he had to be almost threatened—left little doubt that he was engaged as a spy by some political organization. Have these dirty methods been resorted to because no reputable person can be got to make a charge against the Yukon officials? It seems so.

What Others Say.

The Women Outdone.

[Ottawa Journal.] Some men who get into parliament talk four, five and six hours stretches, yet other men who run papers will make alleged jokes about the amount women talk.

China's Hope.

[Hamilton Herald.] The request of the Chinese authorities for a slice of Chinese coast territory for a Chinese mining company indicates that China is hoping to share in the partition of the Chinese Empire.

The Old-Fashioned Winter.

[Toronto Telegram.] Snow fell in Owen Sound this season to an aggregate depth of 20 feet 7 inches, and the Oldest Inhabitant is thereby reminded of the sort of winters they used to have "away back in the eighties."

Hon. Mr. Tarte's Oratory.

[United Canada, Ottawa.] Perhaps no man who ever came to the house of commons has improved so much as Hon. Mr. Tarte since 1896. His speech on Tuesday night will rank among the best. Mr. Tarte has ability and Tory abuse has made him popular with his own party.

Prosperity Out West.

[Winnipeg Free Press.] There is every cause for gratification among western farmers at the progress of the times and in the prospects of the immediate future. Pessimists, grumblers, critics and quacks with nostrums will continue to be heard from occasionally, but their disheartened cries will be drowned in the roar of industry and development which, with the thunder of spring-released torrents, will soon be borne to our ears.

ULCERS FOR 35 YEARS

Eleven on One Limb at One Time With Excoriating Pain. All Remedies Tried, and Numberless Physicians Little Benefit. CUTICURA Speedily Cures.

My mother has been a victim to ulcers from various veins for thirty-five years. Eleven on the limb affected. Excoriating pain and intense suffering were endured, with all sorts of remedies on trial and numberless physicians' calls and prescriptions applied, but all practically without result. However, at last the remedial agent was found in CUTICURA (ointment), which surely proved its weight in gold, alleviating pain and causing healing processes to commence and a cure speedily effected. She has, also, used CUTICURA with marked benefit in erysipelas of the face and eczema. The CUTICURA SOAP, also, has established a record only as the best cleansing, purifying, and healing in its nature, having proved itself a most excellent and valuable auxiliary to the CUTICURA (ointment). I would remark that this testimonial is entirely uncollected, being a voluntary contribution for humanity's sake, and the commendation of the CUTICURA REMEDIES to the fullest confidence, being satisfied of their purity, genuineness, and almost miracle wrought.

March 16, 1898. W. T. MORSE, Cabot, Vt.

CUTICURA

Begin with the Blood and Ends with The Skin and Scalp.

That is to say, CUTICURA RESOLVENT, purifies the blood, purifiers and humor expeller, greatest of blood and circulating fluids of the system, and thus removes the cause, while warm baths and CUTICURA SOAP, and CUTICURA (ointment), cure, cleanse the skin and scalp of crusts and scales, and by their burning and inflammation, soothe and heal. They are quickly, permanently, and economically cured the most vexatious, disgusting humors of the skin, scalp, and blood, with loss of hair, when all other remedies fail.
