JEWES AND GENTILES DIFFER IN METHOD

International bakers in Toronto are presenting the new agreement to the public shortly. An interesting note in connection with the agreement is given in issue presented by the two Rochester locals, one Gentile, the other Jewish.

The latter asks for a minimum wage of $18 and a maximum of $25 a week, with a 40-hour week for apprentices.

The Gentile union agreement calls for a general raise of $3 a week, but its scale is lower than that of the Jewish journeymen bakers.

The Jewish union, too, is asking for $19 a day for journeymen, but the other is calling for only $8 a day.

THREE LAY DEAD SINCE MARCH 3

Landlord Finds Decomposed
Corpses of Tenants—
Gas Jet On.

The decomposed bodies of two men and one woman were found in a room over a Chinese laundry at 325 West King street yesterday afternoon. The bodies were those of John Callicott, his wife, Mary, and M. Johnston, who had been living with them. Death was from gas poisoning, and as far as can be learned by the police the bodies have been lying in the room since March 3. An investigation by the police showed that liquor had been consumed in the room, as a number of empty bottles were found lying on the floor.

The police are of the opinion that the gas jet of a small stove had been accidentally left turned on.

Mr. and Mrs. Callicott, whose bodies were identified at the morgue by Charles Callicott, 231 Christie street, a brother of the dead man, were each 35 years of age. Mr. Johnston is believed to have relatives in Niagara Falls. Amongst his personal belongings the police found several pay envelopes, showing he had been in the employ of the Hydro-Electric Company. He also had a book of tickets issued on February 23 by the Niagara Falls radial line.

Charles Callicott stated that the last time he had seen his brother alive was about ten days ago. Slachter Jacob, 369 West King street, owner of the building, discovered the bodies when he called to see if his tenants had moved.

Thought They Had Left.
On entering the laundry office of Lee Long, Jacob asked if the people upstairs had moved. Long told him he thought they had left a week ago, as he had not seen or heard of them.

Walking to the flat above, Jacob found the door locked, and lifting the letter box detected the odor of gas. He called Policeman Cummings, and after turning the gas off at the meter downstairs, Cummings broke open the door and found the dead bodies.

All three were fully dressed. Mr. and Mrs. Callicott were lying in bed, while Johnston's body was found lying on a camp bed in the same room.

Examining the fixtures connected to the small gas stove, the police found that the jet to the stove had been turned fully on. The room was filled with gas fumes, and the bodies were distended and blackened. Mrs. Callicott at one time lived near Peterboro.

Her husband was the manufacturer of an automatic air vent.

The police notified Chief Coroner A. J. Johnson of the affair, and removed the bodies to the morgue. It has not yet been decided as to whether or not an inquest will be held.

CITY HALL NOTES

City Solicitor Johnson, acting under instructions, has beaten the city council to it, and in this week's Ontario Gazette, appears an advertisement of a civic bill whereby the legislature is asked to enable Toronto to issue debentures for the raising of $945,000 for the proposed Mount Pleasant civic car line. Altogether $1,060,000 is required for the purpose, as estimated by the works commissioner, the additional $117,000 is already available. This amount remains for the money voted by the ratepayers some years ago for the general civic car line scheme for the entire city. If the council rejects the new proposal, this application will be withdrawn.

The board adopted the mayor's motion to instruct the works commissioner to get in touch with the chief constable, requesting him to report on the matter of enabling a certain number of jitneys to operate in Toronto during the rush hours.

The civic works committee seems to be catching the popular spirit around the city hall and is rapidly developing the habit of referring back the majority of matters which confront them. When they met yesterday afternoon, no less than six communications received were relegated back for further consideration.

Mount Pleasant road was brought up again, but this time only in the form of a communication from the city hall and is rapidly developing the habit of referring back the majority of matters which confront them.

AMUSEMENTS

The committee approved Works Commissioner Harris' recommendation regarding the widening and grading of Bloor street, from High Park avenue to Jane street, so as to give a varying width of from 35 to nearly 87 feet. The cost is estimated at $185,000, of which the city as a whole will contribute $128,750.

Commissioner Harris' recommendation as to the reconstruction and widening of the asphalt pavement on Avenue road was referred back for further consideration.

The same fate befell a similar recommendation for reconstruction and widening of Howard street asphalt pavement.

Ald. MacGregor headed a large delegation of Lansdowne avenue property owners, who asked that a lane between that thoroughfare and St. Charles avenue be widened from 10 to 14 feet. This matter was also referred back, this time to the assessment commissioner.

The alderman explained that the people wanted the lane widened in order that they could park automobiles there, instead of paying $10 a month for garage accommodation.

NOT IN THIS COUNCIL

Prominent members of the International Union of Bootmakers and Shoemakers in Toronto, Midland, Welland and Bridgeburg, in an interview with The World yesterday afternoon, vigorously denied having affiliated with the Canadian Council of the Metal Trades Section of the American Federation of Labor.

They stated that so far they had not been invited to join. This was an article they resented, especially if it was presumed by the Canadian Council that they would have to come in anyway. They also pointed out that their wage scale was 10 cents in advance of that adopted by the Metal Trades Council.

CIGAR MAKERS STRIKE.—London, Ont., March 12.—More than four hundred cigar makers in this city went on strike tonight to enforce the demand of the Cigar Makers' Union for a general increase of five dollars a thousand on all classes of cigars. Nine of the 13 local cigar factories are affected.
