New York, Aug. 14.—James Losco, known to his friends as the "Newark Valentino," because he is said to effect the style of the movie star, even to tan suspenders, was confronted in Yorkville Court by two young but un-happy women. They assert they are Julia Losco of Coney Island, said she was married to the "Sheik of New Jersey" in Newark on March 17, 1918.

Catherine Scott Losco told the court she married Losco at St. Stephen's church on April 12, 1921.

church on April 12, 1921.

The two young women became acquainted. Mrs. Losco No. 1 made an appointment with her husband and when he arrived Friday night he was met by both and by Detective John Maher, who says he confessed. Magistrate Hatting held Losco in $2,500 hail on a short affidavit charging bigamy.

Public squares and parks of the city of Buenos Aires soon will be provided with small public libraries set up in the open air. The municipality has given its approval to a model design consisting of a white-painted book-case with ten foot shelves, metal curtains, an over-hanging roof, and a bench for the caretaker, where readers may sit to examine books they wish to
