

CLEANING BUOYS IN THE NORTH SEA

Many of these buoys have been in place for more than three years so they were taken up recently and given a thorough cleaning. More than a ton of mussels were scraped from some of them. The photo shows one of the buoys being replaced in the North Sea. An idea of their immense size may be obtained by comparing the husky sailors with the buoy.

WOMAN KIDNAPPED AS SHE PLAYS GOLF

Three Men Seize Mrs. Marshall on Cincinnati Autos and Dash Off in Automobile.

Cincinnati, Ohio, June 21.—Mrs. Clara Marshall, aged 30, was seized on the golf links of the exclusive Metcalf Country Club, and, despite her screams and struggles, was carried to an automobile standing near by and whisked away.

The automobile, with engine running and a man at the wheel, was manoeuvred to a point on the course near Ryland avenue, where a player would come close to the roadway. As Mrs. Marshall, Mrs. Louis J. Huck, wife of a former brewer, and two women companions, neared this point the car swung off the road and on to the sidewalk. Three men leaped from the car and without a word seized Mrs. Marshall. The chauffeur had only to step on the accelerator when they returned with the struggling woman and the machine dashed away.

Recovering from their amazement, golfers and caddies leaped into machines parked along the course and attempted to give pursuit. No sooner, however, had the alarm been given on the golf links than the police received a telephone message from Earl Lampe, a plumber, who said that as he was driving toward Cincinnati over the North Bend road, he saw a car approaching, which he thought he recognized. In the back seat, he said, he saw Mrs. Marshall held firmly in the grasp of two men. He made haste to telephone and informed Mrs. Marshall's father and then told the police. He also mentioned the names of the man he says he recognized. Mrs. Marshall filed suit for divorce from her husband, Albert Marshall, proprietor of the Grand Danant and the Tootal Inn, on April 23. Extreme cruelty was charged. The Marshalls were married last July, but have been separated several months. Mrs. Marshall has been making her home with her father, William Schaw, treasurer of the Krippendorf Dittman Shoe Company.

As soon as the police learned that Mrs. Marshall had a suit for divorce pending, they began a search for her husband to see if he could throw any light on the kidnappers or on the motive back of the abduction. Mr. Marshall, it is said, is very fond of his wife and deeply regrets her attempt to get a divorce, but so far as known he has never given any indication that he would resort to kidnapping to prevent her from having her will.

Mrs. Hauck, one of those with whom

Mrs. Marshall was playing golf at the time of the abduction, said: "It was all over before any one fully realized what had happened. I did not get a good look at the men who seized Mrs. Marshall and put her into the machine, but I am quite sure I had never seen any of them before. So far as I am aware no one who witnessed the affair recognized any of the men."

DUTY MATTERS IN BRITISH HOUSE

London, June 21.—(Canadian Press)—Imitation given in the House of Commons yesterday that the government intends to apply the anti-dumping provisions of the Safeguarding of Industries Act, was very quietly received by the free trade element of the opposition and the real fight will not come until orders for enforcement of these provisions come before the house.

The act provides that no duty shall be imposed under the anti-dumping clauses until it has received the specific approval of the house. A series of lively discussion leading possibly to a revival of the controversy over fiscal matters may be expected.

Signs of such a revival were not wanting yesterday when the Independent Liberals attacked the principle of an imperial preference in the finance bill, mainly on the ground that preference were "fertilizers of tariffs."

An attack was also made yesterday on the so-called McKenna duties which were imposed on certain articles of luxuries during the war and have been maintained ever since.

FALLING CHIMNEY KILLS A FIREMAN

Four Others Hurt in Blaze at Old Lillian Russell Home at Fox Rockway.

New York, June 21.—One fireman was killed and four others injured when a chimney caved in while the men were fighting a fire in the old Lillian Russell summer home, a two-story colonial style on Red's Lane. The dead fireman was Emmett Donnelly of 1821 Hollywood avenue, Fox Rockway. He was married and had one child.

The building is owned by the O'Leary estate. It had been used as a hotel, but has been unoccupied for a considerable time. Boys have frequently played in it, and it is thought that possibly they were responsible for the fire. Engine Company No. 184 was the first to arrive. They went into the building and were playing water on the flames on the first floor, when the chimneys collapsed and broke through the roof and the second floor. One chimney was in the front of the cottage and the other in the rear, and the firemen were showered with bricks and heavy fragments of wood.

The four injured firemen, Abrams, Curran, Dugan and Henney, were carried out unconscious by other firemen. They were treated by an ambulance surgeon and taken to St. Joseph's Hospital. Shortly after they had been brought out Donnelly was missed. The

A Tip From Tourists

As soon as the trains carrying tourists from the States strike the Annapolis Valley, the first thing the passengers do is to jump off at the station and drink a bottle of

Evangeline Apple Cyder

—And numbers of them buy as high as half a dozen to take with them on the train. For the fame of this Cyder, like the fame of the Annapolis Orchards from which it comes, is spreading. For a quick quench, at soda fountains. For guests, keep a case with some on ice. Sparkling, satisfying.

building was ablaze when this discovery was made and search was impossible at the time. When the fire was under control at 4 p. m., Donnelly's body was found by firemen, and was so badly burned as to be hardly recognizable.

RIVALS FOR RUBBER

Radio Outfit Makers and Pipe Manufacturers Clamor For It.

The radio craze has been a mighty good thing and still is for the manufacturers of electrical supplies and wireless outfits, but it is not causing any noticeable outburst of rejoicing in the pipe and smokers' article trade, says the New York Times. As a matter of fact, the leading pipe manufacturers in and about New York City have been put to a great deal of inconvenience and expense as a result of the wireless boom.

That doesn't mean that one should jump to the conclusion that the pipe people are put out because radio fans are giving up the "noxious weed." On that score there is no ground for grumbling, for there is no evident decline of smoking, and especially pipe smoking. According to one of the leading manufacturers of pipes, the men and a good many of the women are doing more pipe smoking than at any other recent period.

The reason for their complaint is far removed from the question of smoking and not smoking. It arises from the fact that a material that is used in a minor but rather essential part of pipes and cigarette holders is also just as essential to radio apparatus. That material is vulcanized rubber.

Virtually every moderately priced pipe and many of the very expensive ones have vulcanized rubber bits. The long novelty cigarette holders that at present are enjoying great popularity are also for the most part entirely manufactured of vulcanized rubber.

Radio outfits also use vulcanized rubber to a considerable extent. It is employed usually for bases, insulators, and in almost all types of outfits for the headpieces.

To intensify the conflict of interests between the pipe and the radio industries, the manufacturers who fabricate vulcanized rubber cigarette holders and pipe bits are the identical ones who are engaged in manufacturing the rubber accessories for radio. As a result the rubber people have been overwhelmed with a glut of orders and are daily falling further behind in their shipments.

The pipe people don't know how to react in these circumstances, but they do know that they are still waiting for deliveries of rubber that are long overdue. One pipe manufacturer has stated that in his own case he has pipes completely finished except for the fitting of the mouthpieces, and he doesn't know now whether he will ever get them. Deliveries of vulcanized rubber bits and holders are from sixteen to eighteen weeks overdue.

How serious this is to the pipe industry can best be realized when one considers the amount of rubber used for smokers' articles. There are no definite figures available, but one of the leading men in the industry has said that upward of $500,000 would be a conservative estimate of the amount annually expended by the pipe manufacturers for rubber bits and holders.

POLICEMAN FOUND DROWNED

New York, June 21.—The body of Patrolman Edward Moraghan of the Charles street station, who disappeared mysteriously from the pier at the foot of Perry street, North River, where he was on strike duty, was recovered by Theodore Bathen, a diver, twenty-five yards out from the pier.

Evidence showed that Moraghan had struggled to save himself. At 4 o'clock Thursday morning Moraghan's cap was seen floating on the surface near the dock by a brother officer. Throughout the day the men of the main division grappled for the body unsuccessfully. Bathen was hired by the patrolmen of the Charles street station. Members of the fourth squad, to which Moraghan was attached, manned the air pump. Moraghan was 43 years old and had been a member of the police force for 14 years. He leaves a wife and seven children.
