Send mees keeping the crowd back from pit No. 4

WILD SCENES AT COURRIERES MINE

LENES, France, April 2.—That no one was killed at the re-opening of the Courrieres coal mine pit No. 4, which had been hermetically sealed since March 15, due to the manner in which the great crowd which assembled was handled by the Courrieres, it was supposed that the pit contained over four hundred corpses of victims of the terrible explosion of five days ago, and it was believed by some that a few of the entombed miners would be found living. Great was their surprise, therefore, when the engineers, who worked so long and so faithfully, failed to find any person alive.

WOLFVILLE NEWS THE FINALITY OF RELIGION

WOLFVILLE, N. S., April 2.—On Wednesday afternoon on the arrival of the debaters from Fredericton, a grand ovation was given them. A Baptist Theological Professor in Chicago University in a Storm

Professor G. B. Foster has lately brought out a book of over 500 pages entitled "The Finality of Religion." His book has brought a storm about his ears. Baptists seem to have their own way of dealing with their men of "new theology." Unlike the Methodists and Presbyterians, they do not summon them before their church tribunals for trial and judgment; but they let them go on in their pulpits or theological chairs until they have gravitationally come into harmony with the doctrines of their church, or have gone so far on the rational drift that endurance seems useless and no longer a virtue; then they come under a storm of public opinion which supercedes the necessary ecclesiastical judgment. It is a kind of evolutionary process. Professor G. B. Foster, it seems, was first employed in MacMaster university, Toronto. The late Dr. Harper heard of his great learning and talents and engaged him to work in the theological department of Chicago university. For all these years he has been known as teaching to a certain extent the new theology, and has been moderately criticized.

of His person by virtue of which He is Saviour and Lord—and content, which was not a donation to Him, but a creation by Him—is self-justified above the whole revolutionary series, and has conquered rebellion from all relativities inconsistent with His being the home of eternal and permanent values. (Page 286.) On page 270 I refer to Jesus as the "one personality from which we may best see the content and purpose and quality of the Basile-August, the Central Motor, of the Whole Cosmic Evolution." On page 405: "It is the personality of Jesus for which faith cares, however, because in Jesus we find a novelty else existing—revelation of the divine will, and nowhere else postulated aim of human life. The Christian is one who knows God in the personality which determines His relation to God." On page 447: "Jesus thus has abiding importance to the life of prayer. He that has seen Me, hath seen the Father." Jesus is secure and guarantee and determinant of that special relationship to God which is called Christian. Not this last sentence. Elsewhere I say that the will of Jesus is one with the eternal will." G. B. FOSTER. Chicago, March 14, 1906.
