

ANTIPATHY AMONG ANIMALS.

The likes and dislikes of animals are unaccountable. Some horses take a violent prejudice against certain men, even though they are treated kindly and though the man's moral character is fair. Between the cat and dog there is a violent antipathy, which, however, is not infrequently displayed by mutual respect, and even affection in exceptional cases. The elephant hates dogs and rats. Cows dislike dogs, and so do sheep, and, what seems stranger, are particularly partial to bears. On the other hand, horses loathe and detest camels, and refuse to be decently civil to them after long acquaintance. They even hate the place where camels have been, which seems to be carrying race prejudice to an extreme.

Evolutionists are accustomed to explain these instinctive feelings as survivals of ancestral enmities dating from the days when one race preyed on the other. This would account for the natural enmity of cows to dogs, for when cows were wild, they were obliged to defend their calves from bands of predatory wild dogs. But why should the horse like dogs? It is but the other day that wild horses organized to defend their colts from wolves on our Western prairies. What could the ancestral horse have had against the ancestral camel of a million years ago? Above all, why should the horse approve of the bear? It must be that a horse has a dormant sense of beauty and of humor. The ideal of the horse is grace, combined with strength. He disapproves from the bottom of his nature of the hopelessly vulgar, awkward, unasthetical camel. The bear, he sees at once, though clumsy, is unpretentious, truthful, and not devoid of a sense of humor. The dog he recognizes as a good fellow, companionable and unselfish. He therefore forgets his ancestral predacious habits. A strong bond between the dog and the horse is that they are both fond of sport, whereas a camel would not go an inch to see the best race that was ever run.

Health, Voice, Appetite and Strength Failed—Completely Restored by Hood's Sarsaparilla.

"My health failed entirely and paralysis stared me in the face. My limbs were so weak that I could scarcely walk, and heart trouble was one of my ailments. I had no appetite and suffered with constipation. My voice failed me in the pulpit, and life had become a burden to me. I began taking Hood's Sarsaparilla and very soon saw a great improvement. In the winter I was attacked by the grip which left me in a bad condition. I was weak and prostrated. I went back to my old friend, Hood's Sarsaparilla. After taking a few bottles I felt like a new man. Hood's Sarsaparilla seems to be the thing for me, and I find Hood's Pills the best corrector of the liver and stomach." REV. C. S. BEAULIEU, Lowellville, Ohio.

The horse does seem a little prejudiced in the case of the camel, but it is a fine, aristocratic, unreasonable prejudice he has. And we like him for himself and for showing that the evolutionists cannot explain all the sentiments of a refined and highly organized animal. Man, of course, they can account for in every particular.

JACK.

Jack was cross, and nothing pleased him. After giving him the choicest morsels for his breakfast, and providing for his wants with tender care, while he did nothing but fret and complain, his mother finally said:

"Jack, I want you now to go right up to your room and put on every garment wrong side out."

Jack stared. He thought his mother must be out of her wits.

"I mean it, Jack," she repeated. And she did mean it. Jack had to mind. He had to turn his stockings even; and when his mother came to him, there he stood—a forlorn and funny-looking boy, all lining and seams and raveling—before the glass, wondering what his mother meant, but not quite clear in his conscience.

"Now this," said the mother, turning him round, "is what you have been doing all day; you have been determined to make the worst of everything. In other words, you would turn everything wrong side out. Do you really like your things this way so much, Jack?"

"No, mamma," answered Jack, shame-faced, "Can't I turn them right?"

"You may, if you will remember this: 'There is a right and a wrong side to whatever happens—I mean a pleasant part and a part you do not like as well, and you must do as you prefer to with your clothes, wear them right side out. Do not be so foolish any more, little man, as to persist in turning things wrong side out.'"

MOTHER AND DAUGHTER SET FREE.

South American Nervine Carries Health and Happiness Wherever it goes.

"My daughter was afflicted with nervous fainting spells for over a year. They caused great weakness. Nothing that could be done for her gave her any relief, until we tried South American Nervine. There was a wonderful change for the better after a few doses. She continued in the treatment, and to-day she is as well as ever. My wife also was a victim of indigestion, dyspepsia and nervous prostration and this great remedy has been a great benefit to her. We cheerfully recommend it." J. W. McRitchie, Bothwell, Ont.

CHRISTIAN PRAYER FROM A JEWISH CHILD.

There are many schools on the continent which have been formed by the Government of the country, at which a great many Jewish children attend. At these schools they have often sound Christian instruction, so that these dear children are taught what they must do to be saved. In one of the schools the superintendent was one day asking the children questions. He asked a little Jewish girl whether she could repeat any prayer which she would say before eating her dinner or supper.

Upon this, the child devoutly folded her hands, and, without any hesitation, said the prayer which is very commonly used among German Christians, "Come, Lord Jesus, be Thou our guest, and bless the gifts which Thou hast given to us."

This Jewish girl gives an example to Christian children. Do they always ask God's blessing on the meals of which they are about to partake?

I at once started and am pleased to state three boxes effected a complete cure, and I heartily recommend it to anyone suffering from Catarrh."

The son or daughter who is discourteous to members of the family, because of familiarity with them, is very likely to prove rude and overbearing to others, and very certain to be a tyrant in the household over which he or she may be called on to preside.

SOMETHING EACH DAY.

Something each day—a smile;
Is not much to give;
And the little gifts of life
Make sweet the days we live.
The world has weary hearts
That we can bless and cheer,
And a smile for every day.
Makes sunshine all the year.

Something each day—a deed
Of kindness and of good,
To link in closer bonds
All human brotherhood.
Oh, thus the heavenly will
We may all do while here;
For a good deed every day
Makes blessed all the year.
