

ALBERT COLLEGE
FOR BOYS AND GIRLS

Thoroughness is the foundation of success—and thoroughness is the principal that dominates every course taught at ALBERT COLLEGE, BELLEVILLE, ONT.

When a boy or girl completes a business course at Albert, he or she obtains a great asset—namely, a thorough knowledge of modern business, its practices and requirements.

Trained boys and girls are urgently needed in the modern business world. Albert College offers the dual advantages obtained from college life and special business training.

Power is Limited

Kingston, July 9.—Owing to increased demands for power by munitions plants in this district, and because of the unusual lowness of the water in the Trent River this season, the Hydro-electric Commission has asked Kingston Utilities Commission not to take on any more large power consumers this year.

The Provincial Commission must first be notified, and it can promise to agree to supply power only to concerns doing work of national importance.

BELLEVILLE IS INVADED

Young People From East and West Gather Here.

Belleville during the past year has welcomed several organizations.

Grand Lodge A.F. and A.M., The Orange Grand Lodge of Ontario East, and now at Albert College. Quinte Methodism is represented by scores of young people who are meeting for the annual session of the Summer School. The entire week will be spent in earnest study, stimulating discussions and inspirational conference.

One of Many

A chain of schools extends across Canada, some interdenominational, others under the auspices of a particular church. The Quinte School is connected with the Methodist Church, but no denominational dogmas are taught and young people of other churches attend. It is one of the oldest in Canada—in fact is the oldest one still in working order.

Our readers will be gratified to know that the advisory board of the Summer School for Canada, has made the Quinte School the standard for other schools.

A hearty welcome

Last evening Belleville extended greetings, Rev. Wm. Higgs, of Millbrook, the President of the School, was in the chair. He said that the past year had been one of great anxiety for the executive, and great earnestness had gone into the preparation of the program. Prayers had been answered and this year's school opens with brighter prospects than those of some former years. We regret the absence of Principal Baker, now in Muskoka, and of Rev. S. C. Moore, B.A., B.D., President of the Methodist Conference, who were to have voiced a welcome.

Rev. J. N. Clarry, B.A., of Holloway St. Church spoke very briefly but to the point. He conveyed from Rev. S. C. Moore, B.A., B.D., a message of deep appreciation of the fact that the Summer School finds its home in Belleville once again, and Mr. Clarry thanked the school for the arrangements by which all the young people of the Belleville Churches may have the privilege of membership in the school. On behalf of the citizens he welcomed the delegates and felt that the earnestness of the opening meeting promised good things for the week.

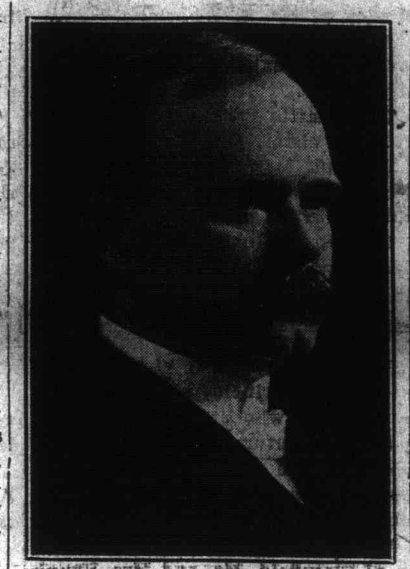

F. E. O'Flynn, K.C., is an old friend of the Summer School and felt it a privilege to speak at such a gathering of bright, young men and women, fitting themselves for service for God and the Church and Nation. It was not flattery to say that they were making a splendid beginning. As a member of the City Board of Education, he heartily welcomed them to this City of schools and colleges. As a member of the executives of Albert College, he greeted them. In the very auditorium in which these meetings are held he had studied as a boy, in 1874.

Conditions Today

Mr. O'Flynn thought there was need of such a school in view of the present condition of affairs. There was a crisis in the Garden of Eden; and now there is to be made a world decision. Are we putting God first in the Church? Are we giving largely, but he believed the pioneers, some of whom may have given the "widow's mite" gave more largely for what we have left is what counts. The church needs a revival; and the Summer School represents a fine element in Methodism. Our country needs awakening too. When Sabbath observance is neglected, history shows the nation begins then to drift from you. Today golf is indulged in too often on the Sabbath. The auto is abused when it is used to take people away from church and to keep people away from church.

The Nation

When a day for national prayer was needed, a week day was not chosen. That would have meant sacrifice, and our boys in France and Flanders are sacrificing. If we are to help remedy conditions, we need to pray and to gain wisdom that we may do what is best. He reminded the young people that true religion was not a gloomy affair but would

Miss Tillie Wood, of Ivanhoe, replying to the welcome in a charming speech, thanked the speakers for the kind words. The remembrance of the way the school-ites had been treated in former years by Belleville people, especially by those who have taken an interest in the Bay of Quinte School, has given to the welcoming addresses an added warmth and makes us feel glad to come back again.

We realize what it means to have such a place as Albert College open to us. Here we meet as one family and enjoy the fellowship of friends and pursue a helpful course of study. For this and for all you have done and may do, we thank you. We trust many people from the city may come and enjoy the good things in store, and thereby open the way for God to make this time a great blessing to the various departments of church work. We are not living in normal times, but should we not see Christ plainer than ever before? Have the sacrifices not led us to the place where we are more willing to follow the example of the Master, and fill our days not with selfish pleasure, but in service to our fellow-men? Has not the little corner of the vineyard entrusted to us not seemed more worthy of our best? The speaker called upon the delegates to express their appreciation of Belleville's welcome by clapping of hands, which brought a hearty response.

Rev. S. F. Dixon, of Rawdon circuit, also replied to the welcome. He begins to feel he is a hardy perennial in replying to addresses of welcome. It is an inward impulse that draws us to this hill-top of devotion; this sanctuary of ascending thoughts. We have looked forward to this week, and the forward look has helped to inspire to daily duty. If through this year's school there comes into life something to enrich every worthy impulse and to amplify every power, then will the future be to the past what the noonday is to the dawn. Do we need the school? A condition of self-satisfied enlightenment and self-righteousness is a dangerous thing. The more deeply we drink of this fountain of wisdom, the more humble shall we become. The speaker told of Dr. Henry VanDyke's visit to the Church and Chapel of the Holy Sepulchre at Jerusalem, then under Turkish guardianship, but thank God now under the protection of the Allies. Pilgrim after pilgrim came kneeling to kiss the marble slab on which tradition says, was laid the body of Christ to be anointed when taken from the cross. No one of us but would sympathize with the feeling that inspired the pilgrims; but for us the cold marble would hold no charm to devotion, for we believe the truth as it is in Jesus has blood in its veins. Religion demands the cultivation of imagination, conscience, will. There are many capacities but one life. There can be no true balance of power, no true harmony of gift unless there is fellowship with the Divine. The beauty of holiness involves the physical, mental, moral. It is the symmetry of the soul. At the school we study, and even were we complete in our present stage of development, growth is the law of life. We do not seek spectacular results. People who are carried off their feet are not carried very fast. The most telling work is done in the prayer room, when the door is shut.

Jesus, a Radical Teacher

The people said of Jesus "He taught with authority and not as the scribes." Like a war office, the scribes were bound by red tape, but Jesus cut the red tape of tradition. He spoke to conscience and heart as did the prophets. He cut away the undergrowth and made clear a path through the venerable trees of mighty truth, and led men out to the pure air and fresh sunlight to warm themselves into vitality. He did not get aside the Old Teaching, but filled it full of new meaning. The parable of the heaven illustrates his method of teaching, for it had in it the characteristic of the hidden, mighty, noiseless power of evolution. The suggestive thought was allowed to germinate into living experience, and thus became to the disciples the Living Truth. Jesus believed that Right makes Might, a truth we need to remember as a nation. His life suggested a God of Love. The speaker closed with a reference to the power of unconscious influence as illustrated in the life of Naomi and Ruth. There was something in Naomi's life that so suggested God that Ruth wanted the God of Naomi to be her God. If we go from this school with a life that suggests something others would want, then our communities will send their young people to next year's school.

Jottings of the School.

After the evening meeting, the delegates and teachers met and got down to the business of arranging the week's work.

Prayer meetings are held at 7 a. m. under the superintendence of Mrs. (Rev.) W. P. Rogers, Miss Tillie Woods and Rev. W. H. Clarke.

The Quinte School recently welcomed Dr. McLaughlin of Victoria College. He is at home with us, as he has led us in Bible study many times during the 15 years of this school's work.

Dr. F. G. Stephenson, Toronto, is a visitor, and as usual is decorating the walls with posters of the Missionary Forward Movement. He was formerly one of Mr. O'Flynn's boys of the Bridge St. S. S. Bible class.

Dr. C. T. Scott, of Bridge Street Church was an interested listener and has shown a warm interest in the work of the school. Tonight's (Tuesday's) meeting will be in Bridge St. Church.

Group sports will be a feature of the afternoons.

Prof. Greaves speaks from 2 to 3 o'clock and smilingly intimated he expected to "lecture" some of us in the art of vocal expression.

Your correspondent has seldom seen a school start its sessions with more hopeful prospects.

The Cheese Situation

Mr. Donaldson of the Commission Addressed Belleville Cheese Board.

Mr. Donaldson, of the Cheese Commission, and a dairyman of the Listowel district, was in Belleville on Saturday and addressed the members of the Belleville Cheese Board of Trade. He spoke on various matters concerning the great cheese industry. He first explained why the price of 23 cents was agreed upon for the year 1918. The United States had been anxious to unload all its cheese at 22 and the British authorities were anxious to buy Canadian cheese at the same price. Mr. Donaldson, who was giving his time and experience gratis, would not agree to this, thinking 24 cents a fairer price. However, the difference between Canadian and U. S. cheese, has been largely eliminated by the fact that all goes to the one market to feed the boys at the front. Finally through the representations of Mr. Donaldson and others, the price of 23 cents was set. "If the public today knew the difficulty in transportation and financing, I feel convinced that you would think you were living in a paradise, milking your cows and getting a good sized cheque from the factory," said Mr. Donaldson. "You don't know, as far as your cheese is concerned, whether there is a war or not. The rest of the people do not know."

"It is possible you would not have got 21 cents if you had had the cheese trade take its own channels. Last year the admiralty paid over two and a quarter million dollars war risk on Canadian cheese shipments, over a million dollars in another avenue and 3 cents per pound for space."

"You have no idea of the needs. You don't know what it is to see hard times. Going along your streets no one would know that our boys are dying for us. The least we can do is to feed them."

Mr. Donaldson said that in this time one should not try to increase his bank account, but he should be paid enough for his "products" to enable him to support any patriotic cause.

The idea of the cheese commission is to get the cheese business to run as smoothly as possible.

Mr. Donaldson did not think it would be a fair policy to abandon the buyer. He is entitled to a living, when the war is over there will be no cheese commission and the buyers will handle the business as of old. The commission has not the facilities for handling cheese. Were it to go into the business without the wholesalers, new store-houses would have to be built or the present privately-owned ones taken over. Mr. Donaldson said, regarding talk of eliminating the buyer: "I don't think it would be a good policy. The buyer does not average one eighth of a cent profit and he handles the business more economically than others could."

Offerings to

Late Mr. Hebert

The following are the list of spiritual offerings and flowers sent to the late Mr. Hebert, whose funeral took place on Friday last: Spiritual offerings, Mr. and Mrs. H. Soule, Mr. and Mrs. J. Bates Family Held Reunion

Gathered at the Old Homestead, South of Redersville.

About seventy-five members of the Bates family, assembled at the McPail farm, about three miles south of Redersville, to hold one of those ever interesting events, a family reunion. The McPail farm is the old Bates homestead. Here Christopher Bates settled in 1812, having emigrated to Canada from Boston, Mass. Of his family of ten children, only two sons survive, George W. of Avondale and Nicholas of Stockdale. The former arranged the reunion which took
