"China For the Chinese."

The cry of "China for the Chinese" finds an unexpected echo in another part of the world. According to a writer in The London Mail, there is unrest among the blacks of west Africa, fostered by negroes from the United States who entered Africa originally as missionaries, "but were not many months in the colonies before they dropped their religion and devoted themselves mainly to politics, beginning a propaganda of Africa for the Africans." I needed food and was willing to work for it, and I climbed the fence and accosted the farmer. He waited to tie up a shock of corn before answering me and then said:

"'Waal, I dunno. You don't look very hefty.

'But I can cut corn,' I answered. "'I don't want to say nuthin' to hurt your feelin's, but you look to me as if

HIS STOMACH.

Let the greatest athlete have dyspepsia and his muscles would soon fail. Physical strength is derived from food. If a man has insufficient food he loses strength. If he has no food he dies. Food is converted into nutrition through the stomach to the strength of the stomach to what extent food eaten is digested and assimilated. People can die of starvation who have abundant food to eat, when the stomach and its associate organs of digestion and nutrition do not perform their duty. Thus the stomach is really the vital organ of the body. If the stomach is "weak" the body will be weak also, because it is upon the stomach the body relies for its strength. And as the body, considered as a whole, is made up of its several members and organs, so the weakness of the body as a consequence of "weak" stomach will be distributed among the organs which compose the body. If the body is weak because it is ill-nourished that physical weakness will be found in all the organs—heart, liver, kidneys, etc. The liver will be torpid and inactive, giving rise to billousness, loss of appetite, weak nerves, feeble or irregular action of heart, palpitation, dizziness, headache, backache and kindred disturbances and weaknesses.

Mr. Louis Pare, of Quebec, writes: "For body here is goin' to say anything about it. Jim, you won't never tell, will you?

"The query was addressed to the hired man, and after thinking for a moment he replied: "'No, I won't never tell, but I've al-lus said that if I ever met a pirate I'd give him a gaul durned good bastin'.' Begins His Story. "Thus encouraged, I sat down on a stump, the farmer and his hired man sat down on a log before me, and I proceeded to say that at the age of twenty-five I went out of New Bedford year or so and taking about a dozen whales we touched at Valparaiso, and as I was a very sick man I was sen to the hospital while the ship continued her cruise. "'So you ketched whales, eh?' queried the farmer, with sudden interest backache and kindred disturbances and weaknesses.

Mr. Louis Pare, of Quebec, writes: "For years after my health beran to fail, my head grew dizzy, eyes pained me, and my stomether was sore all the time with the control of the doctors claimed that it was symmetric trouble due to dyspepsia, to their powders regularly yet I felt no better. My wife advised me to try Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery—and stop taking the doctors medicine. She bought me a bottle and we soon found that I began to improve, so I kept up the treatment. I took on fiesh, my stomach became normal, the digestive organs worked perfectly and I soon began to look like a different person. I can never cease to be grateful for what your medicine has done for me and I certainly give it highest praise.

Don't be wheedled by a penny-grabbing dealer into taking inferior substitutes for Dr. Pierce's medicines, recommended to be "just as good."

To gain knowledge of your own body at first I took him for a church deacon. After three or four days he grew more confidential, and then he betrayed himself. What do you think he was? "'A livin' pirate, by thunder!" exclaimed the farmer. "'A hoss thief, mebbe,' added the you were in the milk business hired man.

His Meeting With Bloody Dick. "Yes, he was a pirate. He was known all along the South American coast as Bloody Dick. I suppose he had captured and burned fifty different ships and put a thousand people to death before I met him. At first, when he told me he was a pirate, I dew away from him, but the longer he talked the more I liked him. Re had been robbed of his all when an exphan, and that's why he had turned pirate. He wanted me to go with him, but 1 re-fused. However, the next day after I had refused I got a letter from home that my sweetheart had married another, my old mother was dead and that a cousts of mine had robbed me of all my real estate. This news made me reckless, and I went to the pirate and told him I'd go.' "By eracky, but this is gittin' interestin', said the farmer, as he hitched about on the log.

"Yes, but why didn't he go clerkin in a grocery instead of becomin' a pirate?' asked the hired man.

Goes to Sea. covered we went to sea. Bloody Dick had a brig called the Death Watch, and she ran into Valparaiso and took us off. She had a crew of eighty men, and of all the villains on earth they were the worst. The only man in the world they feared was Bloody Dick. He shot down two of them with his own hand the first day we were out. He made me his mate, and he told me to shoot the first man who looked cross eved at me. All of them believed that

I had waded in blood and was a terri ble fellow.'
"'Gosh, but this is sunthin' we don't

. Talks of His Past git every day! said the farmer as he poked his hired man in the ribs. "'But I hain't encouragin' pirates myself,' answered the other in sulky tones Scene of Slaughter.

"'The first ship we captured,' I continued, 'was the Bounding Sally of London. Her captain took us for a peaceful trader and let us come up with him, and he did not suspect our wicked purpose until fifty of our men had gained his decks. A terrible scene of slaughter followed. She had over a hundred passengers and crew, and in ten minutes all except fifteen of them were lying dead. The fifteen we saved to walk the plank and be drowned in the sea. We took out of the vessel about half a million dollars in cash and then scuttled her.'

"'And how many persons did you kill? asked the farmer.
"'I don't remember exactly, but not over four or five. I was new at the business, you see, and the sight of blood affected me. For two weeks after that I had nightmare every night Did you ever kill any one yourself? 'Lands, no! I've killed hogs and fowls, but never a human bein'.

Hired Man Gets Nervous. "'Say, I'm beginnin' to git goose-flesh!' called the hired man as he stood

"'You never mind gooseflesh,' chided the boss 'but sit right down ag'in and hear the story out. I've waited thirty years for a pirate to come along, and now I'm goin' to hear all about it. You didn't stop with one ship, did you,

'Oh, no; we robbed, burned, scuttled and murdered right along for the next two years. I think we took about fifty ships and murdered at least 5,000 people. Did you ever read of how we took the Winsome Maiden of New

"'No, I never did. I never got hold of a real pirate book, though I've allus wanted to.'

"'She was taking 100 schoolma'ams, 50 orphan girls and 70 widows around Cape Horn on an excursion when we overhauled her. We signaled that we were short of mustard to make sandwiches with, and she lay to until we came up. Then sixty of us boarded her and began the work of slaughter. Did you ever kill an orphan girl? "Thunder, no! Didn't I say I had never killed nobody?" "'Hear how calmly the villain talks of murder,' muttered the hired man. Widows Die Hard.

"'Well, you have no idea how tough some of them are. It takes more to kill them than it would an ox. Schoolma'ams die pretty easy, but widows and orphans want a lot of hacking. It took us nearly half a day to finish that crowd. That was my last with the pirate crowd. One of the orphans struck me across the small of the back with a handspike and hurt me so that Bloody Dick put me ashore in Australia. It was two years before my spine got well. While I was suffering with it the people found out that I was Charlie, the pirate, and they would have hanged me but for the governor. He asked me if I had repented of my crimes, and when I answered that I had he said I should have a chance to live on and win my good name back. He issued a full pardon and helped me to get back to my native land, and here I am.'
"But why are you on the tramp?"

Looking For Widow's Mother.
"'One of the schoolma'sms told me before I killed her that she had a mother in this state, and she asked as a special favor that I would hunt the old lady up and give her the particulars. I'm not tramping, but looking."

"'Oh, I see! Jim, you go to work, and, stranger, you come along to the house with me.'
"On our way through the corn he

I think a pirate who has reformed is jest as good as anybody, but that pesky Jim is jealous of you, and if he sees the constable he'll give you away for spite. Better tell the old woman, if she asks you anything, that made a failure of it because we had so many thunderstorms." M. QUAD.

PURSUIT OF ZULU CHIEF.

British Detachment Peorly Equipped and Grave Situation Feared.

Pietermaritzburg, South Africa, April 26.—The rebellious Zulu chieftain, Bambaata, with about two thousand of his followers, is in full retreat toward the fastness of Zululand, closely pur-sued by the detachment of South African police and a battalion of infantry rebols.

Grave apprehension exists over the fact that the pursuing force is short of rations and ammunition. The rebels have plenty of both, and are ready to fight desperately if cornered.

It is admitted that should Bambaat gain the slightest advantage over his pursuers he will receive strong rein-forcements at once, as many of the tribesmen are dissatisfied and would rise against the Government at once were they assured that they had any chance of success. Orders have been sent to the several garrisons to send such reinforcements to the punitive expedition at once as can be spared.

The white settlers of Zululand are leaving their homes and crowding into the larger towns for protection.
